Paired in Films

JACK DEMPSEY (top) is to be starred in ten picture scenarios, which are to be written by GERALD BEAUMONT (bottom), famous Oakland sporting writer, according to a contract signed with the Universal Film Company. Dempsey is to get $1,000,000 and Beaumont is proportionately high-paid.

DEMPSEY TO FILM BEAUMONT TALES

Oakland Author to Get Record Pay for Ten Scenarios for Champion.

Gerald Beaumont, Oakland author, creator of fictional characters who win their way to fame and fortune through good sportsmanship and hard work, today in the assay of achievement was shown to be a pure-gold "Beaumont" character himself.

This denoument in Beaumont's life story, which he would have taken great delight in writing if he had not been obliged to live it instead, comes as an announcement that he has signed a contract to write ten scenarios for Jack Dempsey, establishing a record price for his work with the pen.

Beaumont's story, if he cared to write it, would follow a whimsical path of fates and foibles leading through the "cubdom" of a newspaper to the sporting desk of The Oakland TRIBUNE, en route to repute as a sporting writer of fair views and colorful style, and a short-story writer with a national following.

DEMPSEY AS STAR GETS $1,000,000.

The agreement to write a series of "Dempsey" stories was arrived at yesterday in Hollywood with Beaumont, Dempsey, Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, and Carl Laemmle of the Universal Films, sitting in on the conference. Dempsey is to receive a million dollars for starring in the pictures and Beaumont is to receive a proportionately high price for his stories.

Other details of the agreement are that the moving picture company reserves the right to spread the ten pictures over a period of two years, and the contract stands should Dempsey lose the championship in the meantime.

Beaumont picked up the trick of the boxing game, which now enables him to write his sporting stories with so much vigor, when he was doing sports for The TRIBUNE and acting as referee for Tommy Simpson's West Oakland club

Hecke Asks State to Postpone Trout Opening on Account of Stock Plague Spread; New Outbreak in L. A.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

SACRAMENTO, April 1. — California's hoof and mouth disease epidemic may cause postponement of the opening of the trout fishing season.

Request that the opening of the trout fishing season be indefinitely postponed as a precaution against spread of the hoof and mouth disease by anglers, was made today of the state game and fish commission by G. H. Hecke, director of the state department of agriculture.

A new infection was reported today from Los Angeles, where a herd of 500 cattle was found infected with the disease.

MARYSVILLE, April 1.—Ten thousand head of sheep from Kern county unloaded here today, were placed under thirty days' quarantine by state officers. Twenty thousand head from San Joaquin valley arrived here during the past week. Supervisors last night adopted an ordinance prohibiting importation of livestock of any kind during the hoof and mouth epidemic. This edict will affect any further shipments of stock. Yuba stockmen are opposing the ordinance.

Ranges in the foothills and valley are renting for large sums because of short feed in the south.

While neighboring states were today placing a figurative "ring of ... passage of the hoof and mouth disease to other parts of the country, local state and federal officials were battling with several new appearances of the epidemic in the infected areas of the state.

Representatives of seven western states in conference at Salt Lake City announced today that they had adopted a tentative program for a general embargo against California livestock, agricultural, and agricultural products.

By the terms of the tentative program, the shipping of carcasses from California from which the hoofs and hides have not been removed shall be prevented, and the disinfection of all hides, skins, wool, hay, straw, or similar fodder before shipment must be made under supervision of an inspector approved by the United States bureau of animal industry.

A large dairy herd of 600 head of cattle was today discovered to be infected in Los Angeles, bringing the number of infected herds in that area up to 14, comprising nearly 6000 animals.

Work of killing the diseased animals continued today, with nearly half of them yet to be exterminated.

Fear that the disease has spread to Fresno county, which so far has been free from it, was expected today, when a herd of 200 cattle at the Copper King mine near Fresno was placed under strict quarantine.

"You matched your college career against one night's entertainment, and you lost," remarked the judge.

Migliavacca, a senior student in the college of commerce, residing at 2511 Channing way, Berkeley, was arrested early last month for driving his automobile across the university campus at an excessive speed. Judge Pulcifer at that time ordered his car taken away from him for 30 days.

The police campaign in the bay cities against reckless and intoxicated drivers today resulted in the arrest of several persons.

OAKLAND, April 1. — Walter Kelly, 40, an accountant of 671 Twenty-fifth street, Oakland, one of eight speeders arrested during the early morning hours Sunday on San Pablo avenue, was this morning sentenced to serve two days in the county jail by Judge Robert Edgar.

A second charge that of transporting liquor, has been filed against Kelly and will be heard on April 9. Patrolman J. J. Fisher who caught Kelly, stated he found two bottles of wine in the latter's car.

In court this morning Kelly pleaded with Judge Edgar not to send him to jail, saying it would cost him his job.

"You should have thought of that when you were violating the law," responded the judge as he pronounced sentence.

Tidal Wave Precedes Blast of Mountain; Residents Seeking Flight Caught Between Blaze and Raging Sea

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LONDON, April 1.—The whole island of Stromboli is in flames, following a terrific eruption of the volcano of Stromboli, according to a Central News dispatch from Rome this afternoon.

ROME, April 1.—A violent explosion took place today within the crater of the 2000-year-old Stromboli volcano, on Stromboli island off the Sicilian coast. Fifteen persons are known to have been injured.

There was a great burst of smoke and a torrent of flaming cinders which destroyed many vineyards along the slopes of the mountain.

The most recent violent eruptions of the volcano of Stromboli occurred on September 26, 1922, and December 1, of the same year. In the first of these the inhabitants of the island rushed to the shore to be ready to escape in case it became necessary, but shortly afterward they were able to return to their homes. No lives were lost in either eruption.

The volcano is located on the Island of Stromboli, one of the group of Lipari islands north of Sicily. It has been in frequent eruption since the earliest period of history and is declared by scientists to be the most active volcano in the world. For centuries its glare at night has served as a beacon to mariners. The volcano lies in a direct line between Vesuvius and Etna, and is believed to be connected with them by the same geological "fault."

Widespread destruction has been caused by eruptions of Stromboli in the past, notably in 1907, 1912, 1915 and 1916.

German Crowd Cheers as Word Is Received Freeing War Hero From Treason; Hitler Gets Five Years

Troops and Special Police Keep People Moving Fearful of Outbreak: Three Other Men Also Sentenced

MUNICH, April 1.—General Ludendorff was acquitted today on a charge of treason for his share in the embryonic beer cellar putsch of November, 1923.

Adolf Hitler, one of eight other defendants, was found guilty and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Troops and special police kept people moving on the streets and broke up all gatherings of two or more, fearful of a nationalist demonstration.

Word that General Ludendorff had been acquitted was received with enthusiasm.

Reichswehr, marching with rifles on their shoulders and potato masher hand grenades stuffed in their belts, prevented any outburst, however.

Of the defendants, Ludendorff was the only one completely exonerated. Hitler, together with Weber, Kriebel and Poehner were found guilty of high treason. They were fined 200 gold marks and sentenced to five years in the fortress.

The whole affair had its comedy aspect, however. It was explained that these four would be freed on probation within six months and that they need not serve longer "if they behave themselves."

The remaining defendants, Bruckener, Roehm, Pernet, Wagner and Frick, were found guilty of aiding high treason. They were fined 100 gold marks each and sentenced to 15 months' imprisonment. These latter sentences were immediately suspended, and they will immediately be released on probation.

COOLIDGE TEST OF STRENGTH IS NEAR

Primaries This Month to Bring Out All Supporters of President.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN.
(Copyright, 1924, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The present month will show whether Calvin Coolidge will be nominated for president on an early ballot in the Republican national convention in June.

Beginning with the Wisconsin primary today, the month will be crowded with primaries and conventions for selection of delegates to that convention. A total of approximately 590 delegates will be selected—more than a majority of the convention.

April is the biggest month in selection of convention delegates. Therefore, it has been chosen as the moment for sending out a host of Coolidge campaign orators, whose function it is to stir up sentiment in their states in behalf of the administration.

President Coolidge himself will get into action when on April 22, he will address an assemblage of editors in New York. That speech is expected to be his most important political utterance to date.

The Wisconsin primary or statewide conference today is of no interest to the Coolidge managers as Wisconsin is conceded to La Follette.

But in New York state today is being held a convention for district delegates which is considered important. New York will select its delegates at large on April 15.

Tomorrow Connecticut will hold its convention, and the Henry Lincoln Johnson faction in Georgia meets. Other conventions during the month include Maine, April 8, Washington 5, Rhode Island, 7; Illinois 16 (following a primary on April 8) Florida, 17, Delaware, 22; Oklahoma, 27, Alabama 28, Mississippi, 29, and [illegible] in Georgia on April 30.

In the meantime these states will hold primaries:

Michigan, April 8; Nebraska 8, New Jersey, 22, Pennsylvania, 29; Massachusetts, 29, Ohio, 29

In the list are many states which form debatable ground. Pennsylvania's primary, for instance, is expected to show how strong Pinchot is there, with relation to Coolidge. Ohio, the home of Daugherty, and Michigan, home of Newberry, will be closely watched to gauge the effect upon the Coolidge fortunes of the resignations of the two cabinet officers.

AL JENNINGS LIED, SAYS OIL WITNESS

Jake Hamon Did Not Spend a Dime to Aid Harding to Get Nomination, Declares Friend of Oklahoma Man

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, April 1. — The political activities of the late Jake Hamon, Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, came under scrutiny before the oil committee again today in a renewed effort of the committee prosecutor, Senator Walsh, to establish a conspiracy as far back as 1920 to select a "complacent" secretary of the interior. Under the Montana senator's questioning, J. E. Dyche, who managed Hamon's campaign for the place on the national committee, testified that the fight had cost Hamon $105,000, but insisted that he never desired to have a place in the cabinet.

The witness ridiculed Al Jennings' testimony that Hamon had told him of large money payments to the late Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and others to secure the nomination of Warren G. Harding, and of indiscriminate use of money among members of the Oklahoma delegation to the Chicago convention.

"If Jennings said that he lied," the witness said.

HAMON ADVISED VOTE FOR LOWDEN.

As a matter of fact, he said, Hamon didn't spend a dime to influence the delegation of his state to vote for Harding, but on the contrary, advised them to vote for Lowden on two ballots after they were read in to get Harding on the band wagon.

R. H. Wilson, formerly Oklahoma superintendent of public instruction, also was questioned at today's session. He said Hamon had "boasted" to him of putting over Harding's nomination and had told him of contributing $25,000 to Harry M. Daugherty, the Harding pre-convention manager, for campaign expenses.

Asked about Wilson's testimony that Hamon had told him he had given Daugherty $25,000 for Harding's campaign expenses Dyche said Wilson was a reputable gentleman.

"I would believe Wilson's statement that Hamon told him that," the witness said, "but I would say he was 'kidding' him. Jake was a great 'kidder,' particularly when he was talking to Democrats."

Asked how much money was spent for Hamon in his committeeship fight against Jamse McGray, Dyche objected to answering on the ground that it was a personal matter.

OBJECTS TO ANSWERING HAMON'S PERSONAL PROBE.

"As far as I am concerned I have nothing to conceal," Dyche said, "but its a matter that was personal to Hamon."

Senator Stanfield, Republican, Oregon, said he did not think the matter relevant but Senator Walsh disagreed, saying he expected to show that large sums of money had been spent to obtain a "complacent" secretary of the interior for the exploitation of the public domain and especially the oil lands. Replying to a specific question from Senator Stanfield, Senator Walsh said he expected to show there was a conspiracy for the appointment of a secretary of the interior.

That led to a long wrangle.

Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri, moved that the witness be excused from answering Senator Walsh's question, but the motion was lost on a tie vote, with Chairman Ladd voting against it.

"There was spent in round numbers $105,000," Dyche then said. "Jake himself spent around $20,000."

"This was all Mr. Hamon's money?" asked Senator Walsh.

HAMON SPENT MONEY TO OBTAIN POSITION.

Senator Walsh wanted to know what Hamon expected as a result of such an expenditure and the witness said he desired merely the honor of the position. He had heard reports that Hamon was to be secretary of the interior and had asked him about that, Dyche continued, but Hamon replied he had no desire for a cabinet position.

"He did have a part in shaping events in the Chicago convention," the witness added.

Senator Stanfield elicited from the witness the statement that the $105,000 spent by Hamon was to elect the twenty delegates to Chi-

S. F. NAMES NEW POLICE UNIT TO CURB SPEEDING

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1. — A new police unit was commissioned here today for the express purpose of investigating automobile accidents and bringing to justice violators of motor vehicle laws. The principal function of this unit, according to Chief of Police O'Brien, will be to secure evidence for prosecutions of reckless drivers, speed maniacs and motorists who fail to give aid to victims they have injured.

In consonance with the campaign to bring to an end the deaths resulting from speeders and drunken drivers, Chief O'Brien has published a strict set of police regulations intended to speed up police investigations and to check the "fixing" of cases on the side.

The automobile accident bureau consists of nine detectives who will devote all of their time to the prosecution of criminal automobile drivers.

ACCIDENTS AT NIGHT.

Data on file in the office of Coroner T. B. W. Leland covering a period of two years shows that the majority of automobile fatalities happen at night, as indicated by the following table:

Street	Day Time Deaths	Night Time Deaths
Market	7	16
Mission	7	14
Third	3	13
Geary	2	9
Fulton	2	6
Great Highway	2	5
Van Ness	3	0
Valencia	.	5
Howard	2	4
Corbett	.	3
Sanchez	.	2

The reason for this wide dis- [illegible] figures, according to Leland, are that drivers go faster at night because the streets are clear and there are fewr traffic policemen to check them.

Nash, Delegate to City Planning Meet

The city council today appointed Superintendent Jay B. Nash of the recreation department, as Oakland's delegate to the National conference of city planning, to be held in Los Angeles April 7. Nash will deliver a talk on Oakland's golf links and municipal playground activities. The council appropriated $100 for his expenses.

EGGS, FRUIT FORM LOOT.

BERKELEY, April 1.—A burglar who sawed his way through the front door of the store obtained two dozen oranges and a dozen eggs valued at $2 from the Anello Fruit Market, 2463 Shattuck avenue. The cash drawer was tampered with but there was no money in it.

$500,00 IS ASKED FOR DEVELOPING LAKE MERRITT

Mayor Suggests That Bond Issue Include Money for Play Improvements.

Maintaining that the dredging and improvement of Lake Merritt and the surrounding playgrounds comprise an important item in the education of the city's youth, Mayor Davie, in a letter to the board of education, last night suggested that the coming school bond issue include $500,000 "for the purpose of bringing in a supply of clean salt water from San Francisco bay to Lake Merritt, and the development of a recreation center below the auditorium."

Harold D. Weber, secretary to the mayor, addressed the board and said the mayor has a sample of the coral which grows up in the lake and which, if not stopped, will damage the lake materially.

The mayor's letter, describing the development of the lands around the auditorium, contended that this is of interest to the school department, in that it all helps toward the physical development of students, by rowing and boating. The mayor asserted that "completion of a stadium and the installation of all necessary equipment should be accomplished for not more than $250,000," while the pumping of salt water, and other improvements, would round out the $500,000 for this "very important educational feature."

School Director Fred Campbell demurred.

"I don't thing it's legal," said Campbell. "This is a matter which benefits the entire city, and not exclusively the school department. I do not think we can go outside our province. There will be difficulty enough in putting over the bond election. We ought to get legal advice on this."

Commissioner W. J. Moorehead moved that the matter be referred to the board's budget committee.

"If the board of education can sit here and ignore questions affecting children, we are in a pitiful plight," he said. "Our duty is to get behind everything affecting the development of our children. It is a matter concerning this board, Director Campbell notwithstanding."

"It's a civic matter," insisted Campbell.

"I'll call the attention of this board to our exhibit of coral in the mayor's office," said Weber. "Clean salt water will prevetn this and give our children a chance to swim."

"I know that a school bond election will carry," said Moorehead.

The board referred the matter to the budget committee, which is looking into the school necessities with a view toward the coming bond issue.

Another matter referred to the bond budget committee was a plea by the Daniel Webster Improvement club, represented by Tony Quintal, which p[illegible]d out that the Daniel Webster [illegible]hool is overcrowded, with 297 children in five portable buildings. Other schools in the vicinity were also termed overcrowded. The board agreed that the present portables are "an eyesore" and promised to better things when the bond issue is carried.

The Gypsy Smith Evangelistic committee made final arrangements to rent the school tract at Twenty-sixth, near Broadway, to erect a tent for 8000 persons, for a revival campaign.

Argentina Folk Fail to Rush for Workless Salaries

By MORGAN EASTERLING.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

BUENOS AIRES, April 1. — Salaries without work, a monetary millenium, came through in the Argentine today.

Under the new pensions law, effective this morning, everyone who has worked for 25 years, for any one in any capacity, is entitled to toil no more and to receive the salary he was earning at the time as a life pension.

There was no indication of a rush to take advantage of the new law because there was some little doubt as to where the money is coming from. The law provides that workers who have not served their 25 years must contribute five per cent of their salaries to the fund from which the pensions are to be paid.

Employers also are required to pay five per cent of the pay rolls for the first month.

President Alvearon signed a decree making the new law effective on April 1. It applies to foreigners as well as to natives.

Minister of Finance Molina announced today that a collection would start at once as well as work of organizing the pensions proving machinery. He said the government would welcome advice regarding modifications that might make its law more practical.

The crows' feet were deposited in huge piles in the show windows of the town's biggest store, each county having a window to itself. Harold Norton of Tilden carried off high honors, with 2,800 to his credit. Last year the teams killed 13,000.

Rebels Send Civil Commission to U. S.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW ORLEANS, April 1.—A civil commission representing the Mexican revolutionary government has arrived here from Frontera aboard the Norwegian steamer Stavangeren. The commission which is charged with the task of combatting the so-called Obregon propaganda in this country is headed by Mario Hernandez, private secretary to Adolfo de la Huerta. Hernandez, it was said, would go to New York to join Rafael Zubaran Company.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 1.—Mexican rebel forces have captured Rosales, in the state of Coahuila and Hidalgo, in the state of Michoacan, according to advices to Adolfo Jiminez, rebel agent, from Frontera. Rebel troops in the field on March 15 throughout Mexico numbered 40,460, the advices said.

The Chinese recently arrived from California and evidently planned to set themselves up in business here.

Police protected them until they were beyond the city limits and headed for Tonopah.

Body Found With Head Split Open

BY INTERNATIANAL NEWS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO, April 1.—Seated bolt upright in a chair facing the door, his head split open apparently with an ax, the body of Jack Holmes, 40, believed to have come here from Los Angeles, was found today by police, who broke into his room. Wrecked furniture gave evidence of a terrific death struggle. No weapon or clew to the assailants was found.

Information obtained by police led them to start a search for two roommates of Holmes, who they believe may be able to give some information concerning the killing.

SELL SUNSHINE, RAIN, ADVICE TO FARMERS IN U. S.

Sugar Specialist Tells Agriculturalists What to Grow on Land.

PLEIANCE, Ohio, April 1.—Sell only sunshine and rain.

That's the remedy for American agricultural ills suggested by Charles H. Allen, president of the Farmers Sugar company. He declares farmers are in trouble because they have been selling wheat and other crops containing a great deal of mineral matter.

"Just because we inherited a great mass of mineral matter in the shape of soil fertility is no reason why we should pay Europe for hauling it away," said Allen, addressing a group of farmers here. "[illegible] figure we sell wheat at a profit. If we also computed the value of mineral elements in the wheat, adding 15 cents to the production cost, we should find we always sell wheat at a loss.

"Chemical composition of sugar is carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. The carbon comes from the air as the result of the sun's action on plant leaves. Hydrogen and oxygen come from the rain. Sugar beets merely store up sunshine and rain, and when the storeroom is returned to the soil in the form of pulp no fertility has been taken away."

In addition to sugar, Allen would have the American farmers sell milk, butter, eggs, bacon, wool, cotton and other crops that also contain very little mineral matter.

"Sugar beet pulp can best be put back on the farm as a dairy feed," Allen continued. "In combination with alfalfa and grain, it balances the ration, acts as a laxative and prevents the danger of over-feeding protein. Without soft feed, especially during the stable feeding in the winter, protein diet has a danger of accumulating fat around the milk-producing vessels of the animal and thus reducing production—a danger that scientific agriculturalists agree is entirely eliminated by feeding sugar beet pulp.

"Raise sugar beets, and sell sunshine and rain in the form of sugar; feed the beet pulp to cows, and sell sunshine and rain in the form of dairy products. Feed your grain to sheep and hogs, and sell sunshine and rain in the form of wool and bacon.

"The wheat farmer is 'broke' today because he cannot figure soil deposits. He has been a poor banker by growing wheat and other crops that have withdrawn all the mineral deposits. What will save him is not extended credit, but rotation, with sugar beets and other crops that take no mineral fertility from the soil and at the same time, through extensive root systems, make bacteria life active in lower and undeveloped regions of the soil.

"Near Pendleton, Oregon, some years ago I heard an agricultural lecturer say cows should be put on the land. A wheat farmer, who used a 38-horse heading machine to harvest his crop, showed a $35,000 check he had received for his grain crop, and said:

"'I'd look like hell milking a cow, wouldn't I?'

"Now this land that formerly grew sixty bushels of wheat to the acre won't grow enough to keep soul and body together, and the farmers are moving away. That is the answer to the $35,000 check.

"Let us quit selling wheat. Let us sell butter, sugar, bacon and wool. If Congressmen and would-be Congressmen wish to do something for the farmer and for the entire country let them make such laws as will foster the production of food products that come from the inexhaustible materials and not from exhaustible mineral matter."

ENGLISH BELITTLE U. S. LITERATURE, SAYS LIBRARIAN

British Writers Believe Own Books Superior to American, Avers Mrs. Potter.

The English are not enthusiastic about American writers and their books, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Gray Potter, librarian at Mills College, who recently returned from Paris where she was in charge of the American Library for a year. Mrs. Potter was the speaker yesterday at the luncheon of the Soroptimist Club of Alameda county at Hotel Oakland. She declared that the English believed their own literature to be superior to any written in this country. She pointed out, however, that they like "Main Street," believing it to be a true picture of American life.

The French seek to know of America, its ideals and best literature, Mrs. Potter asserted. She pointed out that they found their interpretation of American life in the movies and concluded that only cowboys lived in the west.

The American Library of Paris circulates 10,000 volumes a month, about equally between American, French and English readers, its former librarian reported. It was founded during the World War for the benefit of overseas veterans, but since has developed into a civilian institution. The librarians in a large sense become interpreters of American slang to the foreign patrons, according to Mrs. Potter.

The library staff during Mrs. Potter's association abroad include a French prince who met the demands of the French patrons; a Russian prince who ran errands; a baroon who shelved the books; an Irish and a French stenographer. The stove in the palace kitchen was used to stack newspaper files and the wine cellars stored the books.

Berkeley members of the Soroptimist Club are hostesses today at a luncheon in Haviland hall, University of California campus. The clubwomen will make a tour of the educational exhibit which has been placed there by the Berkeley board of education.

Alberta Man Found Slain; Head Severed

CALGARY, Alta., April 1.—With his body showing marks of many knife wounds and his head almost cut off, the remains of Nels Frederickson, a retired farmer of Fraserton, 20 miles south of Hanna, Alta., was found half buried in the cellar of his home by neighbors yesterday, according to word received by the authorities today.

Robbery was believed to have been the motive for the slaying as the home showed marks of ransacking. The crime was said by the police to have been done by an unidentified man who lived with him during the winter.

Sinclair to Give Bond for Probe Trial

WASHINGTON, April 1. — District Attorney Peyton Gordon was notified today that Harry F. Sinclair would come to Washington late today from New York to furnish bond of $5000 to answer when he is called for trial on a charge of contempt growing out of his refusal to answer questions of the Senate oil committee.

It was argued that Sinclair should be allowed to make his plea immediately upon his arrival here. J. W. Zevely, Sinclair's attorney, said he was unable to say definitely whether his client would come to Washington today.

Canada Defeats Bill To Tax U. S. Coal

OTTAWA, Ont., April 1.—A resolution introduced in the House of Commons calling upon the government to place a duty on coal from the United States and setting forth that the commodity should be given a preferential toll basis on the railroads was, in effect, defeated last night. Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

Autoist Says He Was Intoxicated By Alcohol Rub

MODESTO, April 1.—The porous skin of Bill Dean, bootblack, is especially susceptible to alcohol, Bill told Police Judge W. H. Rice when he was lined up with the other week-end "jags" before the judge.

"What's your story," the judge asked.

"Well, judge," said Dean, "it just naturally was the funniest thing that ever happened to me. I expected to take a bath Saturday night, but thought maybe an alcohol rub mightn't be a bad. So I bought a bottle of alcohol and rubbed it all over my body. It just naturally made me drunk, your honor. First time in my whole life."

The judge, being strong for originality, let Bill go without a fine.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE, VERDICT IN CLARK CASE

San Diego Broker Found Guilty of Slaying Former Business Partner.

SAN DIEGO, April 1.—E. [illegible] Clark was found guilty in the first degree of the murder of George E. Schick, local broker by a jury last night. Sentence will be pronounced Wednesday morning.

The jury recommended life imprisonment.

The verdict was given at 9:15 p. m. The case went to the jury shortly after 6 p. m., but soon after that the jurors were taken to dinner and did not return to their room until 7:30.

Clark appeared to be stunned when the verdict, declaring him guilty of murder in the first degree, was read. For some time after that he appeared to be lost in thought and the bailiff whose duty it was to lead Clark to a cell had to tap him twice on the shoulder to get him to stand.

[illegible] six ballots, the first being [illegible] for conviction.

Clark was arrested on [illegible] 18 of last year. The murder charge was brought February 2, after John V. Hendrix, who had been convicted of murder, had declared that Clark, while in the same cell with Hendrix, had confessed to killing Schick and cutting up his body, later putting the bones in a large caldron to destroy traces of the alleged crime.

TRAGEDY OF THE WEATHER.

NEW YORK.—Carl Sproul told a friend that another cloudy day would make him commit suicide. The next day it rained and Sproul shot himself.

LOCO WEED USED FOR CIGARETTES

NEW ORLEANS, April 1.—"Marihuana" or "Mariguana" as some spell it, the everyday "loco weed" that formerly grew wild on the deserts of northern Mexico, now is being cultivated on thousands of acres in that country for sale to addicts of the plant in this country, according to Valdo Santos, arrested here with five pounds of it in his possession. Santos was charged with violating a city ordinance against the sale and possession of the produce.

The weed, which Santos said is being sent from Mexico to agents in all parts of the United States for distribution, is smoked in the form of cigarettes and according to Santos, "the business beats bootlegging because the fines are smaller and I sell it for thirty-five cents a cigarette."

Authorities say the stuff has almost every known effect upon persons who use it. In some it produces a feeling of exhilaration or grandeur, but instances have been known where crazed addicts have committed murder.

POLES DEMOLISH RUSSIAN CHURCH

WARSAW, April 1.—The Russian cathedral of Warsaw, which to the Poles has always stood as a symbol of the hated Russian regime, will have ceased to exist in a few months. The decision to demolish this church was taken a year ago, but influential Russians and some people in art circles who admired the special architectural beauties of the edifice, endeavored to postpone its demolition, counting on a possible change of opinion.

Now, however, the destruction has begun. A commission of artists is dismounting the paintings and mosaics which, together with the marble parts, will be used to decorate the church being constructed at the Citadel as a memorial to all Poles who perished in the fight for independence.

MAN, WIFE, GIRL ARRESTED IN LODI LOVE NEST RAID

Woman Keeps Rival for Husband's Affections in Home for 13 Years.

LODI, April 1.—A love triangle, harmonious in the same home for thirteen years, was revealed here in the arrest of B. Martella and his wife, Mary. The other woman in the case is Miss Angeline Raosta, who posed as the adopted daughter of the couple and who is mother of two children, of whom Martella is accused of being the father. The mother is in a detention home. The children are a girl of 16 months and a boy of 5 months. The charge against the couple is contributing to the delinquency of minor children.

When the three were taken into custody at their home, 309 Stockton street, the young mother said, "I must take my babies with me."

"You mean our babies," said the older woman and legal wife.

Mrs. Martella said:

"Why should there be a rift in our happiness when all we did was to agree on a plan that was best for all? If my husband had left me when he fell in love with Angelene I would have been unhappy. If he had given up Angelene she would have been unhappy. They told me about the situation first, and we all agreed to go on as we were. My husband loved us both. If we have done anything wrong it is only in the eyes of the law. When I die my husband can marry Angelene and that will mage it all right."

The Martellas and Miss Raosta came here from South Mountain, Penn., about 18 months ago and lived in the same house. Martella is 55 and the young woman, a cripple, is 33. Mrs. Martella is 64.

HAYWARD, April 1.—Proving that an unlimited quantity of water could be produced at high pressure, sufficient to fight the severest of fires, an official test of the new twelve-inch water main installed here has been completed by the fire department under the direction of Manuel C. Riggs, chief.

As a means of testing the volume of water from the main, three hoses were attached on C street hydrants and the water turned on at full force. The stream was projected a long distance, according to the official's report. Then two additional hoses were attached on B street hydrants, at points between the reservoir and the C street streams. The pressure of the water did not diminish it was noticed, although the pumping engine was applied at B street.

In addition to affording ample fire protection, the new main will supply larger numbers of residents of Hayward with water.

Autoist Accused of Reckless Driving

According to Walter Alvers, local traffic officer, who arrested Cataldo and swore to a complaint, the driver was rounding a corner at a high speed and was on the wrong side of the street when he struck Mitchell. Paving Is an Issue At Pacific Grove

PACIFIC GROVE, April 1. — Not one whit behind her neighbor city of Carmel in the matter of election issues, Pacific Grove now views with interest the announcements of a bloc of candidates for aldermanic posts in opposition to the proposed ordinance on city zoning. Among those who have announced their candidacy on platforms opposing the zoning plan are: F. M. Basham, W. J. Gould and L. E. M. Cooney.

In their joint official statement on this matter these men say:

"We the undersigned candidates for trusteeships, wish to state to the voters of Pacific Grove that we are opposed to the zoning of this city; that further improvements, such as paving, will only be taken up by us when requested to do so by a large majority of the property owners on said streets; and that we are in favor of a road from Carmel to Pacific Grove and will use our best efforts to have this road completed. We are for economy and a clean administration."

The matter of city zoning will thus occupy the attention of the voters of this city, as well as those of Carmel at the city elections during the coming month.

Veteran Orchardist Of Hollister Dies

HOLLISTER, April 1.—Also A. Smith, 65, long identified with farm and orchard industry in this county, died yesterday after a two weeks' illness. He was born in Massachusetts, and came to California twenty years ago, settling near Hollister. Besides orchard interests, he started here and maintained one of the model poultry farms of the state. He was an active member of the county farm bureau, and one of the biggest champions of the chamber of commerce. The body is to be cremated at Mt. Olivet, San Francisco, by his own wishes. His widow, Mrs. Jesse M. H. Smith, is the only survivor.

Maintenance and National Service

NATURE is both the ally and the enemy of the telephone. One of her forces, electricity, carries the voice of man afar. Others, as flood, tornado or sleet storm, can cripple communications in a large area through their devastating might.

Each pair of telephone wires in the Bell System is a pathway for reciprocal speech. When beaten down by the uncontrollable forces of nature, that pathway to fifteen million telephones is blocked, and none of the nation's voices can pass that way.

Reserve materials must be on hand, that storm damage may be repaired without delay. Adequate funds must be made available so that the cost of restoration may be met.

National telephone service is only possible through an organization capable of handling, on a nation-wide basis, the problem of maintenance as well as of operation.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need to having a sallow complexion, dark rings under the eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards a well known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about the natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

Try This On Your Catarrh

Ordinary methods of treating catarrh are failures simply because they do not reach the affected areas. You've got to heal those raw, tender spots that are hidden away where douche and sprays never touch them. The best and most effective method is to inhale the vapor of "Deo" each night and morning.

Gently heat a spoonful of "Deo" in a tin plate—or use the special vaporizer—and draw in deep breaths of the pleasant, soothing vapor. This penetrates every nook and corner, destroying germs and gradually healing inflamed membranes. Right away you will begin to feel better. Hawking and spitting will lessen and your head will be clearer.

"Deo" is the trade name of Dennis' Eucalyptus Ointment—composed entirely of antiseptic, healing oils. Sold by all good druggists. Tubes or jars, 50c; with Vaporizer, $1. Dennis Eucalyptus Ointment Co., makers, Berkeley, Cal.—Advertisement.

JOINT WORK BY CITIES IS URGED

"There are many things in which Berkeley and Oakland must act in concert," Charles Keeler, secretary of the Berkeley Chamber of Commerce, said in addressing the regular meeting of the Oakland Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Oakland. "We can cooperate in engineering even if we cannot become politically affiliated."

Keeler outlined a few plans for bringing Oakland and Berkeley into better working relations. He suggested that one of the reasons why Berkeley people seem more closely allied to interests across the Bay is the lack of highways communicating with Oakland.

"There should be one street running from the Oakland City Hall to the Berkeley City Hall as an extension of Milvia street. There should be another highway along the foothill residential district. The skyline boulevard should be extended northward across the Claremont hills.

"This last road probably will be built within a short time. It is urgently needed at present as an aid to fire protection and the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county have already ordered a survey that may lead to the construction of this road."

BENEFIT WHIST SCHEDULED.

A whist party for the benefit of sick members of the organization is to be held by Bayside Parlor, N. D. G. W., in the L. O. O. F. building Wednesday evening. The committee in charge includes Eva Sterling, Ethel M. Walbey, Lulu Kitto and Anita Bradley.

Angry Farmer Holds Plane on Damage Charge

His airplane, which made a forced landing in a pasture yesday, held by the irate farmer as security for damages, J. D. Ward, a local aviator, today sought the prosecuting attorney in an effort to regain possession of his machine.

The airplane is at present in the pasture of R. A. Sinclair at the foot of Seventy-first avenue, and is out of commission as a result of Sinclair's removing a number of parts, Ward charges.

Ward and a friend, F. G. Ransome, 1207 East Seventeenth street, were in the machine yesterday when something went wrong and they were compelled to make a forced landing. The machine came down unharmed in Sinclair's lot, and broke a portion of the fence.

Sinclair appeared upon the scene and refused to listen to the explanations of the two flyers, and appropriated parts of the machine in order that it could not be removed.

Then Hall will testify as to the ownership of the machine. He will tell the jurors that he owns the car and that this is one of the reasons he hopped on the running board and took Hudson into custody when he recognized the machine as it was being driven along the street.

Hudson was arraigned before Judge Lincoln S. Church today.

Arrest San Josean For Auto Accident

SAN JOSE, April 1. — Robert O'Hanlon, young San Jose garage man, was arrested by Chief Deputy Sheriff William Condon of Sheriff George W. Lyle's office and County Traffic Officer A. S. Margason here late yesterday as the driver of an automobile who ran down and seriously injured Henry Trfessler, 21-year-old brother of County Traffic Officer Ed Tressler, on the Stevens Creek road near this city late Saturday night, driving away from the scene of the crash without aiding the victim. A charge of failing to stop and render aid following an accident was sworn to against O'Hanlon by County Traffic Officer Tressler, brother of the injured man, before Justice of the Peace Urban A. Sontheimer. O'Hanlon was locked up in the county jail, being later released on $3000 bail.

According to O'Hanlon's story, he became excited after the crash, when he admits, and could not stop his machine immediately. He claims to have driven on some distance and then came back to the scene of the crash, finding only the wrecked motorcycle, the injured man having been taken away. Officers, however, declare that witnesses inform them that O'Hanlon stopped, untangled the wrecked motorcycle from his machine and drove on, leaving Tressler, with a compound fracture of one leg, a badly injured back and severe scalp wounds, lying in a pool of blood on the highway.

Traffic Officer Tressler, the brother of the injured man, states that he will prosecute the case to the limit of the law. The officer [illegible] through his automobile, one running board of which was torn completely off in the crash.

PROPOSED AUTO STADIUM WOULD HOUSE 3060 CARS

Motorist Could Park by Office Door on Twelfth Floor, Claims Inventor.

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—"Elevator's out of commission and it's twelve floors to the office," says Tillie the Toiler.

"Oh, well, let's get back in the old bus and drive up and park just outside the office door," says Mac.

Of course, this is not the conversation of the Tillies and Macs of today, but those of the future may make the speech as stereotyped as:

"Whatcha got on tonight?"

"Oh, nothing."

They will, at any rate, if the invention announced yesterday by W. E. Noffke architect, of 942 South Broadway, comes into popular use, and parking congestion will be solved.

RIGHT AT THE DOOR.

And when handsome lucks drive down of an evening to take future Tillies out to a dance or a show they won't stop at the curb outside the mammoth apartment houses that will then house city populations, but they'll drive right up to the apartment door, if the invention is used.

Mayhap Dick will arrive in a cute little air speedster, landing on the apartment house roof. He grabs the apartment phone and learns that Tillie is pensive tonight and prefers to spin along at a snail's pace of seventy miles or so an hour over moonlit roads in the romantic old-fashioned motor car. They can use her dad's car, she says. He descends one flight to a sort of sub-roof, where row on row of apartment residents' automobiles are stored, finds the right one and drives down to Tillie's apartment.

The autocar stadium is a circular structure, to be built as high as surrounding buildings, sheltering a spiral runway, or ramp, ascending at a grade of less than 2 per cent. On a level with other building floors, parking space is provided for about 144 cars, and from this space a short covered bridge leads into each nearby building. Cars could go up in high gear.

TWO LINES OF CARS.

The main spiral is wide enough to permit passage of two lines of cars, one ascending, the other descending. But, for greater speed in descent, a short-cut is provided in a smaller spiral, which occupies part of the circle left vacant within the large spiral. The smaller runway is too steep for ascent. Automatic guards are provided to prevent any car from running at high speed.

The remaining space around which the large spiral is built is used for "dead" storage.

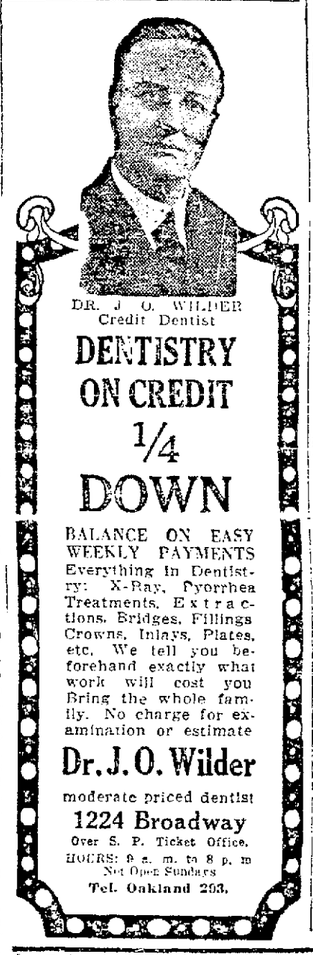

Noffke declares the autocar stadium will link groups of buildings into community centers, pointing out that within access to and through it could be reached a hotel, theater, bank, department store, office building and at least one other structure, and that these could be made to house everything ordinarily necessary to comfortable living or to business.

The stadium would be entirely concrete and steel, with fireproof doors on each floor. Air and light would come through the triangles between the corners formed by the square of buildings and the circular structure within.

If the stadium is built higher than most of the other buildings around it, the top floors may be used for fireproof storage until progress brings more high buildings Noffke pointed out.

Is Your Back Giving Out?

ARE you lame every morning, tired all day; tortured with throbbing backache and sharp stabs of pain? Do you feel weak, nervous and dispirited—utterly worn out and miserable? Then why not look to your kidneys as so many Oakland folks have done? The kidneys, you know, are the blood-filters. Well kidneys do their work thoroughly. But weak, sluggish kidneys allow poisons to accumulate in the system and upset the whole bodily machinery. Then is apt to come backache, rheumatic twinges, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. One feels constatly tired, lame and achy; nervous irritable and depressed. Don't wait! Help your weakened kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Are recommended by many Oakland people. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Oakland Folks Found Relief:

W. McCready, retired dairy man, 2077 53rd Ave., says: "My kidneys became disordered and the first symptom was backache. Sometimes my back felt as though a heavy weight had fallen and crushed it. Steady pains were wearing on me and there was little if any strength in my back. The executive action of my kidneys caused a great deal of bother and the secretions were filled with sediment. I did the right thing in getting Doan's Pills for they put my kidneys in a normal condition and eased the backache."

Mrs. H. Pfenninger, 929 24th St. says: "I didn't feel well and I knew from the different symptoms that the trouble arose from the unhealthy condition of my kidneys. My back was weak and any little work around the house taxed my strength. My back ached constantly and I was never free from nervousness. I felt tired and my kidneys were disordered. Finally I gave Doan's Pills a trial and the first box relieved me. After finishing the second box of Doan's I was rid of every sign of kidney complaint."

C. H. Akins, retired miner, 2228 Myrtle St., says: "I had severe kidney trouble. Pains like the stab of a knife cut across my kidneys. Mornings, the muscles of my back were so lame, stiff and drawn I couldn't stir around. The secretions didn't pass often enough. I used Doan's Pills and it was wonderful what they did for me. My back stopped aching and my kidneys were flushed and put in good working order. Doan's made a well man of me."

Every Druggist has Doan's. 60c a box.

TIMES DO CHANGE

Folks: The world is sure going ahead, and we are going right along with it. In the pre-automobile days Oakland's cops (they were'nt called speed cops then) called nine miles an hour reckless driving. Now with the automobile 20 is too slow for the maniacs. We don't date back to the eight-mile period. Just eighty years ago we made our small beginning, but by a policy of small profits and quick turnover we have grown to our present sizeable proportions. We expect to continue to grow, and will do it by continuing the same underselling policy.

OPIUM GROWERS DEFY ALL LAW

SHANGHAI, April 1.—Life of foreigners in the far off Chinese province of Sze-Chuan is equally far from being secure. Respect for the law or anything else is not known there, and the last few years have been given over to a continual warfare between the Federal and Confederate armies which includes not only pitched battles, killing of innocent people, captures and abductions, but also a long record of bribery and corruption among the army and officials on both sides.

A British official who has recently come to Shanghai from this province says that never before has Sze-Chuan been in such a lawless state. The roads, he says, are in the hands of brigands, who are organized into regular stations, with definite charges on each person which they levy on all those who wish to pass unmolested.

"The robber gangs fight continually with the provincial troops and military escort has been denied foreign travellers," this official says, "the excuse being put forward that no escort could possibly be large enough to be effective.

"Opium is growing all along the banks of the river from Suifu to Changtu, and the magistrates are said to have compelled farmers to grow a certain amount of opium and pay taxes on it."

Poison Sold As Tea Kills Many Russians

RIGA, April 1.—Peasants in Russia are dying by the score as a result of drinking a concoction brewed from herbs sold to them as "tea." The price of genuine tea is prohibitive no wfor the ordinary peasant and there is a great demand for substitutes. Consequently these deadly herbs find a ready market. If they are steeped only a short time they are comparatively harmless, but when allowed to stand they develop a poison that causes intense agony.

University High Turns Out in Rags For Old Clo' Day

Despite dubious comments by the faculty the institution of "Old Clothes Day," which was to have been suppressed, blossomed forth on schedule, though certain rules were agreed upon beforehand, and a censorship committee kept vigilant watch for possible infractions.

No boys were reported in girls' clothing. No girls were seen in boys' clothing. Comic or extravagant clothes were barred. The promise of "decorum" was rigidly kept, so that the annual institution might survive.

An elaborate program was held by the Girls' League, with a luncheon for graduates at the cafeteria. A skit was performed by three former University high school dramatists, Eloise Kesler, Madeline Cornell and Susanna McCann. The Cecelian Trio furnished instrumental music.

The faculty at University assert that the "Old Clothes Day" observance, under the new rules, seems satisfactory.

PATRIOTIC LOTTERY.

Branch Tax Office Opens at City Hall

The city's tax-collecting machinery was set up on the ground floor of the city hall, Washington street entrance, today.

In conformity with the recent resolve of the city officials against overcrowding the elevators, Cashier E. R. Blote and a staff moved into the temporary offices this morning and started the work which must be finished by April 28, when taxes become delinquent. A special police guard is furnished by the chief of police.

Business will be slack at the ne woffice for a week or two, according to Blote, who expects the usual last-hour rush to begin at its usual time.

First White Baby Of N. Y. Gets Tablet

NEW YORK, April 1.—The stork's first visit to Manhattan Island bearing a white child is to be commemorated with a bronze table in the Town Hall. The table will bear the youngster's name, Jean Vinge, and that of his mother, Arlantje Cuvillie Vinge.

Historians are just a little hazy as to the exact date of the stork's visit. Some place it in 1614, while others assert it was 1623. that Jean Vinge was the first child born on Manhattan, ther no doubt.

The Vinge home was located a small farm at about the place where Wall and Pearl streets now cross.

READ "THE STORY OF THE BIBLE," IN OAKLAND TRIBUNE

Latest Van Loon Masterpiece, Dramatic, Forceful, Appears Sunday, April 6.

Next Sunday The TRIBUNE will present the greatest newspaper feature ever offered.

At that time will begin publication of Hendrik Van Loon's masterpiece, "THE STORY OF THE BIBLE," written by a man who has awarded a gold medal by the American Library Association for outstanding contribution to American literature.

This fascinating story of the most famous book in the world, illustrated by the author's own drawings, starts with the Jews leaving Armenia and traces the progress of that most interesting people down to the time of the sublime tragedy at Golgotha.

"From Armageddon to Gethsemane, from the downfall of Solomon's empire to the conquest of Rome by Christianity, from Moses leading the Israelites out of bondage to Christ leading the world out of darkness—the "STORY OF THE BIBLE" covers the broad field of the Bible itself.

ADM OF WRITTR.

Written in simple, direct language, Van Loon's book avoids all controversial matters and carries the reader through the Old and New Testaments with lively interest.

Of his work Van Loon says: "I am not trying to re-write the Bible or give a modern version of it. I am trying to induce people to read the Bible."

Van Loon begins his book as follows:

"The pyramids were a thousand years old.

"Babylon and Nineveh had become the centers of vast empires.

"The valleys of the Nile, Euphrates and Tigris were filled with swarming masses of busy people, when a small tribe of desert wanderers * * * left their home in the Arabian desert and traveled northward.

"In time to come these wanderers were to be known as the Jews.

"Centuries later they gave us the most important of all our books, the Bible.

WANDERING OF JEWS.

The "Story of the Bible" then tells how the Bible came to be written; the story of creation as accepted by the ancients; the tale of Jewish slavery in Egypt; the details of how Moses delivered the chosen people from bondage; the founding of the Jewish nation, which rose to its greatest influence under Solomon; the story of Ruth, the reign of King Solomon; the downfall of the Jewish nation and their exile to Babylon, where they were freed by the Persians, of the attempts to restore the glory of Jerusalem and of the rebuilding of the Holy Temple.

The story of the Prophets is also told; the conquest of the Jews by Alexander the Great of Macedon; the Jews under the Maccabees, the conquest of Jerusalem by the Romans, the birth of Jesus the career of John the Baptist; Jesus teaches the brotherhood of man, the persecution of Jesus and his ultimate crucifixion; the work of the twelve disciples; the beginning of the Christianization of Rome by Paul, Peter and the early martyrs and ... of Rome by Christianity.

UNUSUAL NEWS OFFERING.

Never has a newspaper offered such a feature as this to its readers.

Van Loon's "Story of Mankind," which was published in The TRIBUNE, was a best seller. It took the country by storm.

Van Loon's "STORY OF THE BIBLE" is even greater and more popular. It has aroused nation-wide interest. It has doubled interest in the Bible and has stimulated thought and discussion of its teachings.

And besides all that it is a very human, readable, dramatic document which one dislikes to lay aside once they have started reading it.

"THE STORY OF THE BIBLE" will begin publication in The TRIBUNE Sunday Magazine on April 6. Start reading it in the first issue.

HONDURAN PEOPLE TURNING SUPPORT TO STATE TROOPS

Government Forces Making Final Effort to Crush the Ferrera Faction.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK, April 1.—The de facto government of Honduras is making an eleventh-hour attempt to crush the revolutionary forces, which last week were reported to have gained control over the entire country with the sole exception of Tegucigalapa, the capital city. Navy despatches today from the cruiser Milwaukee, at Amapala, said many of the communities which had declared in favor of the Ferrera faction now had switched allegiance to the government, and troops from those centers were being mobilized for an attack on the Ferrera forces surrounding Tegucigalapa.

The fight for control of Tegucigalapa was started by Ferrera more than a week ago, and although the battle was renewed each day the revolutionists and government forces in withstanding than exchange ground on alternating engagements. Success of the government forces in withstanding the attacks on the city has caused surprise among Washington government authorities and apparently heartened the de facto ministers to make a concerted movement for support throughout the country.

Despatches today said troops from the communities formerly in control of the revolutionists were being assembled at Amapala and would be sent to Tegucigalpa to attack the Ferrera forces from the rear.

The Atmosphere of Home

When an author writes a story of the Hopi Indians, if possible, he spends time amongst them to get atmosphere.

"What is home without a mother," has become a keepsake phrase of literature and song.

Mother is part of the atmosphere of home.

We speak of an individual having personality.

It makes him noticeable, remembered, criticised, or praised, as he appeals to our standards.

He has that, without which, he would be only one of a crowd.

Atmosphere is that same subtle something, contributed to by everything connected with it, that pulls a home out of a crowd of houses.

There can be an atmosphere of home in a two-room apartment, and there can be an entire lack of it in a mansion.

It cannot therefore be just price, or lavishness.

"Better Homes" does not mean expensive furniture.

It means taste, comfort and satisfaction.

All these contribute to atmosphere.

In this contributory sense, we would like a place among you.

We want to help you build atmosphere in your home, in the doing of which, we will be building atmosphere in our institution.

DAUGHERTY ACCUSED OF HALTING LAND TRIALS

M'KELLAR MOVE TO OUST MELLON LAID ON TABLE

Resolution Buffeted by Defenders of Secretary During Debate.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A resolution designed to oust Secretary Mellon from office on technical legal grounds launched last Friday by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, bobbed up in the senate yesterday only to land on the table with no one demanding action upon it.

It was buffeted severely by Mellon's Republican defenders before being stranded, with Senator McKellar's the only voice urging it on its way. Whether it will be refloated later is a matter of dispute among senate Democratic chieftains, who conferred during the debate on the wisdom of pressing it, while Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who returned to Washington after several days' absence, disclaimed responsibility for the move initiated by the Tennessee senator.

Senator McKellar declared he was not charging Mellon with any wrongdoing or failure, but merely insisting upon enforcement of old statutes forbidding the appointment as federal fiscal officers of men "interested or concerned" in the carrying on of commercial enterprises.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, who led the defenders, asserted from personal knowledge that Mellon had divested himself of every commercial and industrial connection that could be questioned in any way before he went to the treasury.

MELLON CORPORATIONS.

The names of the "Mellon companies" were flung about in general terms during the senate debate. Before the special session committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, however, the intimate tax affairs of the Gulf Oil corporation, in which Mellon is a minority stockholder, were aired in detail. Sparks flew in the committee room between Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, director of the inquiry, and Senator Ernst, Republican, Kentucky, who sprang to the defense of the treasury head when Senator Couzens started a line of inquiry that the Kentucky senator insisted looked like the committee was "after Mellon."

The McKellar resolution was the last thing before the senate when it adjourned Friday, and the instant it was reproduced for disposition Senator Reed plunged into a detailed statement of the interests Mellon had at the time he was tendered a cabinet post by President Harding.

McKELLAR ANSWERS REED.

Senator Reed said Secretary Mellon had stripped himself of any direct connection with the Overholt distillery company and that "not a quart had been sold or stolen" from the Overholt warehouses. Mellon, by an appeal to the company officers, since he had no authority, had prevented a sale of this liquor for shipment to England because of his fear that it might be "bootlegged" back again, Senator Reed added.

Senator McKellar replied to Senator Reed by reciting legal precedents and insisting that regardless of his efforts to free himself, Secretary Mellon, as admitted on the floor in connection with his present stockholdings, was within the purview of the statutory prohibition of "direct or indirect interest or concern" in industrial or commercial enterprises. He was answered from various angles by Senators Edge of New Jersey and Fess, Ohio, Republicans.

That seemed to exhaust the senate's desire to talk about the resolution, and as no one had moved for its immediate consideration or any other disposition, it retired to the calendar automatically, joining a host of other matters that sleep there "on call." Senator McKellar denied any plan of withdrawing it, but added he did not know when he would attempt to bring it to a vote.

Before the session ended, Senator Couzens decided to call upon Secretary Mellon to furnish the committee a list of all companies in which he is interested.

QUIZ WITNESS ALLEGES CASES WERE FIXED UP

Proceedings Against Miller Bros. in Oklahoma Settled by Fines Payment.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Wayne Wilson, vice-president of the Motorcar Abstract company of New York, denied today before the Wheeler-Brookhart committee that he had "offered" J. Van Vechten Olcott, a federal judgeship for $35,000. Olcott testified last week that Wilson had made the offer.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Harry M. Daugherty's part in stopping trial of the Miller brothers' Indian land fraud case in Oklahoma in the spring of 1921 was described today to the Senate Daugherty investigating committee by H. M. Peck, former United States attorney of the Western Oklahoma district.

The case involved 10,000 acres valued at $50 an acre, Peck said. When it was ready for trial at Guthrie, in May, 1921, he added, a "personal" letter from Attorney-General Daugherty directed that a continuance be taken to the fall term of court.

Peck described a request for his resignation received from Daugherty in September, 1921, and his subsequent re-employment as a special prosecutor for the government. He referred the committee to Senator Harreld of Oklahoma as to the reasons for this re-employment.

Peck explained that the case referred to was instituted against George L. Miller and four associates, charged with defrauding Oklahoma Indians of land. Indictments had been returned against the Miller brothers in 1920, Peck said, and they were charged with organizing a campaign to get the lands away from Indians as soon as the Department of the Interior gave each tribesman his allotment.

The criminal cases ended in pleas of guilty and fines, the Department of Justice specifically directing that course to be taken, the witness said, but he added that no civil actions to recover the lands had been inaugurated, and that the Miller brothers still had them.

Peck said that in four years' experience as United States attorney he had never known of another case in which the attorney took such personal interest. Acceptance of the guilty plea in the criminal cases was decided on, the witness said, despite his recommendations that "penitentiary sentences" be demanded.

The committee indicated it would get from files of the Department of Justice and the United States attorney-general's office in Oklahoma copies of the letters and messages in this case bearing Daugherty's signature.

ROOSEVELT SAYS HE WAS OPPOSED TO OIL TRANSFERS

Letter From Assistant Secretary of Navy Denies Part in Arranging Leases.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—During discussion in the senate on a resolution by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, calling for the resignation of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, a letter from Roosevelt to state Senator William W. Campbell of New York was read into the record. Reciting the assistant secretary's connection with the oil reserves, it declared he had opposed their transfer to the interior department and was ignorant of the leases which ensued until they had been announced publicly. Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York, also presented a letter from Rear Admiral Robert S. Griffin, retired, a leader of the anti-leasists in the department, confirming Roosevelt's statement of the facts.

ROOSEVELT EXPLAINS.

Roosevelt's letter to Campbell says:

"My connection with the oil leases is briefly as follows:

"Shortly after President Harding's induction into office, Secretary Denby sent me a copy of a proposed executive order transferring the naval oil reserves to the department of the interior without recourse. He sent at the same time a copy to the bureau of engineering. After getting my copy of the order, I asked Admiral Griffin, who was then chief of that bureau, and who had the oil under his particular care, to talk it over with me. I knew very little of the matter, but Griffin felt very strongly that this transfer would be a mistake. After thinking the matter over, I decided he was probably right.

"My grounds for coming to this conclusion were that the interior department has as its general mission the development of the resources of the United States, whereas the oil lands belonging to the navy should not be developed except in a case of real necessity, and that, therefore, there would be a conflict of ideas. I went to the secretary and urged that the lands be not transferred to the interior department. He informed me that my protest in the matter was made too late, because the transfer had already been agreed to by the president, Fall and himself. After this I went back and discussed the entire situation with Griffin and certain other officers. It occurred to me that if we could get an amendment to the original order for transfer, making it a necessity for the interior department to gain the consent of the navy department before leasing or drilling was undertaken, we could guard the lands against improper exploitation. A number of amendments with this end in view were submitted to me. I took them to the secretary and discussed them with him. After considerable discussion he agreed to a modified form of one of them. He told me to take it to Secretary Fall and that if I could get him to agree to this amendment, it would be all right with him. I took the amendment to Secretary Fall who agreed to it.

GAVE NAVY SUPERVISION.

"I then took it to the White House for signature. This amendment read as follows:

"'But no general policy as to drilling or reserving lands located in a naval reserve shall be changed or adopted except upon consultation and in co-operation with the secretary or acting secretary of the navy.'

"You can see that this reserves to the navy supervision over the oil reserves. It was on account of this amendment that all of the leases under discussion by the senate at this time were countersigned by Secretary Denby. They could not have been accomplished without the O. K. of this department.

"At this point my active participation in the entire matter ceased. It so happened that I was not consulted on any of the oil leases. I did not know they were under contemplation until after they were signed. With reference to the Teapot Dome lease in particular I did not know there was a plan on foot to lease Teapot Dome. I did not know Sinclair was interested in any of the leases. I heard of them only after they had been made to the general public.

CONNECTION WITH SINCLAIR.

"Insofar as my connection with the Sinclair company goes, it is as follows: I was among the group of bankers who were interested in its original formation. I was a director of the company until the outbreak of the war in 1917, when I resigned. My last stock in the company was sold during the war, not later than 1918. I am inclined to think in 1917. My wife bought one thousand shares of Sinclair stock, however, in 1920, but sold them at a loss some short time before the leases with the navy department were signed.

"Merely parenthetically, I have engaged in no business of any kind since the war and my entrance into politics, and have, therefore, made no money of any kind in business.

"All of the above is in the hearings—perhaps not quite in such ample form as I have given it to you and fairly well scattered over a couple of days.

"You may show this letter to anyone you wish to show it to, but do not let it get into the press, because I don't want, at this time, to look as if I were trying to 'run out' on Secretary Denby in his time of trouble."

Mail Carrier Service Opens in Martinez

MARTINEZ, April 1.—Martinez' long sought mail delivery service was instituted today with three carriers, Louis J. Bartolomei, Frank McNamara and William G. Gwaltney. The service is instituted on the basis of village delivery, which, postal authorities promise will soon be advanced to city delivery status.

Institution of the service comes as the result of agitation started several years ago by the Chamber of Commerce and follows two unsuccessful attempts to have it established.

Coolidge Seeks '$75,000 Man' for Attorney General

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—President Coolidge is approaching a decision with respect to a successor to Harry M. Daugherty as attorney general and indications were given today after the executive had conferred again with Senator Pepper, Republican, that the selection would be made within two days.

The President has ascertained which of those under consideration would accept the place if it were offered them and now is engaged in choosing among them. The list of eligibles is understood to contain only names of those who have been mentioned in the newspaper dispatches since Daugherty resigned last Friday at the President's request.

The President told visitors today that he had not reached a decision, but expected to make an announcement shortly. He added that he was trying to find a $75,000 or $100,000 man to take a place where the compensation was $12,000 "and an automobile."

Geographical considerations are not being given prime importance by the President, who does not regard it as a matter of great consideration, whether a cabinet member on returning home goes to Florida, Oregon, the Middle West or to New England. The primary consideration, he feels is to obtain a man of character and ability.

cago, who in urn elected the national committeeman.

"That was about $5000 per delegate," Senator Stanfield observed, and the witness said it was one of the bitterest fights the state had ever known.

The witness recalled under further questioning that the late A. T. Hert of Kentucky was also in the "inner councils," at Chicago, and Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, recalled that he, too, had been mentioned for the interior portfolio.

DID NOT SEE SINCLAIR IN CHICAGO.

Dyche said Harry F. Sinclair took no part, so far as he knew, in the contest for delegates to Chicago, nor did he see him at the convention.

"Absolutely not," Dyche said, when Senator Spencer asked if any of the $105,000 Hamon campaign fund was spent for bribery or corruption.

"Most of the sum," he added, "went to workers and getting out the vote in organization matters."

The committee adjourned the hearing until tomorrow, but no session will be held then unless William Boyce Thompson, formerly of the Republican national committee, reaches Washington. A new subpoena forwith has been issued, but process servers have been unable to serve it.

Reappointment of Aronovici Refused

RICHMOND, April 1.—Having dismissed Dr. Carol Aronovici as city planning expert, the city council last night refused a request of the city planning commission to reconsider the action. A letter addressed to the council by W. T. Helms, secretary of the city planning commission, stated Dr. Aronovici's services were indispensible to the city, and that he had spent at least one day a week outlining civic improvements for which he received $50 a month.

The furniture in the directors' room of the Boscon Trade School was made entirely by the students.

EFFORT TO KIDNAP STOKES CHILDREN

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

DENVER, April 1.—Mystery surrounded an alleged attempt to kidnap Muriel, 8, and Jimmy, 9, the two children of Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes of this city, who recently won a separation suit from her wealthy husband, W. E. D. Stokes, following a sensational airing of the couple's marital differences in a New York court.

According to reports to the police, a stranger appeared at the school where the Stokes children are pupils and asked that Muriel and Jimmy be identified for him. He then suddenly disappeared.

Police are said to have questioned a man who came here recently from New York, but he was released.

Both Muriel and Jimmy are accompanied to and from school by an armed guard and it is believed the presence of this guard prevented the children being taken away.

Under the terms of the separation suit Mrs. Stokes was granted the custody of the children, with the provision that Stokes would be privileged to come to Denver at any time to visit them.

SOURCES OF WATER TOLD

BERKELEY, April 1. — With the return of Arthur P. Davis, chief engineer of the East Bay Municipal Utilities district, from the east April 10, active work will be started in the investigation of various sources of water supply for this side of the bay, according to a statement made last night by Marston Campbell, president of the district.

Speaking at a session of the Berkeley Civic Forum held at the city hall, Campbell declared that the investigation of the various sources under consideration will proceed simultaneously, and that a report of the engineers working on the project may be expected at a comparatively "early date." Expenses for the investigation, he stated, are included in the budget of the utility board for the coming fiscal year.

POSSIBLE SOURCES TOLD.

Possible sources enumerated by Campbell were as follows: Iron Canyon or upper Sacramento river, McCloud, American, Mokelumne, Stanislaus and Eel rivers and Hetch Hetchy.

"On all of these sources the work will be actively taken up as soon as Mr. Davis arrives here from the east, which will be on or about April 10," said Campbell. "It is necessary that these investigations be made that each source be compared as to quantity, cost and time of construction, together with title to lands and water. The results of all of these investigations will be public property and the directors of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District will have full and complete information before they are asked to make the final decision. It is the recommendation of the chief engineer of the district that to conserve time the investigation of these sources be conducted simultaneously. There is a large amount of very valuable data already secured and compiled on all of these proposed sources, which with additional field work will ma-

MACHINE IS RUM SLUETH

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Heralded as much more effective than the "truth detector," San Francisco physicians and police experimented today with the "booze detector," known as the metabular.

The new machine, to be used here in the campaign against drunken automobile drivers, determines the quantity of oxygen required by the "suspect," and thus reveals the amount of "home brew" or "bottled in bond" which has been consumed. According to Dr. O. W. Ginsburg, inventor of the metabular, the degree of intoxication is registered by the demand in the system for oxygen to offset the consumption of heat, caused by the alcohol.

By feeding pure oxygen through a nozzle the exact degree of intoxication may be determined, physicians contended today.

marriage he told his wife that he was making but $75 a month and did not think they should marry, but that she urged it, saying that she was making $125 and that the combined salaries would be sufficient.

The husband declared that after he had worked from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. for many months he had to perform much of the housework and then do his bookkeeping in the evening. For a long time he was compelled to get his own breakfast because his wife was abed. She complained almost every morning of being too ill to get up, he said, but was always well enough in the evenings to remain out until midnight and after.

Campfire Girls Cook for Hungry Scout Pioneers

There is little danger of Piedmont's Scouts going hungry during their training periods. Members of O Wa Ki Ya campfire of the Piedmont Camp Fire Girls journeyed Saturday to Camp Scouting in upper Piedmont, which is the week-end camp site of that city's Scout council, and spent the morning preparing dinner for some thirty or more Boy Scouts who were passing their tests and examinations for leadership of the Boy Pioneers. The girls under the leadership of Miss Rhea Rupert, Piedmont Camp Fire executive, and Miss Charlotte Johnson, Camp Fire guardian, prepared varied and palatable dishes for the Boy Scouts and their leader, Scout Executive George Keneipp. In so doing they not only fed a host of hungry prospective boy pioneer leaders, but earned camp fire cooking honors for themselves.

Prominent Musicians Are Named in Divorce Trial

Names of persons prominent musically were brought into the hearing of the divorce suit of Margaret Bradley Elliott against Roy H. Elliott today in Superior Judge T. W. Harris' court when Elliott charged that his wife, who is the organist at a local temple, a daughter of Dr. J. Bradley and well known in the music world of the bay cities, had declared to her that her marriage to him was a mistake. She said, the husband charged, that she should have married Antonio de Grassi, violinist, or Fenner Chamberlain.

Elliott's interpretation of his wife's remarks led to the belief that she indicated that "should have" also meant "could have," and further "would have" if Elliott had not appeared in her life.

One of Mrs. Elliott's objections was to her husband's press agent ideas, according to her testimony. She said he urged her to lie about the persons from whom she had received musical instructions. In support of this contention, she introduced a letter reading in part:

"Cater to the public demand,, even if you have to lie to them. It is easy to fool them. After you have started, lying is easier than telling the truth."

Mrs. Elliott, in her testimony, made numerous sensational allegations. These included that her husband spanked her baby, at the same time holding its mouth closed. She said that Dr. Bradley urged him not to, as this was a great strain on the child's heart.

Physical violence against her was also charged by Mrs. Bradley, who said that once her husband choked her into unconsciousness the while he stuffed a sheet into her mouth to stifle her cries.

Elliott was cool and indifferent to her for long periods at a time, said his wife, who charged that once he told her to suffer the torments of the damned, when she asked him to procure medicine to alleviate her sufferings.

HUSBAND GIES DETAILS.

Mrs. Elliott's remarks concerning De Grassi and Chamberlain were discussed in detail by Elliott today when he took the stand. He declared that he and his wife were standing at Fourteenth and Broadway when the violinist drove by in an expensive automobile. According to Elliott his wife said:

"There goes de Grassi. I could have married him and if I had I would have been riding in an automobile and would have been among my social equals, which I am not now."

In discussing Chamberlain Mrs. Elliott said, according to her husband," I could have married Fenner Chamberlain. He is heir to the Miller & Lux estate. I would had had a life of ease and luxury if I had married him."

Elliott said that prior to their

WATER SOURCES FOR EASTBAY TO BE INVESTIGATED

terially aid the engineers in their investigations so that a conclusion ought to be arrived at within a short period of time."

SOLUTION IS SOUGHT.

City Manager John N. Edy, who presided at the meeting, said that the acquisition of a source of water supply is "the one big question which must be solved in a very few months," and that citizens and officials alike must work toward its solution. In the discussion which followed Campbell's talk, City Manager Edy said that Berkeley was the first city in which he ever lived which did not own its own water supply, and, that recent difficulties in attempting to extend water mains in the interests of the welfare of the city developed embarrassments which he had never contemplated for a municipality.

"I am convinced that a city like Berkeley in order to maintain its identity and individuality and to develop in a well-rounded way ought to produce something—engage in some industry—in addition to having beautiful homes and other attractions," he said. "If it does not assert itself it will become a hanger-on, and is likely to become attached to something else—a condition which I have discovered is not a popular prospect."

ASSURANCE IS ASKED.

In the discussion of the evening, B. Greenberg, 2414 Telegraph avenue, demanded to know what assurance people of the Eastbay would have of cheaper water under municipal ownership, and declared that in the experience of the people of Berkeley municipal ownership of its garbage system had resulted in advanced rates.

City Manager Edy declared that a return to the 50 cent garbage rate from the 75 cents now charged would be effected with the beginning of the new fiscal year.

He stated that a ten per cent reduction had been effected in the operating costs of the garbage department, and that he hoped for decreased rates to the taxpayers.

"I do not know the reason for the 50-cent rate as it was in effect when I assumed my position," said Edy.

CO-OPERATION IS URGED.

Senator William Kehoe, who participated in the discussion, urged co-operation of the Eastbay with San Francisco in the development of Hetch Hetchy [illegible] adequate water supply for the future.

"It seems to me that it is nothing but sound business to co-operate with San Francisco in order to reduce the expense of both communities," he declared. He emphatically urged, however, that the growth of population for the future be not underestimated, as he stated that such a mistake would be costly.

Dr. George Walford, president of the forum, was in charge of the business session, which followed the discussion at which a committee of five was named to keep the organization in close touch with the work of the utility board. An invitation was also ordered extended to City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy of San Francisco to address the forum on the Hetch Hetchy project in the near future. About 50 persons were present at last night's meeting.

EXPLAINED BY CAMPBELL.

In discussing the various sources of supply available for the Eastbay, President Campbell explained the plan sponsored by him for bringing Hetch Hetchy water to the Eastbay should that source be decided upon. In discussing the sources to be investigated, Campbell said:

"The East Bay Utility District have, in their budget for the coming fiscal year, made provision for the investigation of the various possible sources of water supply for the Eastbay district. Among these are the following: Iron Canyon, or Upper Sacramento, which [illegible] States government, is the largest project in the state, with a total production, from United States figures, of four billion gallons a day, and ten times the future capacity of Hetch Hetchy enlarged, and is directly related to the development of central and northern California by irrigation, domestic supply and production of enormous quantity of power, the flood control of the Sacramento river. Of course, this would require cooperation between the United States government, the State, the army engineers, irrigation districts and the East Bay Utility District. This, however, may present complications.

"The McCloud river with its Mt. Shasta water shed, is a potential source of unfailing large quantity of water. The American, Mokelumne and Stanislaus are subject to great development and are close to the Eastbay.

"The Eel river represents a great conservation project as its waters are not susceptible to irrigation in the area naturally tributary and involves little or no complications with irrigation interests. And to these should be added Hetch Hetchy which is now under investigation and such other sources as warrant similar action."

FORGERY SHOCK FATAL.

CHICAGO—F. M. Wilson, a bank official, dropped dead when he learned his son had committed forgery.

She Takes Airplaned Ride and Is Made Member of Indian Tribe.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Mrs. Margaret MacCartney, 96 years old, of St. Paul, Minn., has had to live nearly a hundred years to realize two of her fondest "youth dreams" of girlhood days.

She wanted to fly as a mortal before taking on those angel wings and the next greatest thriller, she thought, when a little girl, would be her adoption by a tribe of real Indians. And it is a striking coincidence that she never lost those desires of her younger life any more than she did those girlish curls which she wears to this day, just as she did ninety-years ago.

If she had been a boy maybe she would have been contented with the ordinary juvenile ambition to become a locomotive engineer or a street car conductor, she says, in some measure of jest, adding "the female of the race, you know, has been more progressive in the last generation."

Ruth Law, famous aviatrix, last summer gratified Grandma MacCartney's desire to ride the air, and a month later the nonogenarian, while climbing the Rocky Mountains in Glacier National Park, came prominently before the eyes of the Blackfeet Indians. A party of young squaws picking berries on the mountain slops saw her, and they were so amazed by the "agility of age" that they cited her. Any Indian woman they had even known as old as she were so fat and indolent they always remained in the tepee lodge, where their activities consisted of the small duties they could perform there in a sedentary way.

Mrs. MacCartney recently got word she is the first white woman adopted into the "Squaw Sorority" of the Glacier Park tribe of Nature's Red-faced Women. Mrs. MacCartney is so glad her cheeks are naturally rosy, because, she says, her early-day impressions of painted women are so indelible she otherwise would "just have to forego the honor," if the Indians' confirmatory ceremonial called for a scarlet glow of artificiality. "I am so happy to hear the Indian women have made such progress that they leave this custom of paint smearing to the Indian warriors," she said. "Well, I didn't have to die to fly, although in the early days people used to think none but angels could take a winged journey. I guess, too, it was better that the Indians did not carry me off as a little girl, but waited until I was nearly a hundred years old to adopt me."

Mrs. MacCartney was born in the north of Ireland in 1825, and she is Scotch-Irish. She came to American seventy-seven years ago. She lived eleven years in New York and traveled to St. Paul in an ox-cart. She was one of the first persons to travel over James J. Hill's Great Northern Railways when it was finished to Seattle. She lived eleven years in Seattle and returned to St. Paul, where in recent years she has made her home with a daughter, Mrs. G. C. Schulz.

The old lady has no rule for promoting longevity except to emphasize that the "mind rules the body. If you want to live a long time you must keep up an interest in current affairs of life," she says.

Four Candidates in Stockton Election

STOCKTON, April 1.—B. S. Crittenden of Tracy and George Dean of this city are not to have things all their own way in seeking re-election. Thomas H. Loutitt, young attorney of Stockton, and Frank S. Young Loutitt is a graduate of the University of California. Israel, former high school teacher of this city, has been a prominent farmer at Linden for years.

WOODLAND VOTES SCHOOL BONDS

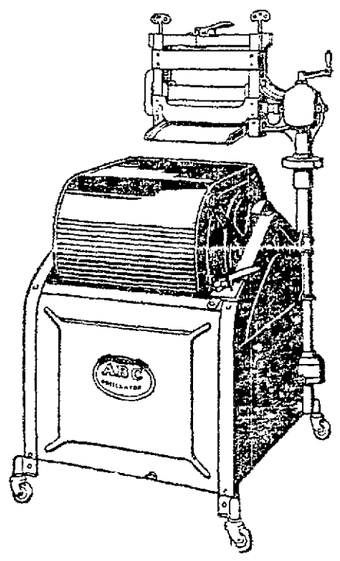

WOODLAND, April 1.—By a vote of 1268 to 868 the electors of the Woodland high school district voted $250,000 bonds to be used in reconstructing the Woodland High school, destroyed by fire early last January. The country districts defeated the bonds by a two to one vote, but Woodland and environs overcame the country vote, giving the bonds 176 votes to spare over the two-thirds vote required for their passage. The trustees plan to spend all told about $400,000 on the new structure. Work will begin immediately after the sale of the bonds.

BETTER HOMES FETE ARRANGED BY COMMITTEE

Oakland Will Celebrate Big Week in Bay; Local Woman Heads Activities.

"The future of America will be shaped in a large measure by the character of its homes," said Mrs. Minna McCauley, chairman of Oakland's Better Homes Week committee which will direct the demonstration Week activities May 11-18 here.

Mrs. McCauley, prominent in the club and civic life of Oakland, was appointed chairman of Better Homes Week by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. She is being assisted by an executive committee comprising Mrs. Norman De Vaux, Mrs. H. B. Warner, R. C. Bitterman, president of the Oakland Advertising Club; E. M. Tilden, president of the Builders Exchange of Alameda county; I. H. Spiro, president of the Merchants' Exchange; Willard W. White, president of the Oakland Real Estate Board; Oliver Kehrlein, Otto H. Fischer, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Harry G. Williams, city auditor and Arthur P. Caldwell of the Oakland Bank.

Last year Oakland was given honorable mention among the first twenty-eight cities in America, participating in Better Homes demonstration. This year Oakland is expected to get the first prize offered by the National Association of Better Homes of $500.

The people of Better Homes Week is set forth in this 8-point program:

1—To demonstrate the advantage of thrift in home ownership.

2—To overcome the present shortage of homes. America needs at least 500,000 new dwellings.

3—To make sweet and wholesome home life available to all.

4—To assist and encourage home-makers and home-builders.

5—To improve home environment, thereby helping to build character.

7—To stimulate sensible and appropriate purchasing for home improvement.

Swedish Monarch Decorates Oakland Man for Services

E. H. Frisell of this city has been decorated with the badge of the Order of Vasa by the King of Sweden for distinguished services for the benefit and advancement of the Swedish people in this country. Frisell is the proprietor of a local steel plant.

He is a graduate of the University of Stockholm and has been particularly active on the Pacific Coast in the effort of the American-Scandinavian Foundation, whose headquarters are in New York, to establish a professorship of Scandinavian literature in the University of California.

The home body yearly gives 20 fellowships to scholars of the United States and Sweden, who exchange and study in the principal universities of the two countries. These scholars are men who are graduates of some years' standing and have mature knowledge of their various specialties and are thus accepted more as faculty members than as of the student body.

California Middies Will Meet Wilbur

SPECIAL BY WIRE TO THE TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—All Californians who are enrolled at the Annapolis naval academy will have an opportunity of meeting Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur at the meeting of the California State Society here April 22.

The new secretary will be the guest of honor, and it is anticipated that all members of the California congressional delegation will be present. The plan is for each member of the delegation to invite his present appointees at the naval academy, so that the "middies" will have an opportunity of meeting their chief.

The California State Society, composed of Californians now stationed in Washington, has two cabinet officers on its membership rolls—Wilbur and Secretary of Commerce Hoover. Assistant Secretary of Labor Henning, whose home is in San Diego, and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt of Los Angeles, an assistant attorney general, also are members.

The entire population of Wurttemberg is about two and a half million.

Son of Lord Is Labor Candidate

WINDSOR, England, April 1.—The son of Lord Athermarle, the Hon. Arnold Keppel, has signified his intention of standing as a Labor candidate for this division at the next general election.

The sitting member for the division is A. A. Somerville, a Conservative, and while the Labor candidate was being educated at Eton Somerville acted as one of his tutors.

Cheaper Paper Francs Still Legal

PARIS, April 1.—Paper francs are still legal currency for the payment of rent despite their depreciation, French courts have ruled. In 1870 a landlord introduced into a long term lease a clause exacting that the rent should be paid in gold or silver. The tenants with great difficulty fulfilled the terms of the lease, but finally appealed to the court, which has ruled that the clause was contrary both to public order and law.

The U. S. National Museum contains one of the finest collections of precious gems in the world.

AID ASKED FOR HUNGRY CHILDREN

Plans are under way for the organization in Oakland of an appeal for the starving children of Germany, the work to be conducted under the direction of Major General Henry T. Allen's American Committee for the Relief of German Children. This was the announcement made here today by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, and chairman of the appeal in California.

Dr. Wilbur is completing the organization of an Oakland committee which when it is fully formed will include representative leaders in various civic, business and professional groups. All of the funds raised will be turned over directly to General Allen's committee which in turn is devoting the funds to the work being done by the American Quaker Commission in Germany.

According to advices just received by Dr. Wilbur from General Allen the suffering of Germany's children has now reached an acute stage. A survey recently completed shows that the number of underfed children is now in excess of 4,000,000 and the death rate is said to be climbing to new heights. In [illegible] conditions milk is unknown to countless numbers of children.

Big Airplane Is Used By Smugglers

CHRISTIANIA, April 1.—The police believe that a large airplane is engaged in the smuggling trade in connection with a mother craft out at sea in the region of Fosnaes.

On several moonlight nights recently, an airplane with immense engines and powerful lights has been observed flying along the coast, and is believed to be operating with a smuggler somewhere among the intricate maze of islands and channels off the coast near Trondhjem.

Creamed combination vegetables
—a delightful new dish

How Mrs. Enos makes it wonderfully rich without butter

From Mrs. George A. Enos of Morro, one of California's prize-winning home cooks, comes the recipe below for a new creamed combination vegetable dish. Try it.

In sending this recipe, Mrs. Enos emphasizes the fact that while with other milk she uses a generous amount of butter, "no butter is necessary when using Libby's Milk."

Thousands of other women have noticed this same advantage of Libby's Milk in cooking; it gives surprising richness.

There are 7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat in every 16 oz. can of Libby's Milk. For unlike ordinary milk, it comes from California's finest dairy section—Humboldt County; from cows that give exceptionally rich milk.

And, rich as it is, we evaporate more than half the water from it, thus making it double rich. It comes to you sterilized in air-tight cans—the finest milk in the land.

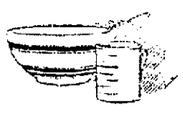

Try it tonight

Order a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer now. See how easily and inexpensively you can give all your cooked things greater richness, finer flavor.

SIX CANDIDATES IN SANTA ROSA ELECTION RACE

Two Tickets in Field for Councilmanic Honors; Charter Changes Are Issue.

SANTA ROSA, April 1.—Santa Rosans are voting today in what appears to be the hottest municipal election contest here in several years.

Three councilmen are to be elected in addition to a city treasurer and five members of the school board.

In the race for councilmanic honors two tickets have been placed in the field. The citizens' ticket is composed of Henry M. Forsyth, Charles A. Bingham and Stanley Hosmer; peoples' ticket, Charles A. Dunbar, D. P. Mack and W. Vallandigham.

Law enforcement and a movement for repeal or amendments to the city charter are the principal issues of the campaign.

Recent developments in the campaign are, a statement by Councilman Fred W. Oliva, one of the active candidates for re-election, that he had withdrawn from the race; reports that the Sonoma County Building Trades Council had indorsed the candidacy of the peoples' ticket; positive denial by Fred W. Cornett, local barber, that he would quit the race.

SAVANT SEES BURBANK.

Sukumar Chatterji, noted East India writer and educator, was a recent caller on Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa's noted horticulturist. The scientists spent an interesting afternoon together in the discussion of plant life. Chatterji is connected with one of the famous institutions of learning in his country and is a writer of note. On leaving Burbank's home he left a volume of one of his books on which, after his departure, the following lines were found written on a fly leaf:

"To Luther Burbank: The greatest man of the age, and all that it implies. Humane, divine genius; man, God. With humble reverence. From the author."

DRIVE NETS $100.

The "Poppy Drive" conducted on the streets here by members of the Native Daughters netted the local workers $100, according to the reports of members. The proceeds of the campaign will be donated to an orphanage and hospital in San Francisco.

OLD SPELLINGS ORDERED USED BY ARMY CHIEF

BOSTON, April 1.—Among the famous men who unlike Major General Andre W. Brewster, commander of the First Corps Area, dropped the British "u" from words like favor, honor, and vigor, are:

George Washington.

Noah Webster.

The American patriots who drafted and signed the Declaration of Independence.

General Brewster's form of spelling, which he has ordered used in all correspondence emanating from the Corps Area headquarters at the Army Base, was stamped as undoubtedly British by excellent authorities.

LIKED OLD FORMS.

At the Army Base, it was officially given out that General Brewster requested "the old form of spelling words like honour, favour, etc." because he was "brought up to use those forms and cherished them."

But the "U" form was dropped like a hot potato in this country nearly 150 years ago.

"The 'U' form of spelling, which I understand General Brewster has requested to be used, is never used now in the United States by authors, educators or other authorities," said Charles Noyes Greenough, dean of Harvard college and professor of English.

"That spelling is only used here by authors whose books are to be published and sold in England. It is exclusively the English style."

Walter A. Watkins genealogist of the Sons of the American Revolution, said:

"The form used by General Brewster has not been in use in this country since early in the last century. It is British. Even in England it was not used widely [illegible] years."

In the first two drafts of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson wrote "honour," which is the last word in the famous document, but in the third draft and the final form after Benjamin Franklin and John Adams had made corrections and the signers had discussed changes, the "U" was expurgated.

WASHINGTON'S SPELLING.

The last sentence reads: "And for the support of this Declaration, with a reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our Sacred Honor."

George Washington's published correspondence shows that he used the "U" spelling for "endeavour, behaviour, honorour and favour," until shortly before the Revolution, but thereafter never used anything but the Americanized form.

In Noah Webster's first dictionary, published in 1829, the first and greatest American authority on words wrote: "In excluding the U and K from such words as honor and music, I have followed the tendency of the public mind."

Webster also showed that the "U-less" form was correct, and that [illegible] Johnson, compiler of the first English dictionary, used the "U" form for honor, he and others wrote for "honorary."

"Ash said honor is modern, but correct," wrote Dr. James A. H. Murray, British authority in his New English dictionary. "Nevertheless, honour carried the majority of English suffrages eventually, while honor was, under the lead of Noah Webster, generally accepted in the United States.

In Shakespeare, "honor" is twice as frequent as "honour," but later, according to British writers, the plainer form was considered an affectation and "leaving out the U," was called "fashionable but improper" in England.

PLAYFUL PUNCH FATAL.

DRIPPING WATER DAMAGES BOOKS IN U. S. LIBRARY

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Congressmen and Senators with a predilection for musty and yellow old tomes will find 8,000 of them in the Library of Congress, for which no one connected with that institution is thanking the weather man.

Water dripping through the roof of the library after the Capital's last rain and slushstorm so damaged some of the rare and, in some instances, nearly priceless, volumes, that many of them have been coated with a rich ochre tint, and others have been discolored by a diluted dye soaked from the covers.

The monetary damage no one at the library cared to estimate, but it will not run into thousands of dollars it will be in hundreds.

Six night watchmen worked heroically to stop the seepage when melting slush so clogged the roof gutters that there was no drainage. Thirty charwomen next morning [illegible] gees and buckets, and ten men were hired to gather the damaged books and spread them out in a warm place where, it was hoped, drying would restore them to normal.

Great secrecy was maintained in an effort to keep news of the occurrence from leaking out, but it finally was brought to the attention of David Lynn, architect of the Capitol buildings. It was said that the incident was the first of its kind in the twenty-seven years of the library's existence.

Ingrown Toe Nail Turns Out Itself

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.—Advertisement.

The Story of the Diamond

The story of the diamond begins in India. According to the ancient Hindu belief there dwelt within each diamond a spirit. If a perfect stone were offered as a pledge of love or friendship the spirit of the stone gladly went with the gift—bringing good fortune to the new wearer.

And so it is today—in April, this month of the diamond. As of old the diamond is now a fitting token of regard, constancy, beauty, and purity. As the Hindu nobleman once sought far and wide for a "six-pointed diamond, pure without flaws," so the young man today is just as particular in his selection.

But he finds it easy to secure the diamond he wishes. At this store he has a large stock of perfect blue white diamonds to choose from and he enjoys the privilege of our policy allowing

Man, Woman Fined On Liquor Charges

MARTINEZ, April 1.—Raids Saturday night by the county dry squad in Bay Point and Antioch resulted today in fining of two persons by Justice of the Peace Frank Glass on liquor possession charges. "Bobby" Collins, 29, who gave her occupation as a scenario writer, was arrested on an ark on the Antioch waterfront. Officers seized a half gallon of brandy as evidence. She admitted the charge today and was fined $400, which she expected to pay this afternoon.

WARREN OUTLINES ATTITUDE OF U. S. TOWARD MEXICO

New Ambassador Gives Assurances of Assistance and Good Will.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

MEXICO CITY, April 1.—"The steady development of our adjoining republics, led by those who assert and win the fight to govern by reason of their moral leadership, is a consummation desired by the United States," said Charles B. Warren, the new American ambassador to Mexico, in presenting his credentials to President Obregon.

The highest of honors marked the ceremony. Mr. Warren rode to the national palace in a state coach, escorted by a brilliantly uniformed cavalry guard. On arrival he was received in the ambassadorial salon by President Obregon and members of his official family.

"It will be my constant aim to aid this republic," Mr. Warren said. "Your progress as a nation will annul no aspiration of ours; will breed no conflict arising from any hurt to any national policy of ours. We contend for no territorial aggrandizement; we seek nothing that belongs to another; we want no exclusive sphere of influence.

"The experience of the world shows that commerce flows freely only in an atmosphere of confidence. The relations which we desire with this republic do not infringe in any way upon its nationality * * *. We hope to see your nation strong and its government always stable and orderly. I look forward to the steady development of our adjoining republics, led by those who assert and win the right to govern by reason of their moral leadership."

Good Samaritan Sued for $16,900 By Man He Aided

WOODLAND, April 1.—Sherman Spates, rancher and orchardist of the Riverbank-Bryte district in Yolo county, is the defendant in a $16,900 damage suit as a result of playing the role of the Good Samaritan on April 7, 1923. On that date, near Woodland, he found John Souza, a laborer of Sacramento, walking along the highway. Spates asked Souza if he would like a "jiff" to Sacramento, and the latter accepted.

The complaint filed in the superior court here alleges that Spates turned a crook in the road "carelessly and negligently," has automobile turning turtle and hurling the plaintiff out so that one of the vertebrae of the spinal column was dislocated and broken, and both bones of the right forearm were fractured. Cuts, bruises and lacerations were also suffered.

Souza wants $15,000 damages and $1900 hospital, doctor and nurse fees. He claims he will be incapacitated from working for months.

It is the first action of the kind ever instituted in Yolo county.

IRRIGATION CASE SET FOR APRIL 22

MODESTO, April 1.—Trial of the suit brought by the Modesto Irrigation district against the Turlock irrigation district for an accounting will start April 22.

Superior Judge L. W. Fulkerth announced from the bench that while not anxious to try the suit he would not shirk the responsibility, if his presence on the bench is not objectionable to either side. Griffin asked immediate trial of the case, which has caused a great deal of bitterness between the two boards. The books to be examined are those covering the expenditure of millions on Don Pedro dam.

Preacher Pays City To Ease Conscience

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 1.—Another genuine, honest man was chalked up on the list of the local "conscience" fund the other day when the City Council of this city received a check for $1, accompanied by a letter explaining what it was for, from Rev. M. R. Davis, now in McClusky, N. D.

In the letter of explanation, Rev. Davis said that he broke an electric light on a street lamp here back in 1916 "while was returning from a base ball game." He said that during a recent address he delivered before a young people's meeting on the subject of "Honesty" the Lord told him to make it good, and that he therefore was following the dictates of his conscience.

MANY STRANGE CASES TRIED BY JUDGE PULCIFER

Unique Aspects of Human Relations Reflected in Justice Court.

Human relations in all their aspects, especially the humorous side, are reflected in the cases which come before Judge Harry W. Pulcifer in justice court. Here's an idea of an average day's hearings.

J. N. Schwartz, his wife and child, attended a birthday party given by Mrs. Lulu Derby, residing on Avalon avenue. They accepted an invitation to remain over night and then extended that stay to two weeks. Mrs. Derby sued Schwartz for $20 board and got judgment although Schwartz displayed a bill of $3, the cost of a birthday present given to Mrs. Derby.

Judge Pulcifer is trying to determine what became of 80 gallons of ice cream which a driver for the West Side Creamery of Stockton delivered to the Home Creamery, Oakland. Two small boys corroborated testimony by the driver that it was delivered, but none of the employees of the Oakland firm ever saw the commodity, they testified.

Julius Lustig rented a doorway on Broadway from Ralph Johnson to sell confetti last New Year's, but the latter rescinded the agreement after accepting a check for the rent. Lustig sued for $125, the alleged loss of profit. A confetti dealer who operated in a neighboring doorway was found who testified his profits were only about $50 and Lustig was given judgment for that amount.

Frank Tibbitts could not get his laundry back from T. K. Yamedera, 1502 Market street, so he sued for $15. The suit resulted in the defendant finally locating the lost laundry.

The suit of J. A. Steele against J. R. Grosskreitz proved a case of too many collection agencies. Steele, who runs such an agency, sued for $20.35, the amount of a grocery bill owed to F. H. Evans, a grocer. It developed that James Poswa, another collection agency man, who happened to be in court, had already collected the bill. The offer of Steele to dismiss the suit if Grosskreitz would pay costs was refused by Judge Pulcifer, who gave judgment to the defendant.

FUNERAL IS HELD FOR MRS. PRATHER

BERKELEY, April 1.—Funeral services were held today in Linden for Mrs. Matilda Prather, pioneer of California and resident of Berkeley for three years. Mrs. Prather died at the family home at Linden Saturday at the age of 94. In Berkeley she resided at 2236 Grove street. Mrs. Prather crossed the plains with an ox team in 1853. She was a native of Missouri. She is survived by four children, Mrs. Joseph Potter of Linden and Thomas, Dora V. and Reba Prather, all of Berkeley.

War Record Saves Speeder From Fine

SAN LEANDRO, April 1.—Because he was a World War veteran, Manuel Tobush, 1624 East Thirty-second street, Oakland, won freedom when he appeared before Judge W. J. Gannon on a charge of speeding. Although Tobush plead guilty to the charge, judgment was suspended when it was learned that he was receiving a pension from the United States government for injuries received while serving in the war.

Roy Curtis, 905 Hill street, Los Angeles, also pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding and paid a fine of $10 yesterday before Judge Gannon.

50 Cases of Beer, Truck, Held in S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—What prohibition agents declare real beer of pre-Volstead alcoholic contents was seized at Post street and Van Ness avenue today and two men were arrested and charged with illegal transportation. The officers confiscated a total of fifty cases.

The men taken into custody are Harold J. Walter, who gave his address as the Robin Hotel, and Leslie B. Fitzgerald, who said he lived at 317 Leavenworth street. The beer was in an automobile truck, which was seized also.

'Forty Is Most Interesting Age for Women of Today"

Gertrude Atherton Gives Views on Subject

By B. F. WILSON.

NEW YORK, April 1.—"Forty is the most interesting age in life for women" declared Gertrude Atherton, one of the foremost American novelists.

We were sitting in the living-room of her suite at the Hotel Madison Square, a quaint, old-fashioned family sort of hotel, small and unpretentious.

She was far more interested in telling me of her new wardrobe than she was in answering my questions about the modern woman. This is characteristic of the vital, energetic and brilliant author. Although a grandmother, she is as much interested in the engrossing topic of style as she is in her next novel.

HAS BEEN WRITING FOR THIRTY YEARS.

Gertrude Atherton has been writing novels for over thirty years. She is one of America's most brilliant craftswomen, and her books are considered literary events where they appear.

I finally managed to pin her down, and after she made me feel that my chances of getting her to talk on the subject were very slim, and quite rightly denied the fact that she was in no position to discuss the troubles of women of today, inasmuch as no two of the sex were alike, she declared:

"What is good for some women is bad for others. However, I feel certain that the primary object of our existence is to create. Some of us with our minds, some with our fingers. Others, and by far the largest number, of course, are put here to become mothers.

"I think every woman in the world should marry. I think every woman should have a child.

URGES PERPETUATION OF NORDIC STOCK.

"In particular, I think it is the duty of every woman who is an American by birth and generations of ancestors, to have children.

"Most of the inhabitants of this country are of immigrant and foreign stock. The few remaining members of the old Nordic stock should see to it that this strain does not die out. Women are not complete unless they have had children.

"I don't mean one child. I mean several. I consider the [illegible] who brings up one child a selfish woman who is injuring that child, unless of course it is impossible for her to do otherwise.

WOMEN ENTITLED TO DISTINCT CAREERS.

"When a man enters his early middle age, he is supposed to be going through his best business years. These are the years in which he is beginning to reap the fruits of his hard working apprenticeship. This is the time when he has gained enough wisdom to put the efforts of his youth to a good advantage. He begins to create at this time. Why shouldn't the same be true of a woman

"She has married. She has borne several children. She has accomplished the primary obligations of her existence. Her children are away at school. Instead of folding her arms across a fat bosom like so many of the modern domestic women do who consider they have reached the placid end when they arrive at forty, she should begin to live.

"Forty is the most interesting age of life to a woman. At least it should be. I think every woman is entitled to a distinct profession and career apart from her husband and [illegible]

"I may sound crazy, but there are thousands of women in this country who if they had the courage of their convictions could become excellent financial and industrial leaders. These are women who have made excellent wives and mothers, and who are dissatisfied and vaguely unhappy because they daren't upset conventions. They sit at home and decay, where as they would be far happier, and of greater benefit to the world at large if they would develop their latent ambitions and desires for active creative work.

GIRLS NO DIFFERENT TODAY FROM THE PAST.

"I am not a domestic woman. I have lived most of my life in hotels, and I really enjoy doing so. I love to travel. I would hate being a slave to my possessions.

"But I have raised three children, and at the same time have worked at my books with as much joy and pleasure in doing one as the other.

"The girls, the younger women of this day, aren't very much different from the girls of the past generation, despite all the noise about the flapper. I think her day is past, however. She was a silly little thing, of not much consequence. One phase of her existence, which to my mind is the most advantageous occurrence of the present day, is the fact that few of her species marry when extremely young. It's a very good thing.

EXPERIENCE IS MOST VALUABLE TO WOMEN.

"No girl ought to marry until she is twenty-two at least. She doesn't know her own mind before that time; she is filled with illusions which are the most detrimental factors for domestic peace, and although even at twenty-two she is still inexperienced, I consider the disadvantage of young girls marrying so important, that I wish a social law could be established which would keep them from doing so before they have reached maturity.

"To my mind the young girl is hopeless and pitiful beside the mature and attractive woman of thirty-five or forty. Experience is the most valuable teacher in life, and when a woman has mental charm and knows what she is talking about, instead of making important issues out of silly nonsense, she is far more attractive. Youth has always been eulogized by the poets and novelists until most people have been forced into thinking the same way.

"Why, with the thousand and one different ways of retaining your looks which are in existence [illegible] no reason for a woman of forty not to be beautiful. To my mind there is a far greater satisfaction in looking than in being young. Don't you think so?

"I don't think any woman really begins to live until she has discharged the part of her sex debt, and as her children grow older and, inevitably, begin to get away from her, she should seize upon some vital interest and enjoy life.

WOMEN LESS VENTURESOME THAN MOST MEN.

"Women are far less venturesome than men. They don't know how to take advantage of life. They are afraid to mould it, to shape circumstances so that they might get as much out of the world as men do. They are lax, and unwilling to exert themselves to the point of living. Of course, there are a number of women who have discovered that the world may be an interesting and delightful place after they have reached forty. This thought was started by the clubwomen, and more and more women are beginning to establish themselves. So many women have made good in business, a large number have founded careers in various professions, and I think they will continue to develop right along."

SUCCESS FACTORS GIVEN BY AUTHOR.

Here the tinkle of the telephone interrupted her, and she arose to answer it. As she walked across the room, the lines of her gown revealed a slim, youthful figure. Mrs. Atherton is the epitome of the type she discusses. She is an indefatigable worker, and her mind is as keen as a girl of twenty with all the mature judgment and wisdom of a brilliant older woman. She has an eternal zest for adventure rarely found in any woman, and particularly in a woman of her years. She looks as if she had discovered the fountain of youth, and as she talked on the telephone, I heard her accept a dinner and theater engagement with the same enthusiasm a flapper might have displayed.

I asked her what she considered the most essential factors for success. "Intelligence, characters and poise," she answered promptly, and if I ever saw a human being who possessed these qualifications (particularly the latter), as surely for the future, it is Gertrude Atherton.

LA FOLLETTE AND COOLIDGE ARE IN PRIMARY BATTLE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 1.—A record number of voters cast their ballots today in Wisconsin's presidential primary with Senator Robert M. La Follette and President Coolidge seeking the Republican nomination.

On the Democratic side were William G. McAdoo Senator Reed of Missouri and Governor Al Smith of New York.

Friends of Smith, who placed his name before the voters in a belated effort to get the wet vote, are confident of a considerable show of strength.

Chief interest centers in the various municipal elections Milwaukee holds much of the attention through the fight between Mayor Daniel Hoan, Socialist, and David S. Rose, Non-Partisan, for mayor of the city.

ALBANY N. Y. April 1.—New York voters went to the polls today to elect delegates to the spring conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties, which will be held early this morning.

The conventions will elect delegates and alternates to the national conventions.

Two contests of more than passing importance are being waged in the metropolitan area. In the first Ruth Lett is fighting the designation of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, as a delegate to the Republican convention.

In New York City former Senator Schuyler Meyer is waging a battle on Samuel Koenig, city leader, and Ogden Mills Reid, leader of the fifteenth assembly district.

"Love Pirate" Weds Shipbuilder in Orient

Mrs. Genevieve McKinney-Toomey-Teal-Paddleford, well known on two continents and particularly on the Pacific Coast for many years past for her matrimonial and other affairs, and described by her husband in her latest divorce case as "an international love pirate," is married again, according to a report which has reached here from Egypt by way of New York.

W. H. Howells wealthiest shipbuilder in the Orient, and owner of several palaces on the Nile, is said to be Mrs. Paddleford's latest husband. He is also said to have made a pre-nuptial settlement upon her of $12,000,000.

IMPRISONED.

During Mrs. Paddleford's (now Howells') career she has been the wife of several nationally known men, has spent several months in Blackwell's Island, New York, and has been arrested in Zurich, Switzerland, and Vienna, Austria. Last summer she was divorced in Los Angeles by Dr. George L. Paddleford, oil magnate and former associate of E. L. Doheny.

Mrs. Paddleford-Howells began married life as Miss Genevieve [illegible], daughter of a wealthy secretary to James J. Hill of railroad fame. The marriage ended in divorce, and shortly afterward she sued an elderly man for breach of promise and lost. Then he married Ben Teal, theatrical producer. While she was married to Teal she was sentenced to a year on Blackwell's Island, New York, for alleged subornation of perjury in connection with the famous Gould divorce case. The conviction was reversed nine months later and she was freed.

ARRESTED IN L. A.

After Teal's death she married Dr. George E. Paddleford, millionaire oil operator of Los Angeles and Mexico, who was then in the East. After a short time the two separated, Mrs Paddleford going to Europe, and Dr. Paddleford returning to California. Then she was reported as having been arrested in Zurich for failing to pay debts amounting to 37,000 francs. She was next heard of in Vienna, where, in June, 1922, she was again arrested. Dr. Paddleford refused to send her the money which she asked for by cable to enable her to gain her freedom. She was befriended by Franz Lehar, the composer, and shortly afterward left Vienna, returning to Los Angeles to fight her husband's divorce suit. While in Los Angeles she was arrested on a charge of grand larceny, placed against her by shopkeepers of Los Angeles and Pasadena, who declared she had defrauded them. Dr. Paddleford was granted a divorce on the ground of [illegible] last year, and Mrs. Paddleford later disappeared.

Missing Girls Seen On Oakland Ferry

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Information was obtained by the police today that the three girls who disappeared from their homes in San Francisco Saturday, and who were thought to be making their way to Hollywood to enter the movies, were seen at a late hour Saturday night on a ferryboat bound for Oakland.

The girls are Eleanor and Meriam Gable, 17 Scott street, and Calotta Dickman, daughter of Charles Dickman, local artist.

Mrs. Gable reported to the police that she had received a telephone call from a school chum of the girls who said she had talked with the runaway trio on the 11 o'clock ferryboat to Oakland Saturday night. She reported that the girls had no baggage with them of any kind and hinted in no way that they were running away from home.

Death Robs Man, Mother, Baby in Jail of Liberty

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—A man, a woman and a newborn baby awaited burial here today after finding in death the release from prison bars which came just a bit too late from probation officers.

Charles Worden, confessed forger, was to have been sentenced yesterday, but probation officers found that the worthless check he had passed was his last desperate effort to buy food for wife and children. So the court prepared to grant probation, but when the case was called Worden failed to appear. He had just died, jailers explained.

Mrs. S. H. Monten, arrested with her husband on charges of violating the state prohibition law, was to receive her release from the county jail immediately after the birth of her child, her husband having taken all the blame for the alleged offense upon himself. Yesterday the child was born in the county jail hospital, but died as its mother breathed her last.

THOUSANDS PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO FATHER M'QUAIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1. — All creeds, all classes and all nationalities were at St. Mary's Cathedral packing it to capacity in their desire to pay one last tribute to Father Joseph McQuaide, the "Fighting Padre." For two blocks outside of the building crowds filled the streets, waiting for the funeral procession to leave.

The funeral yesterday began with a solemn requiem mass, attended by the mayor, city councilmen, supervisors, chief military and naval officers of the bay district, and leaders of Catholic and Protestant organizations. Right Rev. Joseph M. Gleason, a life-long friend of the late padre, preached the funeral sermon. Right Rev. Charles A. Ramm was the celebrant of the mass, assisted by Rev. Patrick Foote, S. J., deacon; Rev. Bernard MacKinnon, subdeacon, and Rev. Francis V. Long, master of ceremonies. Archbishop Edward J. Hanna gave absolution at the conclusion of the mass.

Following the service the audience passed before the open casket for a last look at Father McQuaide and then formed in the street outside for the funeral procession.

Wedding Delayed Lodi's Gold Rush Snow for Golfers Robbers Fooled

With considerable temerity, Clarence J Smith, a butcher, and Miss Gladys M Gross braved the supposed jinx of April Fool's Day to secure a marriage license, but they absolutely refused to be married today, leaving that ceremony until Saturday.

"It is bad enough to get the license today without getting married," the bride told Edward Hadden, deputy county clerk, who issued the license.

They were the only couple to apply for license up to noon.

LODI, April 1.—A notice sent to a local paper by "Loof Lirpa" that he had recovered $25,000 in gold dust which had been buried by an old miner under his home, sent curious crowds scurrying to the address given in the notice. The owner of the property had to call the police to check the gold rush.

Examining the newspaper item said owner discovered that "Loof Lirpa" is merely "April Fool" spelled backward. He is trying to decide who the joke was on.

WASHINGTON, April 1—Golfers hereabouts were all set to go at 6 a. m. today when the municipal courses were to open. "Sports" were just waiting for the day, as it marks the opening of Maryland's new spring race meeting at the Bowie track.

And then it snowed. And rained. And hailed. And sleeted.

Gentle spring's April Fool joke.

CHICAGO, April 1.—The yeggs who broke into the office of the Chicago Journeymen Barbers' Union did not realize the significance of April 1 until they cracked the safe. Three one-cent stamps two old shaving brushes and a bar of soap were on a card bearing the words 'Call again.' Frank Rangon, secretary, anticipated a burglary and prepared accordingly.

DENVER, Colo., April 1.—"April Fool," shouted John R. Smith, or at least he had occasion to have shouted it if he had felt that way when James Kelly, who had just been in an auto accident, and didn't want officers to see everything in his car, handed him a pint of whisky to hold. For John R. Smith, be it known is none other than the Colorado state prohibition director.

BERKELEY SCHOOL HEAD UNTEMPTED BY TEXAS OFFER

Houston Board Failed to Live Up to Agreement, States Superintendent.

BERKELEY, April 1.—Because the board of education of Houston, Texas, would not give him $10 000 a year to start, with an advance to $12,000 later on, upkeep for his automobile, and unlimited powers in the administration of school affairs, Superintendent H. B. Wilson still remains educational dictator of Berkeley.

Advices from Houston further state that the offer as made by the school heads of that city to Wilson was later rescinded when the Berkeley superintendent made new demands upon them for salary. Wilson's salary in Berkeley, including the upkeep of his automobile, is $7500.

"Of course, they had to rescind the offer," declared Wilson today, "for the simple reason that I rejected it. When I was in Houston the school heads there declared that they would attempt to meet certain conditions and I said that I would consider the offer under those circumstances. The salary which I agreed to start with was $10,000 and when the formal offer came to me it was for $8500.

Advices which came from Houston today declare that city still looking for a superintendent, but as "breathing a sigh of relief" that the Wilson negotiations were "all off."

Wilson stopped in Houston last month while en route home to Berkeley from the annual meeting of the superintendents' section of the National Education association, when he first discussed the proposal to head the schools in that city. In his telegram despatched to the Houston authorities, as made public by him, he declared it "impossible" to accept the offer as made.

First Aid Will Be Rendered Without Charge in Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley.

The California State Automobile Association's new mechanical first aid and touring service was inaugurated today in San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda, and will be confined to the city limits of those cities for the time being. This service was officially announced yesterday with a parade of yellow and blue tow cars and specially equipped first aid motorcycles, operated by mechanics in uniform.

In connection with the new service, the association announces that in case of mechanical trouble, a punctured tire or some similar trouble, "if you are one of the 37,000 members of the California State Automobile Association, and reside or travel in San Francisco or the Eastbay cities, a telephone call day or night to the automobile club's headquarters will bring a first aid motorcycle or two car, manned by an expert "trouble shooter," to your assistance.

WIDEN SCOPE OF SERVICE.

On April 15, a similar service will be put into operation in zones of a 10-mile radius around Sacramento, Stockton, Fresno, San Jose and Modesto, D. E. Watkins, general manager of the automobile association, announced yesterday. The service, according to Watkins, will be extended as rapidly as possible to cover the entire 45 northern and central counties served by the association.

The service will be available without charge, 24 hours a day, to members of the automobile club, and with the strict enforcement of a "no tipping" rule. Tire changes for women driving alone is a special feature of the service.

The automobile association will handle no accessories, nor will any repair work be attempted, except such roadside adjustments as may be necessary to get the car under way, Watkins said. The service has been endorsed by the Garage Owners' Association of San Francisco.

HOW TO GET ACTION.

In the event of trouble on the road in the bay cities, Watkins said, the member will call the Automobile club's headquarters in San Francisco or Oakland, as the case may be, giving his name, membership card number, make of car, location and other data to a despatcher, who will be on duty at all hours. The despatcher will order a trouble shooter and equipment to leave immediately from the first aid station nearest the [illegible] towing, as the situation may require. Sufficient equipment will be maintained so that calls may be answered at all hours every day with the greatest possible despatch.

Where it is necessary to tow a car to a garage for repairs, the car will be taken to any garage designated by the owner within the city in which he is stalled.

Announcement was made yesterday that the local automobile association was the first organization of its kind to supply such a service in the West. Two services are provided, mechanical first aid and towing. Similar services operated by automobile clubs in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Kansas City have been a great boon to the motoring public in these cities, eliminating some of the most troublesome phases of motoring for women as well as men drivers.

EX-MESSENGER QUALIFIES FOR $100,000 JOB

NEW YORK, April 1.—"Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith."

But Alfred H. Smith, a fourteen-year-old, $4 a week office boy in the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, at Cleveland, forty-six years ago paid no attention to what Fate was trying to do. He had plans of his own.

And when recently he was killed by a fall from his horse in Central Park, he was President of the New York Central Lines and the biggest paid railroad President in the United States.

The story of A. H. Smith follows the lines of a "from poor boy to President" tale, but it refuses to conform to the regulation pattern, according to his associates. He did not achieve success by a rule, they say, but by hard and happy work in the business he loved, uncanny ability at it and a personality peculiarly vigorous and human.

FORCED TO GIVE UP COLLEGE.

He was born April 26, 1863, at Cleveland, the youngest of five children. He was in school and hoping to go to college when the death of his father made it necessary for him to go to work. He was a good messenger boy and ran errands, filled inkwells and wrapped parcels so diligently that in time he was made a clerk and [illegible] At nineteen he was getting $50 a month.

Then he gave up his job and went to work as a laborer in a construction gang at $1.50 a day and no pay if it rained and the gang was laid off.

He made the change deliberately, he explained afterward, feeling that his future lay in railroad work of the kind whose A B C is pick and shovel and the moving of cars. He was pale and soft from office work and only weighed 130 pounds. His first job was at one end of the cross-cut saw, with a burly Irishman at the other end, who bawled at him every few minutes: "Hey, you, pull that saw; don't ride on it!"

The experience laid the foundation of his success. As his muscles hardened and his palms grew tough, he developed the extraordinary physical strength which enabled him as an executive to outwork all his employees, and the knowledge of the details of railroad construction and operation, and of the men on the engines and the construction gangs, and in the roundhouses and the switchboards, which, accounted for his success in selecting and handling subordinates.

He became foreman of his gang, then general foreman of construction gangs, then superintendent of the Kalamazoo Division—a long jump upward.

AGAIN ADVANCED.

In 1901 he was promoted to Assistant General Superintendent of the Lake Shore. During the same year he was again advanced to general superintendent. In 1902 he was transferred to the New York Central and Hudson River; in 1903, promoted to general manager; in 1906, elected vice president, and in January, 1914, elected president of the New York Central lines.

Those lines now have a main line trackage of 12,425 miles, and employ 175,000 people. Smith's salary has been said on good authority to have been in the neighborhood of $100,000.

It has been pointed out that three purchases ordered by him saved the New York Central a total of $125,403,874. In 1914, when the war broke out, though the general belief was that it would not last long and would not affect America, Smith ordered 724 locomotives, 445 passenger cars and 38,052 freight cars, at a cost of $84,324,736. When they were delivered, the war tie-up of such materials was at its worst, and it would have been impossible to get them at any price, but if it had been possible, at the prices then prevailing, they would have cost $198,828,610—a saving of $198,708,874.

He also saved $1,700,000 on a purchase of rails just before a rise in prices and $15,000,000 on an order of cars and locomotives in December, 1922, just before prices rose 30 per cent.

A favorite saying of his was: "A man can only succeed when he likes his work." He also said: "In running a railroad or any other kind of business, 95 per cent depends on the human beings in it. Success comes from the human heart, not from machinery."

When the railroads were put under Government control during the war, Smith was made regional director for the eastern part of the United States, including some 50,000,000 persons, or a little more than half the population of the country and he went at the freight jam that was paralyzing business, in the same drastic way that, as construction foreman, he had swept the tracks clear of wreck and got the cars moving again.

His only recreation aside from his farm was horseback riding. He kept two good saddle horses at Durland's Riding Academy and others at the farms.

ASK VIEWS ON JAIL SENTENCE.

An opportunity to bring pressing traffic problems before the city will be afforded this week at the meeting which the Eastbay Safety Council is to sponsor. At that time there will be revealed the public attitude toward the speeder, for the Safety Council has sent out questionnaires to hundreds of citizens asking for expressions of opinion on the advisability of jail sentences over fines.

The speeding motorist was the cause of an unusually large bill of death and misery in the Bay cities during the past month. In comparison with San Francisco, Oakland has been fortunate and there is reason to believe that the vigorous campaign being conducted by the Safety Council is reporting violators of the law is having effect.

There are certain accidents which will take place on the streets regardless of care and observance of the law but these are few in comparison to those which could have been avoided had the cars been moving within the limits set forth in the ordinances. It is not too much to say that the greatest menace to human life, the greatest uncertainity in the way of a person's living to a ripe old age, is the careless motorist. For that reason the automobile chamber of commerce of the United States, the manufacturers and dealers, the Safety Council and countless other organizations are determined that the lessons which, heretofore, have been preached, shall be made truly emphatic.

The jail sentence is coming. It seems to be the only way to carry over an impression strong enough to afford protection. Eastbay residents will have the chance to express their views on the subject at the meeting to be called within a few days.

A YEAR AROUND CAMPAIGN.

Every day in the year the Community Chest performs real service for the residents of Oakland. It saves money and adds to the benefits which money subscribed may bring. It systemmatizes, concentrates and audits.

All of this work is done quietly and so effectively that an increasing number of organizations are anxious to be included in the chest budget. Those who are at work for the agencies know of this service. The general public has heard of the chest only upon those annual occasions when the campagin is on.

For these reasons the year-around campaign which will be conducted is timely. When the general public becomes acquainted with the daily record, the work of coming campaigns will be made easier. Contributors who are informed of the ideals and policies of the chest will feel closer interest and have the added satisfaction of knowing to just what use their money is being put.

Under the chest management 97 per cent of pledged amounts were collected. The one chest made it possible to earn more than two thousand dollars in interest and also to suggest efficiency methods which saved thousands more. Duplication has been done away with.

The 1924 campaign of education in community chest operation is to be welcomed because a knowledge of what the chest is doing is the finest argument for its perpetuation.

POINCARE STANDS PAT.

Premier Poincare, angry and exasperated, read the list of those he has appointed to cabinet position before a chamber of deputies from which arose laughter and jeers. It was not an imposing spectacle, this change in French government. It was one which does not promise well for the stability of the made over cabinet.

Poincare was defeated in a test vote in the chamber. Instead of resigning he took over the task of naming a new cabinet. In the list which he made public is indicated his efforts to meet the opposition half way for Poincare opponents are elevated to office.

The chamber which laughed and jeered yesterday will force the issue again before long and there will be another test vote. Then France and Europe will know whether the concessions have quieted enough of the protests to allow the Premier to go on with his program. After another defeat the Premier will resign with the cabinet and new policies of reparations, occupation and finance will be announced.

In the meantime there is no questioning the position of the fighting premier. "France," he says, "has a keen desire to reach an agreement as soon as possible with her allies upon questions of reparations and security? We cannot withdraw our troops except in proportion to payments by Germany."

Which means that while Poincare will compromise with the chamber of deputies he will not give an inch to England or those other allies who are urging a moderation of the policy toward Germany.

WHERE TAX BILL STANDS.

Taxpayers of America are paying to the Government between $800,000,000 and $400,000,000 annually and this money, according to the figures of the secretary of the treasury, is not needed.

This is the burden and the situation which has called forth from the country a demand that Congress pass a law reducing the tax schedules. It is what is behind the expression of opinion recently secured by the Literary Digest on the Mellon tax plan and which showed that in all the states there is a great and genuine desire for that schedule and, failing in that, for one which closely approximates it.

It has taken the House three months to pass the Longworth compromise. If the Senate takes as long there will be no tax bill in this session. In the upper house there is talk of restoring the Mellon schedule and of sending the amended bill back.

It will be remembered that a majority of the House committee agreed to pass out the Mellon plan and that then the minority met and put forward the Garner, or Democratic scheme. The result was a compromise and, after weeks, the passage in the House of the Longworth plan.

At the rate Congress is now functioning it will be next to impossible to pass the Mellon plan. It may still be possible to put the Longworth compromise through the Senate and make it a law.

BASEBALL IS COMING.

Today a vacant lot is a vacant lot. Next week it will be a baseball diamond. Windows that are filled with golf clubs and fishing tackle will find place for gloves masks and baseballs before this week is over. The patches will be replaced in the high board fences, splinters will be planed from the benches, and the heavy rollers will be shoved over those more formal grounds upon which the professionals play.

It is a great game and a great season. The youth who sits on the bench and digs his cleats hopefully into the turf while he yearns for a chance to have his try, may bring a small fortune in a year or so when he is sold to the major league. The old fellow who ambles so confidently to the plate has seen a thousand diamond battles, has heard the applause of great throngs in a crucial world series game, and it is all a part of the day's work. What is interesting him more thay anything else, right now, is a garden at home where the green is coming up in promising rows. Who is going to take care of that garden as he has cared for it, when the team takes to the road? Perhaps, after all, he would have been wiser if he had made last season his final one.

The Coast League sets the pace for the country on April 8th when its opening games will be played. Local fans will have to wait a week longer before they see the Oaks in action in a scheduled contest. Of course, there are hopes for a good team this year, for on the diamond as in the heart hope springs eternal.

It is nearing time when the careless umpire will dust the plate with his hat, when the nervous busher will try to act unconcerned as he hitches his trousers and stands waiting to swing; it is nearing time when the great American game steps off to another season and when many things now considered important will take a back seat, away beyond the bleachers.

ALL FOOLS' DAY.

Back when April Fool's day was in its infancy it was considered good form to jerk a chair from under an unsuspecting friend or to arrange upon his door a contrivance which would liberate upon his defenceless head a bucket of water or bricks.

Like Hallowe'en, where violence was once the requisite, April Fool's day has improved with the times. Foolish messages over the telephone, salt in the sugar bowl and the traditional brick under the hat give modern youth and age opportunities for celebration but someone has pointed out that even those who contrive the deceptions do so with a resigned consciousness that the victims, more than likely, will see through the tricks. It is said that this day of more or less startling tradition is waning and that a half century will see it disappear.

If this is true it will be a sad awakening for the men who manufacture trick contrivances, for the practical joker who is allowed but a single opportunity a year, and for many others who see value in surprise and discomfiture

The modern generation will have to make the best of April Fool's day while it lasts.

THE CONNING TOWER

TOSCA

Well, I've went an' saw a wop'ra, an' I'm offen them shows for life.
Me fer a snappy movie, an' the same goes for the wife.
Op'ras kin run fer Astor an' Morgan an' all them eggs,
But gimme a show with action, where the dames has all got legs.
Like this it is: Last Friday we're tossin' the clickin' cubes,
When I win three hundred berries from a flock o' hardboiled rubes.
So the wife climbs into her war paint an' she drags me off to a show
What they call by the name o' Tosca—at seven bucks a throw.
Fourteen berries it sets me to listen to some fat wop
Bawlin' his crazy head off like he don't know when to stop;
Fourteen hard-earned berries to hear them dagoes shout.
An' this is the plot o' the story, the way I dope it out:

A bird by the name Angelotti, who is doin' a bit in the coop,
Makes his getaway out o' the hoosgow while the keepers are lappin' their soup;
Gives the loud razz to the coppers, an' leavin' the bulls in the lurch
Now Mario Cavaradossi's a lad what paints pitchers by hand,
An' he's fell fer a jane they call Tosca; she sings op'ra songs up at the Strand.
Well, as soon as he lamps Angelotti he slips him a scuttle o' chow,
An' he says, "On your way, little stranger; this joint ain't no place fer you now."
Then Tosca drops in fer a visit, an' they sit there some minutes and kid
But Mario don't put her jerry to where he's got Angelo hid.
An' while they sit chinnin' and laughin' at the line this here Mario pulls,
"My Gawd," she says, "If it ain't Scarpy," an' in walks the chief o' the bulls.
Now this Scarpia's batty on Tosca; he's a goof what sandpapers his throat,
An' he gives the young pair the once over, an' then right away loses his goat.
"Say, cut it," he tells him "We've got you fer helpin' that dago to blow.
[illegible] box. You're wanted a headquarters, bo!"

The next act's in Scarpia's office, where Mario's went fer a ride,
An' after they've printed an mugged him they're beatin' his hide off inside.,
But never a squeal does he give 'em, though they smear him all over the jail.
An' then Tosca blows into the office. She's been chasin' around after bail.
An' her an' the chief have a confab. Says Scarpia very polite:
"What wonderful weather we're havin', though it looks like it's cloudy tonight.
I told him he's gotta plead guilty. If he goes to the bat, babe, he'll ride."
Then Tosca says, "Say, chief, have pity. He done it fer me an' the kid;
An' he ain't gonna squeal on the dago. I'd throw down the rat if he did."
"Say, look here," says Scarpy to Tosca, an' he pours her three fingers o' brew,
"I ain't got no love fer that paint guy, but I'd leave home an' mother fer you.
I'll throw that egg's case if you say so; but I gotta know where I get off."
An' Tosca says, "Sure, kid, I get you," an' she swallers her brew with a cough.
Then Scarpia goes to the table, an' he looks like he's writin' a note,
When Tosca quick grabs up a cheese knife an' she sticks the poor boob in the throat.
Then she lays him out swell on the carpet—puts the candlesticks next to his head.
"Old Steve Merritt," she says, "couldn't beat this," an' she leaves the stiff layin' there dead.

The next act's the roof of the housegow, an' poor Mario's near gave up hope,
When Tosca breaks in on the [illegible] she slips him a couple o' dope.
"Say, I jipped that there bull an' I framed it so they'll pull a fake shoot fer a stall."
Then along come the doughboys with rifles and back Mario up to the wall.
The Sergeant gives order to fire, an' they plug the poor fish full o' lead.
An' Tosca screams, "Scarpia's bilked me! They've went an' shot Mario dead."
There's voices heard comin, an' Tosca decides that it's time fer to blow,
So she grabs up her skirts—does a brodie . . .

FLACCUS.

"Please," a Cleveland business man—or is that tautological?—writes Mr. Karl Kitchen, "make arrangements for four seats for some one of the good musical shows. In connection with this, what I want is something that Joan (aged thirteen) and Herbert (aged eleven) will enjoy—like the Music Box Revue, the Greenwich Village Follies, or something of that sort that youngsters of that age will like. It ought, of course, to be some sort of spectacular thing with tuneful music, that won't be over the heads of youngsters of those ages." He needn't worry. A harder assignment would be to find a musical show that is over the head of an angleworm.

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

Portland Oregonian: "The Federal judge in New York who has sentenced three peddlers of narcotic drugs to ten years in the penitentiary at Atlanta and to pay fines of $5000 each has a clear idea of the best way to put an end to this peculiarly indefensible trade. The ten-year sentence has almost wholly been reserved for other offenses which are classed as "greater" only because the habit had been formed of looking at them that way."

Kansas City Star: "It is gratifying to note that those editorials which appear in the Chicago papers from time to time, headed "Too Many Murders," are having their effect. It is announced with pride from that city that only 270 murders took place there in 1923, as against 330 in 1922. The papers were right. The 330 in 1922 were too many. The 270 of 1923 were considerably nearer the ideal number."

Seattle Times: "Twenty years ago it was not difficult to get a pass from the generous-handed railroads, but in these days of feverish investigation the easiest way to get a free ride to Washington, D. C., is to indicate a knowledge of oil deals or to dissemminate rumors concerning public men."

New York Times: "The appeal for funds for transporting, equipping and housing America's team to the Olympic Games is of interest to the entire country. The eighth Olympiad takes place in Paris next summer. America is to be represented by some 350 contestants, selected from all parts of the country. To get these men to Paris, to look after them there and to bring them back will require several hundred dollars per athlete. The American Olympic Committee has wisely decided that it will [illegible] rather to obtain many small subscriptions from persons throughout the country than to solicit large donations from a few wealthy individuals."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Stolen motorcars to a value of over $2,000,000 were taken into Canada from New York alone last year. That is one kind of exportation which does not deserve encouragement. The new Canadian law just passed under which dealers assume a responsibility and are bonded was proposed by honorable dealers themselves to rid their business of the shysters. Thus a blow is struck at the ring of crooks who traded stolen silk for stolen liquor and used stolen cars to haul the booty."

Chicago Tribune: "Senator Norris' resolution for a constitutional amendment to rationalize the inauguration of President and the seating of a new Congress has the necessary two-thirds vote in the Senate and goes to the House. The President would take office on the third Monday in January after election and the new Congress the first Monday in January after election. This would put the new government in office within a reasonable time after the people had decided."

Chicago News: "The senate committee has announced a sensational list of entertainers for the next week, including the rest of the cabinet with the exception of Secretary Hoover. What is the trouble with Herbert Hoover, anyhow? He always seems to be just outside the picture."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

Looks as if the picnic season might have a damper put on it this year in quarantined counties. Health authorities are asking motorists not to stray from main roads and highways, not to trespass on private property or wander through fields where diseased cattle may have been. One case of hoof and mouth disease was traced to picking flowers in a field within the quarantined area, the infection being carried on the feet to other sections. Above all, motorists are asked for that reason to leave their dogs at home—Stockton Record.

The fleet of big gold dredgers in the Hammonton gold fields were silent yesterday from 12 to 1 o'clock and all work ceased in the Yuba gold fields as token of respect to the memory of George L. Huntress, president of the Yuba Consolidated Gold Fields who died at his home in Boston and was buried yesterday.—Marysville Appeal.

We want to correct an impression in the News yesterday as to how it happened our officers were almost overcome when they destroyed a quantity of jack. They were not overcome with sympathy, and they were not overcome with jack. They were just overcome.—Red Bluff News.

Labor union men have launched a Goats' Club of America, with headquarters in San Diego. The governing body of the club will be known as the grand pasture. The purpose of the organization is to promote friendship among labor unionists and care for the sick and injured. But why goats? Probably the other animals have already been pre-empted for club purposes, along with the elks, lions, moose, seals, tigers, etc.—Stockton Record.

"Spudding in" of the test oil well of the Lake County Drilling and Development company, at Clear Lake Highlands near Lower Lake, will be made the occasion of a big celebration next Sunday. The derrick, 134 feet high to the cross beam, is completed. The big rotary drill, brought from the Torrance oil fields in Southern California for the work, will be started on its long journey into the bowels of the earth, initiating a majority of Lake county people into the mysteries of oil development.—Lake County Bee.

Rain of last night and today was worth a great deal to the farmers of this and other sections of the state, but the best news was of the snowfall in the mountains. Our natural reservoirs there bid fair to be well stored with water until the thaw comes to fill streams and produce sufficient electric energy, and fill the irrigation districts.—Hanford Sentinel.

Former Supervisor David Evans, one of the prominent farmers of the Gridley section, was in Oroville yesterday. Mr. Evans declares that this is an ideal "dobe" year, and that the grain crops on the adobe seldom have looked better than they do now. Seasonal showers, he declares, will give grain farmers of the county bumper crops.—Oroville Register.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CHEAT

I cheated a good friend yesterday,
Kept what was his, and went my way.
Wronged him by silence for in haste
I let a glad thought go to waste.

I had a word of cheer to speak,
To strengthen him when he grew weak,
To send him smiling on his way,
But what I thought I didn't say.

He would have richer been to know
That deed of his had pleased me so,
But oh, I failed to let him see
How much his conquest meant to me.

I cheated him of words of praise
Which would have cheered his troubled days;
In this a faithful friend I wronged,
By keeping what to him be'onged.

The praise was his by right to hear,
To him belonged my word of cheer;
In silence, though, from him I turned

THE NEW ITALIAN POETRY.

"There are many signs in the skies from which we might tentatively infer that Italy is on the verge of a new birth of poetry," declares the Italian correspondent of the Dial. "None so clear," he continues, "as the enthusiastic reception that the first book of a man almost unknown until a few months ago has been given especially by the very young, who hail it as the literary gospel of their own generation. Francesco Flora's 'Dal Romanticismo al Futurismo' is a very unusual book, being at the same time a kind of vast, and even prolix 'last judgment' of all modern Italian literature, and the intimate confession of a passionate literary experience. Its author is not a disinterested, contemplative critic: he is a poet who is striving to find his own way. And the few who have read his privately printed 'Immortalita' (a long lyrical poem revealing a thoughtful and mature poetical personality) know that he has either found it already, os is very near finding it."

Thomas Edison, at the age of 77, is as spry as a youngster. That is because he has a clean mind and a clean body; both of which receive exercise.—Hastings Tribune.

REGISTER OR YOU CANNOT VOTE IN PRIMARIES.

Editor of The Tribune:

We have but a few days more in which to prepare for the coming elections. Every taxpayer should see that his name is on the register. He should go a step further and see that his neighbor's name is there before it is too late.

We have many important propositions to vote upon this year. We want the right man nominated for President. We will have bonds for harbor development, school bonds, bonds for a new court house, water bonds and transportation bonds.

The bond proposition for harbor development is very important. If Oakland is to go forward and have a million people by 1930, we must develop the harbor not only along the estuary but the western front as well.

SESAME OIL

The fifth article in The Medicine Cupboard, oil of sesamum, is difficult to get. It is sometimes called teel oil and benne oil. The unadulterated sesame oil can be obtained, but since it is so rarely called for the druggist probably won't have it on hand. He can get it for you, however, through the regular channels of supply. If not, then you'll have to use a substitute for this item in your medicine cupboard, and either sweet almond oil or olive oil may be selected, but sesame oil is superior because it keeps better and when applied to the skin does not tend to clog as other oils do.

Heat some of the oil by standing the bottle in hot water, and dissolve some camphor in it—about half an ounce for two ounces of oil. This makes a camphor liniment which is more familia. nowadays as camphorated oil, which when thus freshly made, is an excellent embrocation for children with bronchitis, pneumonia or coryza. It may be rubbed upon the chest night and morning, or in coryza over the bridge of the nose, but when camphorated oil is applied to the chest of an infant or young child wipe off all excess when you finish the rubbing, so that it will not saturate the clothing or nightdress. This embrocation is always preferable to mustard or turpentine or other irritants when a child is ill. As camphor is volatile, the liniment or oil loses its strength on standing long, so it is better to prepare only an ounce or two as needed.

Persons troubled with harsh dry skin or dryness of scalp and hair will find sesame oil satisfactory. A few drops of it applied to the skin will serve the purpose.

This formula makes an elegant preparation for use on skin or scalp:

Benzoin .....20 grains
Absolute alcohol .....12 drops
Sesame oil .....4 ounces

The benzoin must be well rubbed up with the oil, then heated for two or three hours by standing the vessel within another which contains water, the absolute alcohol added, and the whole filtered or strained. Not a bad idea to have the druggist prepare the whole supply of sesame oil after this formula and keep it in that way—it is likely to turn rancid. Johnny will find it as satisfactory for giving his hair that parent leather finish as mother will for freshening up her complexion or father his razor strop, and it is all right to prepare camphorated liniment for rubbing the baby's chest and throat with when he begins to choke up with a bad coryza, as babies do.

MILK OF MAGNESIA.

Milk of magnesia is a good antiacid, when it is desired to neutralize acidity in the mouth, and also a laxative, acting like salts, only more mildly and particularly when there is much acid or sourness in the stomach. A teaspoonful or two is the dose for a child. It may be given from the spoon or in milk. It has little taste. It may be taken by adults who crave an alkali to oppose acidity in the stomach, or for heartburn, and has the advantage over saleratus (sodium bicarbonate) of not giving rise to the formation of gas itself, but of course is more efficient when taken many times a day. A few doses of a spoonful every half hour or hourly until the laxative effect is obtained will relieve some headaches associated with sour stomach. When a more vigorous catharsis is desirable, a half bottle or whole bottle of the citrate of magnesia solution is better — this is about the only agreeable form in which a saline cathartic may be taken.

EX-PRINCIPAL FACES BANK FRAUD TRIAL

D. L. Flint Under Charges as Embezzler in East Is to Be Arraigned in Ukiah as Embezzler on Friday

UKIAH, April 1.—Daniel LaFayette Flint, former New England school principal, under arrest at Ukiah, charged with defrauding California banks of several thousands of dollars, and wanted in several New England cities for alleged bank and trust frauds, will be arraigned Friday, according to the district attorney's office.

Flint was arrested near Willits Saturday. He has been employed by the state highway commission in road administration work in northern California. The officers who made the arrest stated that Flint had confessed and would plead guilty when arraigned.

BY UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

ONTARIO, Cal., April 1.—Donald L. Flint, known here as Donald L. Forbes, under arrest in Ukiah, Cal., mysteriously disappeared from Ontario September 28, with $273 from the Bank of Italy and a new automobile, according to local authorities.

Flint is claimed to be a "gentleman printer," bank swindler, automobile embezzler and self-styled man of means, was believed to have committed suicide at Paso Robles by drowning himself in the ocean. He sent a notice to local friends expressing such intention.

But of more local interest than Flint's alleged financial activities is his adventures as a middle-aged Romeo. Winning the confidence of Fred P. Smith, a young Englishman, now living here, Flint is claimed to have influenced Smith to send for his sister in England.

She, accompanied by her mother, was en route here when Flint suddenly disappeared, blasting Smith's dream of a foothill orange grove home, with his sister Flint's bride, and all living happily together.

Flint had many feminine friends hereabouts of all ages and received many dinner invitations. Some of them, it is claimed, were only waiting [illegible] but Flint leaped first.

PIONEER OAKLAND WOMAN IS DEAD

Mrs. Eliza D. Kelsey, 96, the oldest living member of the First Congregational church, and one of the earliest settlers in Oakland, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. F. Skellenger, 365 Lester avenue. She was the widow of Wright F. Kelsey, owner of one of the large tracts along what is now Telegraph avenue, in the pioneer days.

Born in Illinois, Mrs. Kelsey came as a bride to Oakland in 1861. The old Kelsey house on Telegraph avenue was a landmark for years. After a residence in Visalia, she returned to this city, where she has since made her home. Mrs. Kelsey affiliated with the First Congregational church in 1862.

Four daughters survive Mrs. Kelsey. They are: Mrs. Skellenger, Mrs. F. F. Starkweather, Mrs. E. G. Davis, Mrs. Robert H. Taylor, all of Oakland.

TRAFFIC COPS TO DROP HATED BRASS BUTTONS

WOODLAND, April 1.—Because they were "kidded to pieces," Traffic Officers George Sharpnack and Henry Jacobs of the state patrol force in Yolo county, have succeeded in having the state motor vehicle department modify its rules and regulations regarding uniforms for traffic officers, so that the local men can dispense with "glaring brass buttons" on their coats. Sharpnack, accompanied by several other valley traffic officers, made personal appeal to Will Marsh, head of the motor vehicle department regarding a more modest uniform, and won their point. Buttons matching the uniform worn were allowed.

Eiseman Counsel Ends Quiz of Girl

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Miss Bertha Colt was again under cross-examination in Superior Judge Ward's court today in the trial of the four officers of the Bankers' Mortgage and Discount Company, charged with violating the corporate securities act.

Attorney Joseph Brown, counsel for J. J. Eiseman, who, with Alexander Abrams, Holmes Ives and N. J. Whelan, constitute the group of defendants, announced at noon that he was finished with his particular line of cross-examination. He had been asking Miss Colt during the morning regarding the various financial transactions of the concern. The witness identified the numerous securities, including promissory notes, stocks and bonds, received in payment for the [illegible] of the concern.

C. of C. Committee Will Study Sources of Water

A decision to support the East Bay Municipal Utilities District and await the engineers' reports to that organization before taking action on sources of water supply for the Eastbay is announced today by the water committee of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

The committee met yesterday for its first regular session at the Hotel Oakland, with O. H. Fischer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presiding. The committee approved the following resolutions:

1—Authorizing the appointment of an executive committee to study the various engineering reports on water sources available to the district, and prepare an independent report on this study to the committee for discussion. Reports will also be made to the Utilities District regularly.

2—Recommending that an open forum be held on the water question in the near future to give members of the Utilities Board an opportunity of outlining the plans and progress of the board.

3—Approving the action of the community council in requesting the public to keep an open mind on the subject while investigations by engineers are being made.

"The purpose of the committee is to study the plans of the Utilities Board, the reports of the various engineers on available sources of supply, and to interpret the facts after they have been carefully analyzed so that the people may be advised of the true conditions," Roscoe Jones, chairman of the committee, said.

Unpledged Delegates Supported by League

A resolution pledging support to the uninstructed delegation to the Democratic national convention was adopted by the Progressive Democratic League of Alameda county at a meeting last night.

Mrs. Mary Lambert, temporary chairman of the league, announced today that an organization meeting of the league will be held tomorrow night at the Hotel Oakland.

SYRUP GIVEN TO STUDENTS CONDEMNED

Food Inspector Harry Smith today condemned two gallons of syrup which, it is alleged, were wrongly dished out to school children, being too strong in proportion to the "sodas" in which they appeared.

Commissioner Frank Colbourn today warned all manufacturers of home-made syrups that there is a correct formula for the manufacture of these syrups, available at the city health department. The home manufacturer, according to Smith, is too prone to load his products with citric acid.

FILM STARS HERE TO PARTICIPATE IN PRESS CLUB SHOW

Priscilla Dean, Louise Fazenda and Lew Cody Arrive; Meet City Officials.

To take a leading part in the second annual Press Club Show, which will be given at the Orpheum theater tonight, three nationally known moving picture stars arrived in Oakland this morning from Hollywood, and were met at the First and Broadway station by members of the board of supervisors, officials of the Chamber of Commerce, representatives of the Press club of Oakland and various city officials.

The visiting party, composed of Priscilla Dean, her companion, Miss Georgia Anderson, Louise Fazenda and Lew Cody, reached here shortly after 10 o'clock. Automobiles donated for the occasion took them to their suites at the Hotel Oakland, and at noon they were the guests of honor at a big membership luncheon at the Press club.

Before the luncheon the stars were taken to the city hall, where they visited the various city officials in their offices and received the keys to the city, and Cody presided over a meeting of the city council, in order to see at first hand the inspiration of the Press club sketch, "Twenty Years After," which will be one of the features of tonight's show.

"After being at today's meeting of the city council," said Cody, "I am convinced that the newspaper boys' act, which they say is a burlesque council meeting, ought to be a 'wow.'"

Following the Press club luncheon, the visitors were taken on an automobile tour of the city and tonight will be the guests at a dinner at the Hotel Oakland by the Chamber of Commerce. After tonight's show they will attend a party for members at the Press club.

Three permits for the construction of apartment houses, each costing $12,000 were issued, and several permits issued were for the construction of bungalows on newly opened residential districts, especially along Fernside boulevard.

Inspector Finds City's Worst Chimney

What is alleged to be the "worst chimney in Oakland" has been discovered by Inspector Charles Heinemann of the city building department, who says he would like to install it in a glass case as a horrible example for future contractors.

The chimney, says Heinemann, was found on a house on Georgia street. There was hardly a point, he charges, where it was not defective. He asserts that the chimney was reinforced with old gas pipe, with old bed-rails for angle-irons. The bricks were plastered together with inferior materials, he asserts, and the whole affair was listed as "shaky."

Three Deny Holding Up Card Players

Pleas of not guilty to charges of first degree robbery were made today by Guido Colle, Lester Scranton and Robert Corkery, alias Owens, when the three were arraigned before Superior Judge Lincoln S. Church. Their trial, which will be a joint hearing, was set for April 24.

Colle, Scranton and Corkery are alleged to have held up several card players in Jack Pelletier's Place, 1218 Fruitvale avenue, September 22, 1923. They escaped with $300 it is said.

Voters from any place in Alameda county may register at these places.

MRS. BARATTI, IN 3RD TRIAL, TRIES TO SHIELD FAMILY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Fencing throughout the morning with Assistant District Attorney Leo Friedman, Mrs. Grace Cheney Baratti lost her composure only once today on the witness stand before Superior Judge Michael Roche. She is being tried for the third time for the alleged murder of her husband, Harry Baratti, December 2, 1922.

Friedman asked the defendant when and where she was born. Attorney James Brennan objected but the court overruled him. Mrs. Baratti, however, absolutely refused to answer. Then on re-direct examination Brennan brought out that she was born in 1893 in Hopkinsville, Kentucky. Her voice broke, and there was a sprinkle of tears when she said that she had a father, mother and sister and that her mother had been sent to England in order that there might be no occasion for her to learn of the present scandal.

On re-cross examination Friedman asked her why she had not told him her birthplace.

"Because I am fighting a battle for myself and I don't want to disgrace my family," she declared.

"How old are you," asked Friedman.

"I want you to figure it."

"If you'll hand me pencil and paper I'll do it for you, but I'm not much of a mathematician."

Asked by Friedman whether her husband was a good musician, she answered, "He considered himself to be so, but I didn't."

Wandering Man Regains Reason

Alameda Rallies for Final Registration

ALAMEDA, April 1.—A final effort to bring Alameda's registration of voters to the highest number possible was completed today under the direction of W. E. Varcoe, city clerk, co-operating with individual registrars and representatives of political clubs.

Registration offices in the city clerk's rooms in the city hall will be kept open tomorrow, Thursday and Friday evenings from 7 until 9, all day Saturday and until registration stops Saturday evening. Registration booths are also being maintained in several public buildings in the city this week.

It is believed registration will be slightly in excess this year than in previous years, Varcoe said. The Republican party has an estimated lead of three-quarters in registration here.

Card Party Planned By Parish Women

An outstanding social event of early spring for St. Francis de Sales parish will be the card party planned for Easter Monday afternoon by the ladies of the church. Mrs. James Traverse, assisted by matrons and young girls, will preside as a reception committee to welcome their guests. Mrs. Margaret Cain, organist at St. Francis de Sales, has prepared a musical program.

'Whiskerino' Is Sought by Club For Trademark

The "Whiskerinos" bloom again.

An application has been filed with the county recorder of Sacramento county for the use of the trademark "Whiskerino" as the emblem and seal of the "Whiskers Club of Camp '49," incorporated in May, 1922.

In an accompanying affidavit, H. E. Diggles, "the only Vice-Chief Whiskerino in the world," states that the organization is formed for the purpose of encouraging "the growth of horny, fibrous substance with a central medulla enclosing pigment cells which, on the outside, are scales like tiles on a roof, forming delicate lines on hair surfaces transverse, oblique or spiral; to assist in and encourage the spreading of the epidemic which raged in and around the Golden West in the year 1849, which, under microscopic examination shows a peculiar fungus growth on the cultural tubes, which after incubating develop into an oval, hairy-like growth eventually developing into a luxuriant growth of whiskers."

It is understood that by-laws of the organization rule against [illegible] and that the application for a trademark is aimed to prevent deception by means of such false facial camouflage.

SUPREME COURT TO GET OREGON'S NEW SCHOOL LAW

Three Federal Judges Rule Measure Unconstitutional; State to Fight.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1.—Appeal direct to the United States supreme court will be taken from the decision rendered yesterday by three federal judges holding the Oregon compulsory public school law adopted by the voters as an initiative measure in 1922 unconstitutional.

Circuit Judge William B. Gilbert, who with District Judges C. E. Wolverton and R. S. Bean rendered the decision, said the case could go to the highest court. Governor Walter M. Pierce, one of the defendants enjoined from enforcing the law, also announced today at Salem that the state would appeal the case.

The opinion of the three judges defended the right of private schools to exist in the state, holding that "their privilege to teach grammar grades must be regarded as natural and inherent."

OPINION GIVEN.

"The act could not be more effective for utterly destroying the business and occupations of the complaintants' schools, except perhaps the colleges and preparatory grades, if it had been entitled 'an act to prevent parochial and private schools from teaching the grammar grades,'" the opinion holds. "This serves to empasize the seriousness of the controversy. Indeed, the simile is no stronger than the argument for the adoption of the measure, which put it:

"'A divided school can no more succeed than a divided nation.' That such is the purpose of the act is obvious and incontrovertible.

"It cannot be successfully combated that parochial and private schools have existed almost from time immemorial—so long, at least, that their privilege and right to teach grammar grades must be regarded as natural and inherent, as much so as the privilege and right of a tutor to teach the German language with the grammar grades, as was held in Meyer vs. Nebraska, supra.

AMENDMENT CITED.

"The absolute right of these schools to teach in the grammar grades (paraphrasing somewhat the language of the court in the case just cited), and the right of the parents to engage them to instruct their children, we think, is within the liberty of the fourteenth amendment.

"The right of the state to establish as its school policy compulsory education within its boundaries is conceded. Practically all the states in the Union have adopted such a policy, and no one disputes its utility for reducing illiteracy and raising the standard of citizenship. But no state has ventured so far as to eliminate parochial and private schools from participating in the promotion of the policy."

Waidely, her husband, came home drunk and shot the pictures of her relatives, which were hanging on the wall, full of holes, was described by Mrs. Kate Waidely, who today has an interlocutory decree of divorce granted yesterday afternoon by Superior Judge J. D. Murphey.

Mrs. Waidely said also that her husband sought the company of other women and that he finally deserted her and their children.

AMNESIA VICTIM FINDS MOTHER IN FIVE-YEAR HUNT

Boy Became Fish Peddler To Finance Travels; Policeman Recognized Him.

CORNING N Y April 1—Suffering nine years from an unusual case of amnesia Earl Davis finally reached the home of his mother the other day after a search that took him throughout the United States and all through a chance recognition by a patrolman who knew him as a boy.

Davis while working in 1915 on a railroad in Detroit, was injured, his mind being affected He was taken to a hospital where he remained four years until he apparently was normal He could just recollect his name was Davis, but not being able to remember his first name, he called himself Edward.

Imbued only with the idea that he must find his mother, Davis started on a search that seemed to be endless He travelled to many towns cities and states without success He had a hazy idea that she was in Williamsport Pa, so he went there but again his search was fruitless

Davis became a fish peddler in order to finance his travels Last June he came to Corning, peddled fish and at the same time endeavored to find his mother Although he has a sister, Mrs Bert Walbridge, who lives here his wanderings failed to bring him to her door and he soon left for other fields. A few days ago he came back, but did not meet his sister.

Later he decided to go to Wellsboro He could not remember his mother's name and therefore had little to work upon While he was walking along one of the streets of Wellsboro chance brought along Patrolman Wilson, who stopped him. After being questioned Davis told the officer he was looking for his mother and Wilson took him to her. She had since married L. P. Walbridge and had lived in Wellsboro several years

Mrs Walbridge had given up all hope for her son, thinking he was dead. When Davis recovered from the accident and the amnesia, he could not remember a single thing that transpired before the accident. He could remember all events afterward and the reunion with his mother seemed to even further strengthen him He has gone to Washington to work

LABOR MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT MAY FORM UNION

Solons Contemplate Demand For More Pay and Shorter Hours.

LONDON, April 1—Believing theirs to be a "sweated trade" Labor members of Parliament are seriously thinking of starting a "union" of their own

Their main grievance is that, most of them being trade union officials, after a hard week's work in the House of Commons they have to rush down on Friday evenings to their constituencies, see that all their union affairs are in order, settle disputes attend to accounts and then address two or three political meetings Then, on Sunday evening or Monday morning, they have to rush back again to the House of Commons

And a member of Parliament who takes his work seriously these days must be prepared to put in a strenuous fifteen hours daily When with attendance at debates Standing Committees Select Committees and Department Inquiries he works as often as not, from 10 o'clock in the morning to 1 o'clock the next morning

Some of them are complaining that this existence amounts to practical slavery and they are protesting against it They are asking for a raise in salary from $2 000 to $3 000 yearly a free pass between London and their constituencies and a minimum working day of not more than ten hours for 6 days a week

Invention Turns Light Rays Into Audible Sounds

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

PARIS, April 1—It now is possible really to hear the "Song of the Stars"—thanks to researches undertaken by General Ferie, M Jouaust and Major Mesny, who have succeeded in transforming light rays into audible sounds, according to a description of their invention read at a meeting of the Academy of Science.

The experimenters, starting with the known fact that under the action of light, photo-electric cells with a foundation of selenium give off an extremely feeble electric current, succeeded in amplifying current with a four-electrode lamp Using this apparatus they obtained variations of current of 3.5 micro-amperes with light from the star Capella untold millions of miles from the earth

Continuing their experiment with more powerful amplifiers they succeeded in "hearing the light rays through telephone headpieces.

DENVER CHURCH FLOCK MOURNS BAN ON CLARET

By MICHAEL F DACLY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DENVER Apr 1—Sorrow reigns amongst the parishioners of Bishop Frank H Rice's Liberal church here following refusal by the Secretary of State's office of Colorado to sanction the purchase by Bishop Rice of two gallons of claret wine for sacramental purposes

Scores of worshippers many carrying their own individual tin cups milled frantically in the church on a recent Sunday, uttering disappointment as Bishop Rice announced that the first holy communion scheduled for the morning

"Put away your cups" announced the bishop "for the state says we can't have the wine"

A [illegible] demonstration ensued The [illegible] the [illegible] Bishop Rice announced previously that communion would be given in the form of sparkling claret wine groaned and [illegible] but managed to maintain a semblance of dignity

The federal government approved our application for two gallons of inspirational claret for Sunday," said Bishop Rice "and mailed a permit to a local drug company authorizing them to deliver the fluid The Secretary of State however, refused to sanction the transaction doubting the character of the Liberal church"

There was a stir in the audience The attendance had broken all records and the bishop and his board of directors wondered where all the maverick sinners had come from so suddenly, clamoring for salvation

The comparative calm manner in which the sad announcement was accepted by the regular parishioners is believed to have had a restraining effect upon the newcomers

It was indeed a keen disappointment to us all though Bishop Rice said later

"We shall not submit to fanatic persecution" he declared later announcing that he was preparing to take the case into the courts "My flock shall have their wine"

Attorney-General Wayne Williams was [illegible]

"I find after investigation that his so-called church is a religion" the Attorney General announced "and they shall have no wine"

The Liberal church was organized about a year ago by Rice a former publicity agent who was elected bishop of the congregation The organization was incorporated and Bishop Rice announced that flying machines radios and all modern lawful means would be used by the Liberal church in spreading the true gospel of religion

Pending settlement of the controversy over the sacramental wine Bishop Rice has decided to use near beer Eight gallons of this liquid were used in filling the tin cups that were brought to the communion on the first Sunday

Waste not want not

L A Carton

This quotation is from page 10 of Swift & Company's 1924 Year Book. It is the watchword for the year given to our organization by L. A. Carton, Treasurer, in his address to Shareholders at the 39th Annual Meeting.

"Waste not, want not" is fundamental in a business like ours, dependent for its profits on savings obtained through the elimination of waste and through putting to its highest use every particle of raw material.

Our margin of profit is so extremely small, amounting to only a small fraction of a cent per pound, that only those who practice this old fashioned precept can get along in the packing business.

The 1924 Year Book tells about many other interesting phases of the packing business.

THERE IS NO SATISFACTORY SUBSTITUTE FOR A WOOL RUG

Wool is the material real rugs are made of

STEP from a cement sidewalk to a close-cut lawn, or from an uncovered floor to a soft wool rug. Note how the change affects you. More convincing still, move your chair from the hard unyielding floor to the center of an Alexander Smith rug.

The difference is magical. Real comfort, perfect relaxation, a feeling of untroubled ease and deep content; such are the gifts of a wool floor covering—such is the bounty of an Alexander Smith rug.

Pleasing color on the floor is always important. In most rooms, so is pleasing pattern. But without soft texture, color and pattern mean nothing. Were it possible to employ a Michael Angelo to paint a rug upon your floor, his genius could give you only a picture of the rug—not the rug itself. Though a masterpiece in line and color it would be as hard, noisy and uncomfortable to live upon as the bare floor itself.

Alexander Smith rugs are wool rugs—which means that they are soft, comfortable, grateful to the tread and soothing to the eye.

You will find them in the charming colorings and smart designs, both plain and figured, demanded by women of taste and discrimination. Furthermore, these rugs are sold at prices within the reach of everyone.

Go to a dealer who carries a representative stock of Alexander Smith rugs. Ask him to show you the many attractive patterns. He will be glad to help you select the one best suited to your needs.

The Story of The Bible

BY HENDRIK VAN LOON

Author of the Story of Mankind will be published in the Oakland TRIBUNE beginning

SUNDAY, APRIL 6

Hendrik Van Loon, in a foreword addressed to his two boys, Hansje and Willem, says about this book:

"Dear Boys: This is a story of the Bible. I have written it because I think you ought to know more about it and I could not tell you where to go for the sort of information I want you to have.

". . . Many little boys of your age have been frightened away from the Bible by solemn faces.

"And yet you can never be thoroughly educated without knowing these stories.

"This book has been a most faithful companion to man for several hundred generations. For many centuries it was the only book read by your ancestors. They knew it by heart.

"They made the Law of Moses their law.

"I am not preaching to you. I am not defending or attacking a cause. I shall merely tell you what you ought to know that your lives may be more full of understanding, of tolerance, and of love for that which is good and beautiful and therefore holy."

The Story of The Bible

tells how the Bible was written, how the Jews believed the world was created, of the slavery in Egypt, the delivery from slavery by Moses, the founding of the Jewish nation in Palestine, the story of Ruth, the glory of King Solomon, the exile into Babylon, the freedom under Cyrus the Great, rebuilding of the holy temple at Jerusalem, the activities of the Prophets, how the Jews were conquered by Alexander of Macedon, about the Jewish Kings, the conquest of Rome, the Birth of Jesus, the career of John the Baptist, the teachings of Jesus, persecution of Jesus by the priests, Jesus crucified, the Twelve Disciples, Paul and Peter beginning the Christianization of Rome and how Christianity survived the Roman Empire.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY

by Ad Schuster

BLEW UP

THIS happened in the old days and Jack Hodge, in common with many another, had the failing against which the Eighteenth Amendment is directed. He belonged to the reckless and eternally aggr eved order of newspaper photographers and upheld the traditions of his kind by maintaining ever that he was a subject of unjust discrimination.

"Right now," Jack complained, "he asked me to get a picture of And. Werseth! Ash's it just as easy as if he wanted me to snap a shot of the postoffice." Jack, with his camera and plate holder was off.

Andy Werseth, giant leader of a waterfront union, had a prejudice against photographers and photographs. No one had taken a close-up of the man in action—or, if he had, no one had escaped with the plates intact. Andy's followers saw to that.

Jack stood in the background while Andy delivered a speech. Cautiously he opened the shutter of the camera, fumbled with the flashlight apparatus and pulled the trigger. Andy stopped, amazed, in the middle of a sentence. A dozen men jumped at Jack.

"Break the camera! Throw him out!" Jack backed away.

"Ah, now boys, don't smash my machine! Here, take the plates but don't wreck the box."

There was just a moment in which the fate of the camera hung in the balance. Then someone shouted, 'fair enough." The plates were smashed and Jack went his way. Outside he fumbled under his vest, pulled out a second plateholder and hastened on. He had the pictures but would not date show up in that part of town for a month. That is one of the tricks which made Jack valuable and offset the failing which rendered him unreliable. It is recited as introduction to his great adventure.

One afternoon the report came in of an explosion at a powder mill across the bay.

Jack was sent to picture the ruins and ordered to return at once. Muttering at the fortune which made him get all the hard jobs, he was off, his hands loaded with paraphernalia. A report came in there had been a second explosion not so severe, and the city editor hoped Jack had been there to get it. With no word from the photographer and the deadline approaching, there came an air of suspense. Jack did not appear and the air changed to suspicion.

"If that fellow is drunk," the city editor put it baldly, "he is fired."

Deadline for the mail edition passed. There were no explosion pictures for the next two editions. Then Jack badly battered and unsteady arrived with his camera and a studied attitude of dignity. The city editor wasted no time.

"Did I get the picture? I was there when she blew up. I got a picture of an explosion exploding. A wonderful, very wonderful picture."

The city editor grinned. "Hurry it up then, take it to the dark room and the other boys will shove it through."

"Oh yes, but the pictures are busted, blown up in the explosion. Now you listen to this. . . . You gotta."

With no pictures, there was no work to do. The late watch crowded around and Jack, appreciating a sympathetic audience, went on: "I arrived at the schene of ackshun, set up my camera, got ready, pushed the bottom and gingo!" He looked around. "There was another explosion, fearful one. It blew me backwards but I held onto my camera. It blew me way over a field, but I never let go. It knocked the wind and the senses out of me, but I remembered the paper.

"Well, sir, I landed most a block away and on the sidewalk, bang up against a saloon—only I didn't know it, being unconscious. The bartender came out to see what bumped into his place and found me. He dragged me inside, poured some brandy in me to bring me to.

"If I had had my senses I would not have stood for it. He kept on pouring the stuff in me and when I recovered I found I had broken my promise to keep sober. First thing I did was to look at my plates. They were busted—and that's what I feel so sad about."

There was a full minute of admiring silence. The city editor looked at the plateholder and broken plates, scowled fiercely, then grinned. "On the strength of the story, Jack, you win this time, but it's the last. Only," he called to the departing photographer, "only you aren't fooling us a bit. If you had been wise, or sober, you would have rubbed the heel mark off that holder. You stamped on the plates to make good the yarn and the chances are that you were never within a mile of the explosion."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

by Adele Garrison

THE WAY DICKY SURPRISED MADGE BY HIS CHANGED ROUTINE.

"I DON'T mind at all," I found myself saying steadily, in answer to Dicky's question, but my brain was busy with queries which I did not dare to put.

Why the sudden decision to go to the studio? I knew from his own comments that he had nothing important on hand and the wound on his head, even though it had received competent surgical attention surely gave him ample excuse for remaining at home, even if there had been any one but himself to whom he had to give excuses.

Why the undeniable and unusual interest in the voices of Mrs. Marks and Mollie Fawcett outside our door? Why the comment, "that is an English name," almost as if he had seen the girl's odd type and noticed the incongruity between her name and her appearance.

Was it possible—I pushed a fantastic conjecture back into a brain compartment and locked the door upon it. But—I did not throw away the key, and I know that some time, when I had leisure to consider anything beside the commonplaces of housekeeping again, I should release the fanciful guess and give it a thorough investigation.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" I asked the perfunctory question equably.

"Not a thing, old dear. Thanks, just the same. I hope the water's hot for my shave."

"If it isn't, I can heat some very quickly," I returned. "But I'm sure it is."

He went into the bathroom and the next minute I heard his voice in a satisfied comment.

"Not as the lingers [illegible]"

A PLEASANT PROSPECT.

The closing of the door cut off his final word, and with a wry little smile at his characteristic expression I took my parcels down the hall to the kitchen and donning a kitchen apron put them away in refrigerator and cupboard until Dicky should have gone. Cooking is almost a rite with me, I so thoroughly enjoy it—almost as much as I detest the clearing up process afterwards—and I wanted no distractions while preparing the dinner which I meant to be one of the best of my record.

I could distinguish only the distant murmur of voices in the next apartment, and I guessed that Mrs. Marks had taken her unexpected guest into the kitchen at the back and shut the door, where their chatter would not disturb the saturnine "Petey." Suddenly I discovered that I was straining my ears to hear any chance word, and with a wave of disgust at myself I fled back to the living-room again.

MADGE IS CURIOUS.

I almost stopped short in the hall, however, on discovering that the bathroom door stood ever so slightly ajar. It was not possible for any one in the hall to see Dicky at his shaving, but the circumstance gave me much food for conjecture. The bathroom opening upon the public hall in this apartment always had been one of his strongest objections to the place, and he never had shaved in it before without closing and locking the door. Why had he broken his rule this morning? Was it possible that his curiosity to see Mollie Fawcett was so strong that he meant to inspect her through the crack of the door should she leave the Marks apartment before he finished shaving?

I loathed myself for the conjecture, but I could not keep it out of my mind, and when Dicky came hurriedly into the living-room and rushed through his dressing in record-breaking time I kept my ears open for any indication of the girl's departure from the Marks' domicile.

But there was no sign of her when Dicky finally was ready to depart. He kissed me perfunctorily, with an air of pre-occupation, went into the hall, and I heard a minute after the emphatic closing of the lower hall door which always heralds his departure.

What instinct took me to the front window. I do not know, for in that area of cheap apartments I declined to make one of the company of women who waved languishingly to their departing spouses. But I rushed to the window, and raising it noiselessly, leaned far out to see which way he had gone.

But nowhere was Dicky to be seen.

Fresh Battalions of Fountain Pens Rush Into Verbal Affray

AND THE BATTLE WAS OPENED BY A WOMAN

A Kindly Spirit and An Understanding of The Other Countries

The English and American Woman are still at it, and as the war is being waged through these columns there is no hair pulling. However, mere physical violence pales besides a good old fountain pen or the typewriter, and the replies to an English Woman are still arriving.

Dear Geraldine:

When I read An English Woman's letter in the Sunday paper I sure was boiling mad. We were just having breakfast and it nearly spoiled my appetite, though I try never to let such narrow-minded ignorance effect me. To think this individual belongs to the same nationality as myself hurts me, but then, of course, you know, Geraldine, we English women are not ALL like that. I also have traveled more than half around the globe and worked and lived among the people of other nations, learned to speak their different languages and to understand their different ideas and customs, and I found in every country there are good and bad, just like in our own. What a wonderfully charitable disposition this English woman has, too, so Christian!

So the One Who Sins ought to be shot at sunrise for having such a letter published? I wonder, dear English sister, are you not ashamed to express such sentiments when Christ said, "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more."

Yes, English Woman, Geraldine publishes letters just as she receives them from the people (good and bad). I know, for she has put all mine into print. I hope she will put this one in, too, so you may see it. I have met others such as you who are blind to their own faults and the faults of their own country, but go elsewhere and do nothing but criticise and make themselves unpleasant. Why don't you pack up and go home, for none wants your kind here?

I've lived in America about ten years and I see nothing about the American girls in general which isn't perfectly all right. On the whole, they are freer and less prudish and protected than their English sisters, but I rather think that is an advantage. Remember, English Woman, "barmaids" (they don't have them in America, thank goodness) are not the only ones in England who use powder and paint indiscriminately. Some of our nobility do so also, and haven't you ever walked down Piccadilly or Regent street and seen some made-up frights? Haven't you ever been on 'appy 'amsted 'eath on a Sunday afternoon or Bank holiday, or maybe down to the Welsh 'arp and seen the quintessence of vulgarity displayed there? But, of course, as I said, you are blind when it comes to picking your OWN country to pieces.

I thoroughly agree with Geraldine that our modern dress is more healthful, modest and becoming than it has ever been before. Although I have not been in England recently, pictures we receive from there show just about the same styles as worn here.

Dear English Woman, if you go back to England and look around you with the same nasty criticising way you are doing here, you will find what you are looking for there also, but if you are going to stay here, it would be advisable to begin to look for the good things and advantages of this country. You'd feel a lot better yourself and wouldn't make yourself nearly so unpleasant to others.

And now, Geraldine, thank you for the nice compliment you paid me regarding my character analysis of "Why." Once more with best wishes,

JUST BECAUSE.

ALL ENGLISHWOMEN ARE NOT INCLUDED.

I want the gang to understand just one thing. We're not attacking all Englishwomen in these columns just because ONE lone member threw a couple of brickbats at us. If we do that, what's the difference between her method and ours? But most of the folks who read these columns resent a woman from another country coming here and lumping the sum total of ALL Americans into one class.

JERRY SAYS

I am not at all sure that I deserve the following letter, maybe that's why I'm going to print it. The thing we don't "deserve" is always a surprise, and charming because we didn't expect it.

Dear Geraldine:

Will you please let me cop your shoulder for a wee bit? I would like to have a confab with An English Woman.

My dear lady, CURIOSITY is a thing that teems in every woman's mind, and you have put an extra amount of it in my mind, and I'm wondering how you get that way, in showing such an abominable, dramatic way of censoring One Who Sins? Did you never at any time read the Scripture where it says, "He who is without sin, should cast the first stone," and "there was none who dared, for they were all born with sin as well as good qualities in their veins," and the GOOD BOOK said not a word about the English women being excepted, now did it? Nor does the Good Book, in any place, lay a disapproving hand upon the shoulders of the American women. Now, according to my beliefs and teachings, that Book was given humanity to teach humanity the best way to live and get the best out of life, and any one who reads it knows it tries to teach us to be charitable in our attitude toward our fellow man. Now it seems to me you have either failed to have that great and glorious book (The Bible) among your collection of books, or you have not grasped its teachings, so come back and confess whether you have given to your tender, or not tender, years, without some of the knowledge it contains.

And, again, who are you, that you should be the judge whether anyone, saint or sinner, should be shot at sunrise. Lo, and behold to my mind you have committed a far greater sin than what the One Who Sins confessed she had, or was doing, by saying she should be shot at sunrise. A big mouthful, girlie, for a stranger to utter, especially when you know no more than what the rest of us know about One Who Sin's life, or the circumstances, or conditions, that leads her into such a temptation.

Now, please do not conceive the idea that I approve of the way she felt, because I surely do not, but neither do I feel that I am the judge of her soul to pass sentence upon her. That is for ONE who is greater than I. Furthermore, let me whisper to you that it is a great blessing to humanity that our worthy Geraldine is an American woman, and possessed of far more [illegible] in her soul and mind th[illegible] you seemingly possess. [illegible] were of your caliber [illegible] detriment she would be, [illegible] of the good Samaritan she [illegible] her columns, in trying to guide, uplift and alleviate the hurts of mankind.

Many times I do not agree with her replies to letters, but no two pair of eyes see alike nor do two minds think alike, and I, as well as she or any one else, am apt to err in my judgment, and down in my heart I know there is not one of Jerry's gang who are as capable as she to fill the position she holds, either with the paper or the gang.

Jerry may err in some of her replies, but the very fact that everyone knows that her heart and mind are absolutely in the right in her effort to help humanity overshadow any slight mistake she might make in her interpreting a letter. She did that for me once, for she answered my letter once, more than two years ago, by saying it was me and my kind who crucified Christ. Did I hold it against her? I did not, for I knew she did not know me personally, nor know my experience of life as I had seen it, therefore, it rolled off like water off a duck's back. For GOD alone is the only one to know me as I am, besides myself.

Now, my friend, examine yourself and make sure you are without sin before passing judgment on others who have sinned.

AN AMERICAN WOMAN AND MOTHER.

A LAPSE INTO THE POETIC VEIN.

WHO IS GERALDINE? I BELIEVE I KNOW.

Geraldine is a worthy scribe,
Who is piloting her ship o'er the seas so wide:
She is master, mate and the chucker of coal,
As her ship rides over the seas's roughest shoal.
She stands with her compass clutched in her hand,
Lest the shifting winds make her lose command
Of the staunch noble ship with its cargo of brains,
And old Davy Jones another resident claims.

Geraldine is a mystery, sure,
If she were not, she'd never endure
The knocks and the tussle of the gang,
As their merry old souls blissfully sang;
She is this and that, as they pulled her in twain,
And her efforts would be lost as she sought to gain
The confidence of those in doubt about life,
With its joys and gladness, its sorrow and strife.

Supposing we all knew who Geraldine was,
Would it be any aid in her uplifting cause;
For does anyone like an acquaintance to know
Their querulous perplexities as they go,
Rambling along with a vision not clear,
And their hearts filled with doubt and fear?
No, those inner thoughts are hid with care,
And personal acquaintances cannot share.

Life's sea is wide, but o'er its sails
A ship that's made to weather gales;
Its captain is a mysterious scribe,
Who keeps her outlook far and wide.
While her heart is teeming with kindness pure,
To share with those who need a cure
For life's hard bumps that knock us stiff,
Then, this mysterious captain is there to lift.

More power to her, feed her oil and gas,
Let us have her love and her jolly sass,
We need it as we travel along,
To give us courage, to give us song;
For life's a mystery, that deftly sways
Our minds to where the channel plays
Upon the rocks where danger lurks,
But now that's where our Jerry works.

—JEANE BAUDOUINE.

I'm sorry, friend, if I've misunderstood some letter in the past. I'm sorry, not because of the letter you've written, but because I don't like to misjudge folks. I don't remember the subject that must have aroused my ire in your previous communication, but here is my hand in friendship, if you'll take it.

KNOWLEDGE GAINED OF WORLD BY TRAVEL.

Dear Geraldine:

Those who have been deprived of early educational advantages but later in life are privileged to travel the world over, and while so doing use their powers of observation to the best advantage, gain an insight into world affairs which is readily discernible when they express themselves.

From English Woman's letter I would conclude that she is like certain famous characters who, having eyes, saw not; and having ears, heard not. It seems incredible that any person having traveled in many countries could still maintain a viewpoint so narrow-minded.

However, when one considers her ignorance of conditions from a moral standpoint in her own country, it is hardly to be expected that she would gain anything from touring the world.

Now, Miss, or Mrs. English Woman, America does not need you. Why stay here where your sensibilities will be offended daily by the vulgar display of American styles? We showed you in '76 and 1812 that we are quite able to manage our own affairs, and if the statement of a noted English clergyman is correct, and I have no reason to believe it otherwise, regarding moral conditions in your own country, there is where your presence is really needed. And all the rest of your English sisters who think as you do. If there is any patriotic instinct left in you, join the forces of those who are trying to stem the tide of moral degeneration that is undermining English home life.

From the number of illegitimate births recorded in England, your own country women have registered themselves as strongly as being not altogether above criticism.

NO MONOPOLY ON SUPPLY OF CONCEIT.

You say that American men are conceited. Well, if there is a more conceited individual than the average Englishman, I have yet to meet him. Permit me to relate a personal experience which could be classed as a fair average.

Some 20 years ago in Southern California a native Englishman said, "It was impressed upon me by my parents from childhood that there was only one race of people who really amounted to anything, and that, of course, was the English race. All other people were to be considered as inferior to the English and were to be treated so. I grew to manhood and came to America under this false impression. The north I did not consider peopled by men fit for an Englishman even to associate with. So I hastily left New York for the South, and after sojourning there for several months, I met a man who seemed to be quite a fine fellow. His views seemed to be very similar to mine, and I finally decided there was one man in America a fit companion for an Englishman. From time to time, after this, I met other men who seemed also to qualify, and after passing six or seven years in America I came to realize that there were many real men here as in my country, England."

H. A. LOCKWOOD.

I don't quite see why it is necessary to point out moral laxity in one country in order to boost another. That is what English Woman did. The Englishman who believes in HIS country, first, last and all the time, was merely PATRIOTIC. We are patriotic here, else why quote '76 and 1812 as shining examples in OUR record. Maybe they were, but we want the good spirit of the world and understanding of the other fellow's country. Maybe in THAT way we'll do away with bloodshed and wars.

April Fool!

"How lovely it smells!" exclaimed Betty Cut-out when Freda took her into the greenhouse. Betty drew in a long breath. "What are these pink bell-shaped flowers?"

"Those," said Freda filling her watering can, "are hyacinths. I'll tell you the names of all the flowers as we water them, and you may smell each one as long as you like."

"What kind of flower grows from this bulb?" Betty asked.

"That's a narcissus," smiled Freda. "This next is a pepper plant. You must smell it, too." Betty put her nose close to the plant. Then she began to sneeze and sneeze. "April Fool!" cried Freda, doubling up with laughter. "It's not a pepper plant! It's a rose bush! I sprinkled pepper over it to fool you!"

"A-choo!" was all Betty could say.

WITCHES' & PIRATES' STORY DEN

Postscript by Aunt Elsie

Dear Pals:

Are you happy when you see your names on the Honor Roll? I know you are and I am going to tell you Francis and Marion Christensen were especially happy when they saw on the Honor Roll the name of their playmate, Thelma Snyder. You see, Thelma used to be their very dear playmate until they moved away to 1734 Allston way, Berkeley, and until they saw Thelma's name on the Honor Roll, they had not seen or heard of her. So, Witch Thelma, you'd better hurry and write to them and send them your address for they do want to find you again.

P. S. is going to mean Pleasing (the) Sick for a few minutes while I tell you something which is heaps of fun to do if you happen to be tucked in bed with a pain in your head. When Pirate Bruce Provost fell out of a tree and had to be in bed he invented a game so I have saved it for you. Here it is and he calls it: "The Fishing Game." "Take a string about three feet long, a hairpin, shaped like a hook and attach it to the string. Take a pair of scissors, put them on the floor and then try to fish them up with the string." Now I know how hard it is to have to stay in bed with those horrid old measles or a sore toe and now that the fishing season is just about here I wouldn't let Daddy get ahead of me, but if I were you I'd get my fishing tackle and drop a line, too, even if all I could catch IS a scissors-fish!

Alma Peretti says that P. S. means Pretty Songs so of course, I must make one for you. Songs must have words and Mary Helen Woods' prize poem just sang itself to me when I read it so here on the page is OUR song and the title of it is: "My Sister." We hope you will all like it.

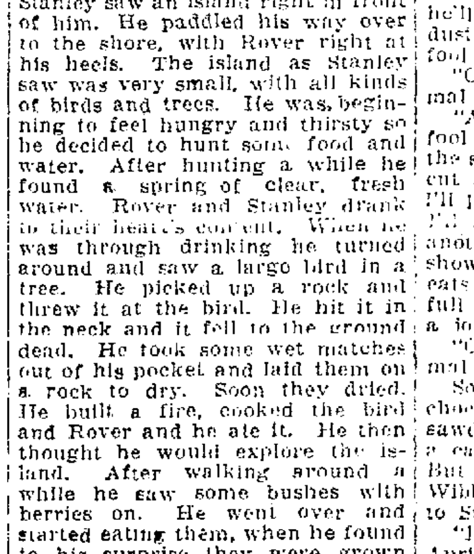

Now that gives me an idea. I'd like to catch a pirate with a tune in his head. Usually pirates carry wicked looking knives between their teeth, but if there is a pirate with a jolly, rollicking, blood curdling, slap banging pirate song between his teeth hurry up and write it and we'll print it on the page and make it The Pirates' Song. A prize for the best words and I'll make the music. Hist! Pirates: Pieces of Eight and Sixteen Dead Men!!!! Get an inspiration! Quick!

THE SHIPWRECK.
PRIZE WINNER.

The ship tossed and pitched about in the storm. Then all of a sudden there came a crash followed by a jerk. The passengers were told the boat had struck a rock. Everybody rushed for the lifeboats. An SOS was sent by the ship's wireless. The rescue crew came in about twenty minutes as the ship wasn't far off the coast. Then in about half an hour the wrecking crew thought they had picked up everyone. But they hadn't. One young man had jumped off the boat with his dog. The young man's name was Stanley and his dog's name was Rover. He had a life preserver and his dog also. After many hours of drifting the first signs of dawn came. Then lo! Stanley saw an island right in front of him. He paddled his way over to the shore, with Rover right at his heels. The island as Stanley saw was very small, with all kinds of birds and trees. He was beginning to feel hungry and thirsty so he decided to hunt some food and water. After hunting a while he found a spring of clear, fresh water. Rover and Stanley drank to their heart's content. When he was through drinking he turned around and saw a large bird in a tree. He picked up a rock and threw it at the bird. He hit it in the neck and it fell to the ground dead. He took some wet matches out of his pocket and laid them on a rock to dry. Soon they dried. He built a fire, cooked the bird and Rover and he ate it. He then thought he would explore the island. After walking around a while he saw some bushes with berries on. He went over and started eating them, when he found to his surprise they were grown over a cave. He went in and saw large chests of money. He went out of the cave and to his wonder saw a ship at sea. He built a fire so as to signal to it. He saw the men lowering a boat and coming toward the island. When the men arrived on the island Stanley told them about the money. They got it on board the ship. The ship was bound for San Francisco. They arrived very soon. Stanley took the money to the police station. The police found a note in one of the chests which read:

This belongs to C. K.—(Captain Kidd).

Captain Kidd was dead so Stanley received all the money. He spent it very wisely, helping those who weren't so fortunate, and then he married the girl he loved.

EASTER.
PRIZEWINNER.

It was near Easter and Betty had grown very cross and naughty. The Easter bunnies held a meeting. The leader of them said: "We must send letters to Betty. She has grown very careless." "Yes, that is what we will do," said all the other bunnies. The next day there was a nice big fat letter for Betty. She loved to get letters. The letters contained a necklace. Betty was delighted. "Now, I will read my letter from the Bunnies," said Betty. The letter said: "Dear Betty: We are sending you this letter to let you know that on Easter we will not bring you any Easter eggs and we will take the pearls back if you are not good. Lovingly yours, The Easter Bunnies."

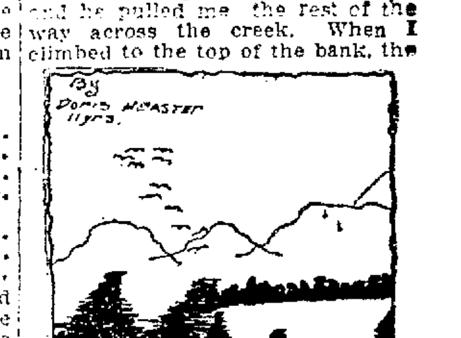

Betty was so astonished that she nearly bursted out in tears. Anyway, after that Betty was always good and kind.

AN ADVENTURE WITH A HORSE.
PRIZEWINNER.

One winter day when I was in the country, I got permission to ride on a very spirited horse. As soon as I got in the saddle, the horse started off at a gallop. It kept going at a fast rate down hill. As we came dashing around a sharp curve, I saw a deep creek directly in front of me. The water was rushing at a tremendous rate across our path. I tried to make the horse stop, but it was useless because he was going too fast to stop at such a short distance. The creek was about thirty feet distant as we came dashing around the curve. As soon as he reached the brink of the creek he gave a big leap and landed square in the middle of the creek, throwing me head first into the icy water. When I came up I was shocked by the coldness of the water. The horse was a few feet ahead of me and I gathered my thoughts together and swam hard for his tail. I reached him and caught hold of his tail and he pulled me the rest of the way across the creek. When I climbed to the top of the bank, the horse galloped away towards home, leaving me to gaze at him until there was just a black speck in the distance. Then my gaze fell down to my soaking wet clothes, dripping like a water faucet. I felt a cold shiver run down my back and then I had to walk all the way home only to spend six days in bed with a very bad cold.

Uncle Wiggily Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S APRIL FOOL.

One upon a time some of the animal boys and girls of Woodland, where Uncle Wiggily lived, gathered in the barn back of the coop house where Charlie Chick lived.

"This is April Fool's Day," said Billie Wagtail, the goat. "Let's play some tricks on Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh, that'll be lots of fun," cried Baby Bunty. "I tried to put salt in his coffee, instead of sugar, this morning, but Nurse Jane saw me and made me stop." Baby Bunty was living, for a time, in the rabbit gentleman's hollow stump bungalow.

"I know how we can play a dandy trick on him!" barked Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog.

"How?" asked Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey.

"I'll get a big chocolate candy at the store," went on Jackie. "I'll scoop out the soft, inside part and one of us can eat that, 'cause it's good."

"No, I'll eat it!" mewed Tommie Kat.

"I guess I'd better eat it myself!" chuckled Jackie. "Anyhow, after we scoop out the soft, inside part of the chocolate candy we'll fill the hole up with sawdust and when Uncle Wiggily bites on it he'll get his mouth full of sawdust! Won't that be a fine April fool joke?"

"Oh, fine! Fine!" cried the animal boys.

"And I know another way to fool him," said Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel. "I'll get a carrot and cut a hole in it. Inside the hole I'll put some hot red pepper. And I'll stuff the hole up again with another piece of carrot so it won't show. Then when Uncle Wiggily eats the carrot he'll get his mouth full of red pepper. How's that for a joke?"

"Oh, fine! Fine!" cried the animal boys.

So Jackie hurried off to get the chocolate candy he was to fill with sawdust, and Johnnie looked for a carrot to stuff with red pepper. But after the boys were gone, Lulu Wibblewobble, the duck girl, said to Susie Littletail, the rabbit:

"Do you think those are nice April fool jokes to play on Uncle Wiggily?"

"No," answeredd Susie, "I don't."

"Then let's fool the boys!" whispered Lulu. "We'll take the sawdust candy away, when Jackie isn't looking, and we'll put a good candy in place of it, and Uncle Wiggily will eat that."

"Oh, yes," whispered Susie. "And I'll put a good carrot in place of the red peppery one that Johnnie is going to stuff."

So Jackie scooped the soft, creamy inside out of a big chocolate candy and, in place thereof, he put sawdust, sealing the candy up again. And Johnnie fixed up the April fool carrot.

But while the boys were looking for Uncle Wiggily, to play these tricks on him, the animal girls played a joke on the boys. Lulu took away Jackie's funny candy and, in its place, put a good one, fresh from the store. Susie did the same with Johnnie's carrot.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" barked Jackie, wagging his tail.

"Oh, hello, my dear little friends," greeted the rabbit gentleman, smiling happily. "What is going on today, that you all look so jolly? It must be something special."

"Give him the candy," whispered Billie Wagtail, to Jackie. So the puppy dog boy held out the chocolate drop and said:

"Have a candy, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Thank you, I will," spoke the bunny. He put the candy in his mouth and chewed on it. Jackie,

'Have a candy, Uncle Wiggily!'

Billie and the others were just getting ready to laugh, for they thought they would see a funny look on Uncle Wiggily's face as he tasted the sawdust. But the bunny just smiled, smacked his lips and said:

"That was a fine candy, Jackie!" For you see, he had eaten the good one that Lulu put in place of the bad one in Jackie's pocket.

Then Johnnie the squirrel took out a carrot.

"Try this, Uncle Wiggily," he invited. And the bunny nibbled the carrot. The animal boys got ready to laugh this time, for they thought they would hear the bunny cough and sneeze when he tasted the red pepper.

"That was a fine carrot, Johnnie," said Uncle Wiggily. And it was, for Susie had put a good one in place of the bad one in Johnnie's pocket.

The animal boys looked at one another. They couldn't understand.

"April fool!" cried Lulu and Susie. "April Fool! April Fool on you boys!"

Uncle Wiggily also laughed. The boys looked foolish. And then, all of a sudden, the Woozie Wolf popped out of the bushes.

"Quick, Jackie—Johnnie! Give the Wolf the sawdust chocolate cream and the red pepper carrot!" whispered Lulu. "The April Fool things are here!" and the girls took them from their pockets.

And, when the Wolf chewed on the sawdust in the April Fool candy and nibbled the red pepper carrot, the Wolf coughed, sneezed, turned a somersault and away he ran.

"April Fool! April Fool!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "The bad chap was fooled, anyhow!" And so he was. But it all happened for the best, didn't it? And Mr. Longears forgave the boys for trying to play tricks on him, and took them all to the movies.

And if the fried egg doesn't talk in its sleep and wake up the gold fish I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Tippy Snowtail.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

By Mildred Marshall

AMELIA.

Amelia is derived from that remarkable word Amal, which has formed the root of so many proper names. It appears in practically every language and means "work." As early as the days of the Vikings it was incorporated into masculine and feminine names.

The first Amilas was an armourer in the court of King Nielung. Aumlung, another of the early versions, appears in the "Book of Heroes" as naming Aumlung the Strong, and there was Duke Aumlung recorded in Danish ballad lore.

Amala was the earliest feminine name formed from Amal. It was a favorite in Lombardy, but soon penetrated Germany, where it found vogue as Amalle. Meantime France and Italy had adopted the Latin Aemilia, and through the similarity in sound the two names were thought to be identical. France compromised the difference between Aemilia and Amalle and produced Amelie, the name which has vogue there today.

Amelia is the English version. It has replaced all other forms—even in Germany—the French Amelie alone surviving.

The amethyist is Amelia's talismanic stone. It will guard its wearer from danger, and protect her from contagion. According to ancient belief the amethyst has a sobering effect upon rash or impetuous natures. To dream of it signifies freedom from harm. Saturday is Amelia's lucky day and 4 her lucky number. The primrose, signifying simplicity, is her flower.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

THE AILING CHILD.

WHEN a child behaves unlike himself, put him to bed and keep him as quiet as possible. Usually he will fall asleep. When he wakes take his temperature and if there is any indication of disturbance send for the doctor.

Sometimes there is nothing more the matter than fatigue. He has played himself out or lost sleep. A nap will restore his energy and put the spring into his body again. Then a sponging off with warm water and a set of fresh clothes will start him off on his gay career as good as new.

If he continues restless; look at his mouth and make sure that there is nothing wrong with his teeth. If there is a redness about the gums or a swelling, or if one of them shows signs of decay, get him to the dentist and have the dental hygienist attend to him. If you have the sort of dentist who tells you that little children's teeth do not matter because they are soon to fall out, change the dentist. He's dodging the difficulty of handling a little child. He doesn't know how, but the hygientist does.

If he is tired and heavy-eyed with flushed cheeks and ready tears, it is not wise to give him a heavy meal. Unless he demands food give him none. Prepare him for bed and let him have a drink of cold water, drinking it slowly. Don't fear that he will suffer from the lack of a meal. Our children are more likely to be overfed than underfed.

If suddenly he becomes cross and nothing will please him make up your mind that he is unwell and cut short his preliminary performances by getting him into bed. Don't sit by him and mourn. Be very cheerful about it as though bed was the very nicest place for a tired child, as it is. Don't leave him alone; go to him frequently to see how he is getting on, but don't emphasize any discomfort he may be feeling. "You'll be all right in the morning," is the idea.

Don't wait until the sick child is tossing in high fever before calling in the doctor. If you are one of the fortunate folk who have a family doctor who knows the children since birth, take him into complete partnership in the rearing of the family. Teach the children that they are under his care and that he is their good friend in time of need. Send for him early and then you won't have him too late.

Mothers need outside help more than they realize. They are too close to the children to have a proper perspective, even about tired children. It is better they keep close to the good doctor.

MY FAVORITE STORIES by Arthur S. Code

PICKING OUT A SUITABLE ANIMAL.

A large family came to America some years back from Russia. The [illegible] remained in their new home.

Eventually they left the East Side and moved uptown to a more expensive quarter. But they suffered under the handicap of having one of those unpronounceable Slavic names. So the head of the household took the proper steps to have it changed. Legally he became Mr. Fisher and his wife became Mrs. Fisher and all the children became little Fishers. Even the old grandmother accepted the change.

The trouble with her though was that bein, of an advanced age and a somewhat faulty memory, she sometimes couldn't remember it. There was an embarrassing pause one day when she entered a large department store where her son had a charge account and, having made a purchase, couldn't recall what the new name was.

"Ve got a nice name now," said the old lady in her broken English, "but I couldn't seem to think vot it is."

"What does it sound like?" prompted the floor-walker, who had been summoned by the clerk to deal with this unusual emergency."

"I couldn't dell you," said the bewildered customer. "All vot I could tell you is we are named for a small animal vot has fu. on it."

TEASERS

No. 84. Missing Letters.

This is a two-minute "teaser" for you must limit yourself to less than two minutes when you try it. Have some one time you, if possible, and then you can try the "teaser" on them. Or several people can try it at once, with a set time limit. You will find that competition will be keen.

Each line of the drawing contains four squares, three of which are lettered. Start with the first line. You can put any letter in the blank space that you want. Then try another letter, and every time you form a word, write it down. You must not change the positions of the letters ANG. Try "B" in the blank space. Then you have "BANG!" "C" is no good; neither is "D"; but do the rest yourself. Then continue with the next three rows of letters. You have half a minute for each row. See how many words you can make.

Yesterday's Teaser.

The train in the drawing was 160 feet long; the height of the bridge was 170. An estimate of 170 is exceptional; above 160 or below 180, very good; above 150, below 190, good; 140 or 200, average; more than 120 or less than 210, fair; less than 100, more than 230, poor.

According to Dorothy Dix

DISCUSSING the divorce of a mutual friend, a man said to me the other day: "Divorces are so much more common now than they were in our grandparents' time. Do men and women love less now than they did then? Are marriages more unhappy than they used to be? Do husbands and wives make less effort to get along with each other than they used to?"

"No," I replied, "divorce is the moderns' protest against martyrdom. People used to suffer, and be strong. Now they are strong for not suffering, and when they find that they have made a mistake in choosing their life partners divorce is the kill-or-cure remedy they apply to their matrimonial ills.

"It is curious that divorce should increase when, nowadays, every match is virtually a love match, and when the average bride probably cares ten times as much for her bridegroom as her grandmother did for hers, for the present generation of women is the first one in the whole history of the world that did not have to marry for a home.

"In grandmother's time a girl had no way of making a decent living for herself. She had no social position, no liberty, no interest or occupation in life until she got them by marriage. So, to attain an establishment, and a shopping ticket, and to get out from under mother's thumb, and to keep herself from being bored to death, grandmother married the first eligible man that came along. That's why she married at 16 and 17. She couldn't afford to take a chance by waiting for some gentleman who might personally appeal to her.

"Marriage was her meal ticket, her emancipation proclamation, and her sentiments toward grandpapa didn't matter. Now the whole world of opportunity is open to a girl. She can support herself quite as well as her husband is likely to be able to do. She has to sacrifice the career she has fitted herself for, her own pocketbook and her personal liberty on the marriage altar, and a man has to look mighty good to her before she is willing to do it.

"Nor are marriages more unhappy now than they were in our grandparents' time. Human nature does not change. Sorrow came in with the first man and woman, and will go out with the last one. The things that make marriage a failure are no new inventions of the devil. They have always been [illegible].

"There have always been selfish women, and extravagant women, and nagging women, and shrews, and vain, and flirtatious women. There have always been mean and brutal men, and stingy men, and tyrannical men, and philanderers.

"There have always been wives who henpecked their husbands, wives who wasted their husband's substance, wives who were poor cooks and slovenly housekeepers, and wives who were always on a still hunt for affinities. And there have always been husbands who bullied their wives, husbands who worked their wives like slaves, husbands who were tightwads, who never gave their wives a penny of their own, and husbands who were grossly unfaithful to their wives.

"We still have the same old brands of husbands and wives, but instead of enduring them with patience and letting our lives be ruined by the mistake of our youth, we haul them into the divorce courts. We do not grieve in secret. We broadcast our troubles to the world.

"About three times as many women as men ask for divorces. This is not because the modern man is any worse than his grandfather was. It is simply because grandmother had to stand any sort of treatment from grandpa, and granddaughter doesn't.

"But all this talk about the ideal marriages of the past is all blah. The only difference between our grandparents, who didn't get divorces, and us, who do, is that they stood punishment better than we do. And whether there is any merit in enduring suffering that you can duck out of is more than I know."

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A Pleasant Homecoming.

One Mother Says:

When my children come home from school I make it a point to greet them with something pleasant. I share with them an interesting letter I have received, have some amusing story to tell them about "Rags" and his pranks during their absence, or have a little treat in store for them. If unpleasant things must be discussed or if there are disliked tasks to be done, they can come a little later. I like their thoughts of returning home always to be pleasant ones.

Jas. Kirkwood and Lila Lee On State Bill

"Love's Whirlpool" Is Story of Romance, Mystery and S. F. Underworld.

Marking their first appearance together in a photoplay since their marriage, Lila Lee and James Kirkwood, together with Madge Bellamy, will be seen at the State theater tomorrow when "Love's Whirlpool," their latest production, will have its first showing in the bay cities.

"Love's Whirlpool" is a tremendously powerful story with romance, mystery and the realism of the underworld and the land and sea. Adapted from Martha Lord's book, "The Inner Sight," it brings into dramatic episodes the rich and the poor, the banker and the crook, the upper strata of society and the underworld. They are pitted against each other and at stake is the life of the banker's daughter—the banker's money and the undying love for each other of two habitues of the dives of San Francisco. The picture is full of thrills and tense situations, some of the notable thrills being the burning and wreck of the big passenger liner at sea and the rescue by a master criminal of two beautiful girls.

In support of the stars will be found Edward Martindel, Robert Agnew and Margaret Livingston. A well-balanced vaudeville program, headed by Allen's Cheyenne Minstrels in the offering, "Riding the Range of Mirth and Melody," will be given in conjunction with "Love's Whirlpool."

Will Hays' Movie Contract Renewed

NEW YORK, April 1.—The contract of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., with Will H. Hays, which expires in 1925, today was renewed for three years, extending it to March 5, 1928, the organization announced at its annual meeting.

The association, which originally included nine of the larger producing and distribution companies, now has a membership of 21, which includes virtually the entire industry.

The W. W. Hodkinson Corporation was elected to membership at today's meeting.

$600,000 Outlay for Yosemite Buildings

FRESNO, April 1.—Anticipating the greatest travel in history to Yosemite National Park this summer, the directors of the park company have authorized the expenditure of $600,000 in a huge building program in 1924 and 1925, according to T. E. Farrow, manager of the company, who is in Fresno. The money will be spent in building a new camping lodge, new central buildings at the lodge, new cabins, new stables for saddle horses and in the purchase of motor cars. Farrow predicts that 150,000 persons will visit the park this summer, while last year 130,000 were registered.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered-bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

A few cents buys a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.—Advertisement.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Tells of Mrs. Vogel's Terrible Suffering and how she was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"My troubles are severe pains in my back and terrible bearing-down pains in my right side, also headaches and sleepless nights. I first began having troubles when I was 15, and they have increased as I grew older. A little booklet was left at my door, and I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women and decided to try it. After the first week I could go to sleep every night and I stopped having that nervous feeling and got a better appetite. The doctor had always said that an operation was the only thing that would help me, but I never had any faith in an operation. Since the Vegetable Compound has started helping me I do not suffer the severe pains, feel stronger, and am able to do my own work. I am more than glad to tell my friends that it helps where other medicines have failed."—Mrs. GUS VOGEL, 6608 Pelouze St., Detroit, Michigan.

A record of fifty years service must convince women of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Newlyweds" as Co-Stars

LILA LEE and JAMES KIRKWOOD in a scene from "Love's Whirlpool," now at the State Theater. This is the first picture in which the two have appeared since their recent marriage.

THE second annual Press Club Show will be given tonight at the Orpheum theater.

Nothing much out of the ordinary about that statement until one considers that this is the day set aside for the glorification of the zany, the merry andrew, the dumb Isaacs and doras and the great family of nit-wits.

Whether or not the day and the night have any connection remains to be seen but to hear it told by Hugh Knox, director of the Fulton, who has been coaching the budding histrions, the second annual Press Club fiesta is going to be something quite worth while.

Knox started to give a dissertation on the matter the other night when the Rialto was foregathered at Sweet's new terpsichorean parlors, but never got a chance because Raymond Northcutt, one of our most corpulent and adroit character actors, wanted to announce in his best chest tones the success he has had dieting.

"Observe how I am thinning out," announced Northcutt looking any moment as if he would simply spill over out of his tuxedo. "It's the diet. But I am having my difficulties. Mother is my chief obstacle. She is afraid that if I don't eat I will go into a decline or something and I hate to have her worry."

"When did you start on this period of abstinence?" we queried.

"Tonight," responded that cheerful individual.

And an hour later his mother's peace of mind was assured for Northcutt was discovered in an all-night restaurant, dining quietly on chocolate and French pastry.

But, as we started to say, tonight is the second annual P. C. S. show.

"Everyman" is to be produced at the University of Santa Clara on [illegible] and 5, and in the cast of the famous morality play will be two young students from Oakland—Francis J. Cox and Earl J. Twomey, the first of whom will play a Capuchin Friar and the second "Fidelity."

The general cast represents in its composition nearly every important city in California, according to announcements. There will be more than a hundred students in the cast and other features will be unique scenic environment, novel electrical effects and choral interludes by professional voices, including Miss Lillian Pelletier, San Francisco soprano.

"Everyman," which illustrates moral doctrines and presents abstract ideas in [illegible] form, has been styled "a demonstration of the past and a proclamation of the future." It deals with the question of human life and may be said to furnish an answer to the great [illegible]

Lincoln's favorite poem, "Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" The abstract characters of the play are so deftly handled by the medieval author whose name is lost in the midst of antiquity, that they become concrete personalities, forceful and convincing.

Last year Santa Clara presented "The Passion Play" and, by the way, it was one of these Passion Plays that started John Ivon on his historic career. Hee played Judas Iscariot.

The sudden death of Barney Barnard has caused a shift in the plans of A. H. Woods and the Selwyns. Barnard and Carr were to have opened the new Playhouse in Los Angeles for a season on May 5. Doris Keane in "Romance" has been temporarily substituted and it is possible that Carr may be given Sam Bernard as a partner in "Partners Again."

Patricia Salmon is fed up on the Follies. She is the girl the dramatics discovered in a tent show at Shelby, Montana, when they went out to cover the Dempsey-Gibbons fight. They secured her a New York engagement and for a time she was a hit. Now she is going back under canvas, doing a riding act in the Robinson circus. But Patricia is to receive $750 weekly, so her experience has not gone for naught.

Bull Montana is going on the stage. He is to be in an offering that will have Annette Kellerman for a star.

Florenz Ziegfeld gives an order that the Follies girl appear without make-up on the stage. "By the way," asks Percy Hammond "do you remember 'way back when' it was said of chorus girls that they padded their legs?" Yes indeed.

"Expressing Willie" a new comedy by Rachel Crothers will be produced on April 14.

Woman Asks Second Divorce From Mate

MARTINEZ, April 1.—Mrs. Lillian J. Jepsen of Richmond is today seeking her second divorce from the same husband. Legally separated from Hans A. Jepsen in Humboldt county in April, 1921, Mrs. Jepsen remarried her divorced husband in Oakland, in May, 1922, but, according to her complaint on file here today, her second matrimonial venture has been no more successful than the first. Mrs. Jepsen asks custody of three children and $75 monthly for their support. She charges Jepsen with absenting himself from home on two occasions, once for a period of seven months, and again for two months, and with failing to provide herself and children with necessaries.

"Sally" Snaps, Sparkles and Glows at Lurie

Errol and Catlett Amount to Surfeit of Entertainment.

As for "Sally," if it isn't one thing it is another. If Errol isn't collapsing with grace peculiar to the front legs of Hitchy's horse, then Catlett is bubbling over; if it isn't Miss Vernon, it's the Mlle. Martyn; Kern's score or Victor Herbert's ballet; Max Bendix's orchestra or the music of the customers' laughter; Guy Bolton's lines or Joe Miller's; the scenery or the girls.

The girls! Here are pansies plotting for thoughts. Secretary Ziegfeld of the Department of the Exterior, presents his favorite package of seeds with all the courtesy of your local Congressman giving away the government's property. For some time we've heard of this feller, Flo. His fame for separating the sweet from the chaff has been a fable on which to hang your hat or your harp. Here, at the Lurie, is something more than myth to prove that the picture pages in the newspapers have not lied about him. His girls are everything you thought about your first crush, back in 1891, as far as you know.

CHIEFLY ERROL.

"Sally" has that number of things that R. L. S. twisted into a framed wall motto. Chiefly, of course, Errol; but he is in the worthy company of Walter Catlett, whose local fame has grown into an international treaty of laughter. The two of them amount to a surfeit of entertainment. To see them together is to see nearly all that life promises the unworthy. To watch them play ping-pong with the Queen's English and the Queen's sisters, is to spend a busy evening.

Shirley Vernon is Sally of this latest version of what happened to Cinderella when the composer and the author got curious about her. Shirley is an ecstatic young person, decidedly graceful and impressively blonde. She elevates a prettier ankle than she does a note, but what's that to youth and the reviewers.

Kathlene Martyn, as Rosalind Rafferty, manicure and maid, is all that manicure and maid would wish theselves to be after reading up on the subject in Elinor Glynn and Cecil de Mille. She warbles right royally and trips about a lot with Catlett's aid and encouragement. Irving Fisher is the inevitable juvenile, without which musical comedy could not function nor the gels do their durndest. He has the looks, the voice, the willingness and, in the play, an eye for Shirley, which gets him by with this historian.

"SALLY" IN SPLENDOR.

"Sally" is dressed in all splendor, bright of paint, fresh of costume, well drilled and smartly fashioned. It snaps and sparkles and glows. It has all of the trills, thrills and frills that New York bestows on its favorites. And so, on and on and on.

Perhaps in the resplendent lexicon of the youthful chronicler there may be adjectives fit to drape our Sally. Our own eyes are young and faith undimmed, but our typewriter halts and stumbles in the presence of beauty and the feast. And we've reached that group of the years when our mind must be kept on matters of state if we are to get along.—L. S. L.

Army, Navy Both Claim Victory in Hawaiian Dispute

SPECIAL BY WIRE TO THE TRIBUNE

By LEO A. McCLATCHY.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — That long existing dispute between the army and the navy as to who is the highest ranking officer in the Hawaiian Islands, Major General Charles P. Summerall or Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, apparently never is going to be settled, for both sides to the controversy are claiming victory under a decision rendered by Attorney General Daugherty.

Inquiry made at the War Department brings the announcement that: "Everything is settled now. The attorney general's decision proves conclusively that General Summerall outranks Admiral McDonald."

"At the Navy Department, everybody is elated, too, for the interpretation there is that there can be no further question about rank. Daugherty's decision is very plain, the navy officials assert, and the victory is won by Admiral McDonald.

"But the War Department says Summerall won," a naval officer was reminded. And there came back the answer:

"Well, the War Department's all wrong."

The vexed reporter went back to the War Department and was assured that the navy was "all wrong," so he reports that after a careful consideration of all the evidence, he finds:

General Summerall is the highest ranking army officer in Hawaii, and Admiral McDonald is the highest ranking naval officer in Hawaii.

Asked if they were going to let the matter rest with both sides claiming victory, army and navy officials agreed that the controversy is not in the best interests of either branch of the service, and that it would be permitted to "gradually die out."

Santa Clara Rains Helpful to Workers

SAN JOSE, April 1. — Rains which fell during the past week have "appreciably changed" the employment situation in San Jose and Santa Clara valley generally, according to a statement issued today by Deputy Labor Commissioner George Moody, superintendent of the San Jose office of the state free employment bureau.

According to Moody, the rain has made a brisk call for orchard help, fruit growers having been able to start cultivation. Within the space of four hours yesterday 29 workers were placed in agricultural positions alone by the local state employment office. Calls for workers are not only increasing in the agricultural line since the rain, but include many others from other fields as well.

CHATTER OF THE MAKE-BELIEVERS

"Mighty Sicks."

It has been quite a spell, Norma, since we rose up in our seat to say a word about anybody's picture show, but the other night we went down to see this here new opery of yours named "Secrets," and right away we would like to hand you the hand-crocheted bunch of thornless roses.

We do not like these here premiere things Norma, because we always get our pet corns trod upon by strange female persons, and get jerked around by policemen with thick hands and thicker heads—particularly Patrolman 166, who ought to make a good street cleaner in China, because he certainly doesn't know anything about handling white people.

But anyway we suffered all these things for you and darned if we don't think it was worth it. We do not wish to get raaudiin, Norma, but gol dang us if we don't think you and your new opery are a wow. And you tell Gene O'Brien that this goes for him, too, will you?

Talking about Norma Talmadge, you might be interested to know that when she isn't acting, sometimes she cooks a wicked Irish stew. We do not want to say that this is the only thing that Norma cooks, but that is her specialty.

Like poor little Mildred Davis. Mildred lived with Harold Lloyd a whole year and then one night they stopped at a little lunch counter along a country road for dinner and Harold ordered an Irish stew and Mildred said, "Gee whizz! I've wanted an Irish stew for months and I was always afraid to cook one for fear you wouldn't eat it."

But Norma's Irish stews are something of an institution, and every once in a while when there aren't any men around, Norma and her ma and about a dozen ladies go over and Norma mixes up a stew and they all sit around and talk and eat the stew and have a ripe-roaring time.

Well, sir, a sad thing has happened. Poor Jack Pickford has had to quit traipsing around the country and go to work. And he's hard at it, out at Mary and Doug's lot, while Marilynn Miller takes dancing lessons and things preparatory ready to play "Peter Pan" this winter.

Jack is making a opery named "The End of the World," which sounds pretty definite. A funny thing about that opery, too. Jimmy Cruze, the bird that made "The Covered Wagon," wrote the story. It kicked around on his desk for a long time and finally the Pickford's happened to hear about it and bought it for Jack.

And when they got ready to make it, darned if they didn't go over and steal Vern Keays, who was Jimmy's assistant director, and make him the director to make the story.

That new baby of Buster Keaton's and Natalie Talmadge's has finally got a name. It is Bob Talmadge Keaton. For a little while they were talking about naming it Robert, but Mrs. Peg Talmadge, who is responsible for all the Talmadge girls, put her foot right down and said no siree, there wasn't going to be any fancy names, so they named it Bob, without any Robert at all.

Little Joe Keaton is about a year and a half old now. They decided to get the Talmadge into the new baby's name. In fact, Constance told Natalie, and it's got to be quite a family joke, that "all the Keaton babies must be named Talmadge—all twelve of them."

"Dawn of a Tomorrow" Truly Fine

NEW YORK, April 1.—"The Dawn of a Tomorrow" is a truly fine motion picture. Frances Hodgson Burnett's book and play, which might so easily have been brought to the screen dripping with sentimental gush, has with rare discretion and infectious acting been made into one of the finest pictures of the year. It ought to be seen by all who think there's not much sense in going to the pictures any more.

This is a picture of the London slums, of a girl, of crooks and bobbies, of unkempt women, ragged beggars, a mission, a millionaire and an evil nephew, and of trust and hope. So stated it sounds like one of those things, syrupy and sticky, but it is far from it because it has been done with a touch.

It is a thrilling picture. Its picturesque wharf scenes, its shootings and fights, its exciting chases. Its thrills are not of the spine but of the throat, little catches that force their way up because a human heart has momentarily been bared, or a smile has been inspired by such wistful humor as Chaplin knows.

Jacquelin Logan does a disarming and captivating bit of acting as Glad, stunning girl, while Raymond Griffith, as the Dandy, her admirer, is a winning character with an ever-fine touch. David Torrence as Sir Oliver Holt doesn't have much to do that requires either the feeling or the tact of these two, but it's good he's in the picture because somehow the Torrence presence brings luck and plenty of it.

"The Dawn of a To-morrow" deserves enthusiasm. And George Melford deserves credit for its direction. P. V.

"Singer Jim McKee" Not Hart's Best

By QUINN MARTIN.

NEW YORK, April 1.—There is not an actor in the films who is more abundantly equipped for portraying interesting parts than Bill Hart. The figure which he represents in the cinema is as truly an American figure as anything in our history. It is real and it is vital. The memory of the crude, honest, fearless cowpuncher of the Old West is as dear to the heart of the average citizen as that of any other single element in the rise of the Nation from rawness to its present state of cultivation.

By virtue of his physical makeup Mr. Hart stands out as a natural embodiment of the heroic plainsman of another day. There are enormous opportunities lying open for him.

And still, Mr. Hart seems determined to roll down hill of his own accord. His picture, "Singer Jim McKee," at the Rialto this week, is sentimental slush of the worst kind rising at times to heights of silliness which are beyond the grasp of your correspondent. Mr. Hart has written his own story, and it is awful. It is entirely likely that a man might be quite touched by the loss of his riding hoss, but when he develops a crying neurosis over it, there is something just a little ridiculous about it.

Mr. Hart might read the life of Frank James and then have a play written around it. Here is real western romance. Years after the outlawry of the James gang, which operated in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, had broken up, with most of its members dead, a climax as thrilling as any we have ever seen came to Frank James.

One summer night in Chillicothe, Mo., in the heart of the country he once had terrorized, old Frank, bent, almost decrepit, walked slowly down the sawdust trail in a Billy Sunday camp meeting and announced to the world that he was "right" at last. It has always seemed to us that here was material for a real historical drama. Now that Hart seems so woefully in need of something to act we offer this suggestion to him. Our interest is at least partly one of self-defense. We simply can't go such stuff as "Singer Jim McKee."

"The Unknown Purple" was a mystery play on the stage and it is still a mystery play on the screen. It seems to us to present first rate trick camera stuff and certainly the interior settings which have been employed in its making are among the loveliest.

The parts are played splendidly by a good looking, well dressed cast, and, for all we know, it is a good enough motion picture. Just how much difference it would have made even if the unhappy James Dawson never had discovered who was responsible for the sinister influence which dogged his tracks under a spray of purple light is open to discussion. Without going into detail concerning the maze of weird situations which pervade it, we think it is fair to report the picture will amuse and entertain you.

GEORGE STEWARD IS STAR WHEN OAK ROOKIES TRIM U. C.

JIMMY MARQUIS IS RELEASED AND OTHER ROOKIES WILL BE MADE FREE AGENTS TODAY

McDonald Is to Remain With Oakland Club

Manager Ivan Howard Is to Cut Squad; Chicago Cubs Look Stronger

By EDDIE MURPHY.

Romeo McDonald, Oakland rookie who stepped to the plate on Sunday afternoon of last season and cracked out a three bagger that gave the Oaks victory in a seventeen inning contest with the Seals, will be the third string catcher for the local club this season unless some major league club comes through with a new catcher in the near future. Manager Ivan Howard expects to announce release of some young players late today, but Romeo will not be among them. Art Silva, the San Francisco youngster who was battling McDonald for the third string job, has lost out because he has never been able to show a good throwing arm. In fact he did not throw a fast ball to any of the bases the whole time he was in training camp.

P. READ

ROMEO HAS THE PEPPER.

If Silva had a good arm he would make a great catcher. Some day his arm may come back for him. McDonald is a peppery kid who knows how to catch. He is a tricky lad and keeps the runners hugging the sacks. If Romeo can be taught not to chase curve balls when at the bat, he may develop into a valuable receiver for the Oaks.

Del Baker and Pete Read are in a fight for the job of first string catcher, but Read will not beat out Baker as long as he continues to drop balls in tagging runners at the plate as he did a couple of times last week. Dropping balls at the plate was his only weakness last season and as soon as he overcomes it he will be one of the best catchers in the league, as he has a great throwing arm, is fast [illegible]

MARQUIS GETS RELEASE.

Jimmy Marquis, the young pitcher who showed enough class in training camp to make it worth while to farm him out or carry him for some time as a relief hurler, was handed his release last evening. Jimmy pitched ball around Utah and Idaho last summer and came to the Oaks highly recommended. He has a chance to return to Utah and pitch this summer and make more money than he could by being farmed out, so he requested his release from the Oaks. Jimmy is well thought of by Ivan and Del Howard and if he cares to he will be allowed to join the Oaks in the closing weeks of the 1924 season or in the spring of next year. With the right kind of a catcher handling him this summer, Jimmy should be ripe for fast company next season.

KAISER WINS FIRST GAME.

In a telegram to Manager Ivan Howard, the manager of the Pendleton team at Oregon said that Julius (Dutch) Kaiser, Oakland rookie hurler, arrived at Pendleton Sunday morning and in the afternoon he pitched the Pendleton team to a win. Kaiser made quite a hit with his new bosses. He is the property of the Oaks and will join them in the fall or next spring. Bill Rodda will probably go to Pendleton this week as the manager of that team also wired Ivan Howard to send him along.

WATCH THE CHICAGO CUBS.

The Chicago Cubs placed fourth in the National League pennant race last season, and when they were out here in 1923 for spring practice games they did not look anything near as good as they did last week in the six game series with the Oaks. Sunday afternoon they did not do so well before the big crowd and the pitching of Walter Mails, but in all other games they looked fifty per cent better than in 1923.

"Hack" Miller, Barney Friberg and George Grantham all looked like big league ball players last week, while last year they looked bad. Bill Killefer has a club of youngsters who look like a lot of college boys when they are in their street clothes. They all are speedy on their feet, good fielders and better than fair hitters. Such men as Miller, O'Farrell, Friberg and Grimes figure to hit over the .300 mark as does Arnold Statz, who was not here with the team because of an injured ankle. So in picking the first four clubs to finish in the National league this season do not overlook the Cubs.

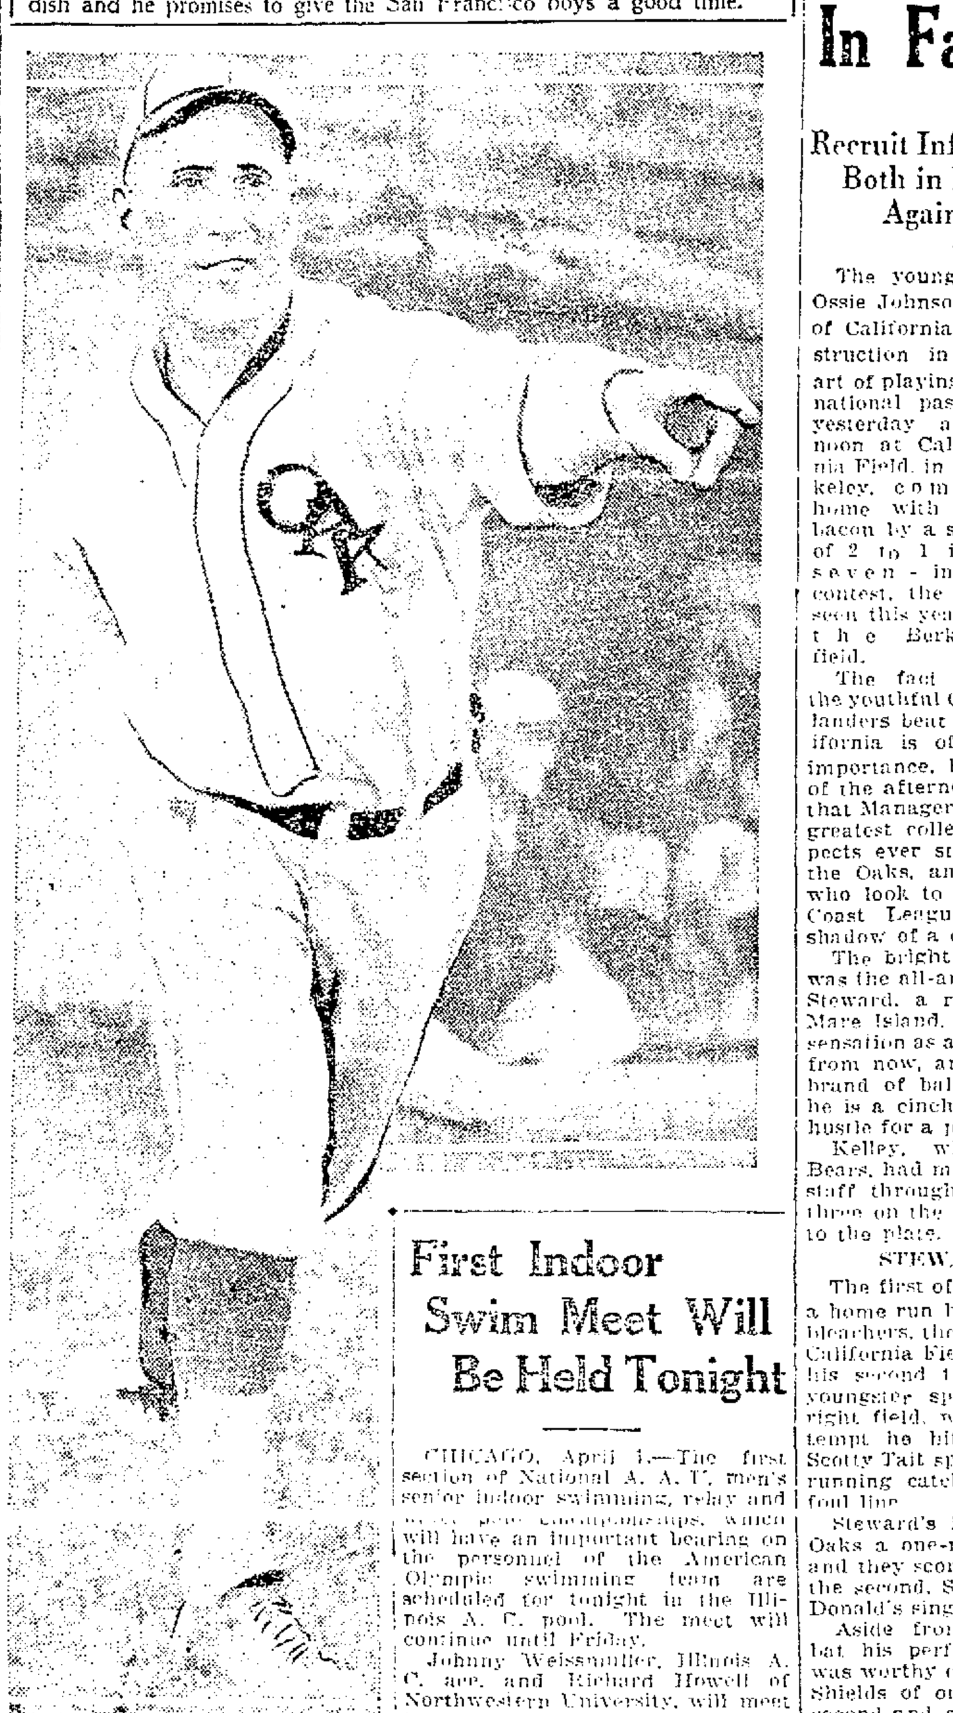

Bill Killefer, manager of the Cubs, believes that Miller is his best drawing card. When Miller left Chicago last fall he told Killefer that he wanted to be with the club this year again. "Hack" would have been satisfied to sign for the same money he got last season, but when he got his contract he had a raise of $1000. He was so tickled that he rushed to a telegraph office in this city and wired to Killefer, telling him he would sign the contract and would put it in the mail right away. He also thanked the Cub manager about ten times for the raise and wanted to know when he should report. Miller is a happy-go-lucky fellow who would just as soon play baseball as eat, and "Hack" is a record holder for putting away steaks. Killefer would not trade or sell Miller under any conditions as he is the favorite of the Chicago fans. There is as much difference in Miller's playing now and when he was with the Oaks, as there is between a Class AA minor leaguer and a busher.

VITT COMES TO TERMS.

Word was received here last evening from Manager Duffy Lewis of the Salt Lake Bees to the effect that Oscar Vitt, star third sacker of the Bees, had visited the Bee training camp at Fresno and after a long conference with Manager Lewis and President Lane he signed his name to a 1924 contract. All of which means that Lewis is now confronted with the problem of picking his regular infielders as Pittinger, former Red Sox player, has been working out at third and is a marvel in fielding around that bag. Besides Vitt and Pittinger, Lewis has Jack Knight, Howard Lindimore, Tony Lazzeri and Pierce.

Harry Will Be Ready

Never conspicuous with no-hit games in the training season, HARRY KRAUSE, veteran left-hander of the Oaks, is invariably ready when the season officially opens. Seal meat is Harry's favorite dish and he promises to give the San Francisco boys a good time.

Young Oaks Beat Bruins In Fast Game

Recruit Infielder Is Sensation Both in Field and at Bat Against Collegians

The young Oaks, in charge of Ossie Johnson, gave the University of California nine a period of instruction in the art of playing the national pastime yesterday afternoon at California Field, in Berkeley, coming home with the bacon by a score of 2 to 1 in a seven-inning contest, the best seen this year on the Berkeley field.

G. STEWARD

The fact that the youthful Oaklanders beat California is of no importance, but the developments of the afternoon disclosed the fact that Manager Ivan Howard has the greatest collection of young prospects ever starting a season with the Oaks, and two in particular who look to be the goods for the Coast League ball beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The bright feature of the game was the all-around work of George Steward, a recruit infielder from Mare Island. Steward should be a sensation as a Coast Leaguer a year from now, and if he can play the brand of ball exhibited yesterday he is a cinch to force someone to hustle for a position.

Kelley, who hurled for the Bears, had most of the Oaks on his staff throughout, but Steward hit three on the nose in as many trips to the plate.

STEWARD IS STAR.

The first of Steward's efforts was a home run high into the left field bleachers, the longest drive seen on California Field in recent years. On his second trip to the plate the youngster spanked a double to right field, while on his third attempt he hit a low liner which Scotty Tait speared in a sensational running catch near the left field foul line.

Steward's home run gave the Oaks a one-run lead in the first, and they scored their other tally in the second, Silva's double and McDonald's single turning the trick.

Aside from Steward's work at bat his performance in the field was worthy of mention. He robbed Shields of one hit by racing over second and spearing what appeared to be a sure hit, throwing his man out on the run, while he accepted six chances in flawless fashion.

HURLS GOOD GAME.

Grant Harris, who worked on the hill for the young Oaks, hurled a nifty article of ball after the first inning. In that session he allowed three of the four hits gleaned off his delivery, Gerlach starting the trouble with a single. Kyte walked and Morse singled to fill the sacks. Smith hit one out of Ossie Johnson's reach to score Gerlach, but Kyte was nipped at the plate, Silva to McDonald, and Shields was thrown out by Steward.

McDonald and Croter provided the humor of the game in the second inning, when McDonald, after driving Silva across with a single, tried to stretch it into a double. The ball was waiting at second, so McDonald slid wide of the bag and was up and on his way to third, when Croter ruled him out for not touching second.

CHICAGO, April 1.—The first section of National A. A. U. men's senior indoor swimming, relay and water polo championships, which will have an important bearing on the personnel of the American Olympic swimming team are scheduled for tonight in the Illinois A. C. pool. The meet will continue until Friday.

Johnny Weissmuller, Illinois A. C. ace, and Richard Howell of Northwestern University, will meet in the 220-yard free style swim, which with low spring board diving, medley swim and preliminary games in water polo complete the opening program.

The national low spring board diving title, held by Leo Fraser of Los Angeles, will be at stake in that event, in which entries, besides Fraser, include L. Kuehn, Portland, Ore., winner of the event in the last Olympiad; Al White, Stanford University national high board champion, and C. Pinkerton, San Francisco, 1920 Olympic high board champion.

Drawings in the water polo competition, to be made this evening, will have a bearing on the Olympic water polo squad, as the team winning the championship will represent America.

Finals in the event are scheduled for tomorrow night.

Oakland Muny Links Closed; Golfers Fret

THE Oakland Municipal Golf links is closed. The sign "Road Closed" was hung out yesterday by order of the Eastbay Water Company, and it doesn't mean maybe. To make sure that the more venturesome of the golfers do not disregard the sign the company has locked the gate and has a guard stationed on the property.

The spread of the hoof and mouth disease caused the drastic step to be taken yesterday at noon, and according to an announcement made at that time by Earl Fry, assistant to Professional Fred X. Fry, the course would be closed for an indefinite period from three days to weeks, possibly longer, until the voluntary quarantine placed on the Eastbay Water Company property is lifted.

Industries of Eastbay to Have Baseball League

An industrial baseball league, playing games on Saturday afternoon in Oakland has been organized and it is expected that when the entry list closes next Thursday night, at least sixteen teams will be in to make two divisions of eight clubs each.

At a recent meeting nine clubs were taken in and as there has been application made by several others, it was decided to hold another meeting at A. G. Spaldings next Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Teams desiring to enter the league and play Saturday afternoon ball on the local playground should send a representative to the meeting.

The league will be known as the Eastbay Industrial and a complete board of officers will be elected Thursday night. The teams already entered are Montgomery Ward & Co., Western Electric Co., Magnavox company, General Electric Co., Steel Tank and Pipe Co., Westinghouse, Central Bank and Pacific States Electric Co.

Only those employed at the places entered in the league will be eligible to play.

Brohm was high man at hitting, coming through with two doubles and a single out of four times at bat. Nisson of Alameda got three hits out of five times at bat.

Concordia will meet the St. Mary's Preps at home Wednesday.

America Has Good Chance In Olympiad

Prospects of Yankees Not as Hopeless as Coaches Have Indicated

NEW YORK, April 1.—It is well to prepare the American Olympic team for competition in the Olympic games at Paris next summer under conditions that would cause the athletes to feel that the games are not won when their ship pushed her nose out into the Hudson.

It is wise to tell the youngsters who are getting ready for their first taste of Olympic competition that they will have to work hard, train conscientiously and be in shape to do their best. But there is no reason that they should be made to feel like saps or suckers.

The athletes who will be selected to go to Paris know that the American team is going to have competition, but they know also that the outlook is not as dark as it is being painted.

The American team will be composed of men, and the warning: "If you're not good the policeman will get you," will not have the same effect on them it would have on a child.

Until recently, it seemed that the United States was in grave danger of being defeated in the Olympic track and field games. The power shown by Finland in 1920 at Antwerp, and the form shown by one or two Finnish athletes since then, caused a great fear to fall upon the United States.

WILL HAVE CONTEST.

There is no reason to expect a calamity. There are reasons to know that the United States will have a contest in Paris, but victory is empty without a real contest, and the United States never has been really pressed before.

Finland made such a good showing in Antwerp because the American team was crippled by injuries, which either removed from competition or impaired the form of such stars as Sol Butler, Joie Ray and Matt McGrath. The Finns also made the best of what material they had, while the management of the American team didn't get nearly what should have been gotten out of the Americans.

Apparently the American committee thought that the United States had a cinch victory in sight and that it was an occasion for the manipulation of a little politics.

Potential winners like Jake Driscoll, the quarter-miler, and Dandrow, the fine Massachusetts Tech hammer-thrower, were left sitting in the stands, while less competent athletes were sent in so that political whims might be satisfied.

Without going into any details at a time when form and figures mean little, it would seem that the American team is more formidable this year than it was three months before the ship sailed for Antwerp.

It is better organized, and that means at least 40 per cent of the burden. The best athletes in the country will go and the best of the men selected will be started.

The Americans will show better in the broad jump, the pentathlon and decathlon, the quarter and half mile, the mile, the distance events, the shot-put, the hammer-throw, the discus-throw and the javelin.

American supremacy is sure to be maintained in the sprints and the sprint relays, the hurdles and the high-jump.

MAY LOSE POLE-VAULT.

Norway may win the pole-vault, but it is doubtful. Because Hoff, a Norwegian, broke the world's record last summer, it must not be taken for granted that he will win the pole-vault in Paris.

The United States ought to win the shot-put, an event that was lost at Antwerp. The United States is sure to win the broad-jump, an event that was lost at Antwerp. The United States has more than an even chance to win the 440 and 880-yard runs, both of which were lost at Antwerp.

Chances are even for the pentathlon and the decathlon. The javelin-throw must be conceded to Finland from the start, because no one can throw with those Finns.

If the French committee decides to count only first place in each event, the United States may have a contest with Finland, but there is no reason to cry in advance that Uncle Sam hasn't much of a chance to win more events than the Finns.

If the committee decided to award points for five places, or six places, in each event, the United States is sure to win, because there are at least four events in which the Americans will make a clean sweep of every point.

Perhaps it would be well to start telling the American youngsters that they have a good chance to win and keep them from getting a notion that they are going over just to show how they can "take it."

Every American that is called upon to answer the gun in Paris will try just as hard to win whether the team is 200 points ahead in the score or hopelessly beaten in the rear.

Walter Mails Defendant in Divorce Suit

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—Walter Mails, known in Pacific Coast League baseball circles as "the great Mails," was named defendant in a divorce suit filed in the superior court here yesterday by Mrs. Esther Mails.

Mrs. Mails charges the Oakland pitcher with desertion, alleging he left her on March 21, 1923. They were married in Sacramento on February 19, 1922.

Mails was the hero of the 1920 world series between Cleveland and Brooklyn in which he pitched the Cleveland team to the championship. He also is a former member of the Solons' pitching staff, having left the local club to join the Indians. He pitched for the Oakland club last year and is on that club's roster this season.

Tank Stars on Hand for Swim Meet at Chicago

CHICAGO, March 31.—With the arrival of another Olympic champion, L. Kuehn, of the Multnomah club of Portland, Ore., yesterday the stars of the water sports were on hand today for the opening tomorrow night of the National A. A. U. men's senior indoor swimming, relay and water polo championship. The meet will be held at the Illinois Athletic club here and will continue through Friday.

Kuehn, who won the low springboard diving in the last Olympics, is eager to wrest the national title from Leo Frazer, of the Ambassador Swimming club of Los Angeles.

C. Pinkston, of the Olympic club, of San Francisco, who won the high springboard diving in the 1920 Olympics and was second to Kuehn in the low board competition also is here intent on winning honors.

Al White of Stanford, national high diving champion, has come to defend his title.

The New York A. C. team, which is ambitious to win the water polo championships, was among yesterday's arrivals. With the conclusion of the A. A. U. title events, the coast collegians will continue east to compete in the national intercollegiate championships at Annapolis on April 11 and 12.

The events here will determine the probable makeup of the American Olympic swimming team. It is regarded as virtually certain that the victors in the indoor championships here will repeat in the final Olympic tests in Indianapolis on June 13 and 14.

Kenworthy to Have Club of Young Players

Beaver Leader Is Very Much Pleased With Showing of His Athletes.

By W. J. ("Duke") KENWORTHY
(Written exclusively for International News Service.)

STOCKTON, April 1.—Portland has the youngest ball club in double A.

That statement carries with it all that youth means in speed, ambition and determination.

Our catching staff consists of Tom Daly, first string catcher from the 1923 season; Mickey Cochrane, with Dover, Del., last season, and easily the best prospect in double A today, and Wray Query, obtained last winter from Sioux City. The catching staff equals any in the coast league.

With Jim Poole at first; myself or McCann, who played that position last year, at second; Rabbit Benton at short and Frank Brazil or George Distel at third, Portland has an incomparable infield, not only in fielding but in good hitting strength.

In hitting it is safe to assume that the Portland club will lead the league in 1924.

The outfield, consisting of Charlie High, Dix Cox, Ike Wolfer, Tex Gressett, Jake Miller and John Jones, a hard hitting, aggressive youngster with the Athletics last season, bears out this statement.

Several youngsters on the club, like Hunneford at short or third, and Babe Thomas, who in two years will be the big sensation at first, lend more strength to the club.

With pitchers like Harry Gardner, Charles Eckert, Hugh Bedient, Walter Leverenz, Lefty Schroeder, Ted Pilette as regulars, and two more to come and four or five young pitchers waiting a chance, Portland is well supplied and satisfied in all departments.

We make no predictions.

We will give a good account of ourselves.

The club is in good condition, has been working out since March 2 here in Stockton and when the bell rings on April 8, the Portland club will be there and willing to go.

The discipline and morale is most excellent.

My boys have confidence in me and I have confidence in them.

I have word from headquarters in Portland that the business men's booster committee assures us of the biggest opening ever attempted and exceeding all previous years.

My club will be sure to do its best to merit the confidence and appreciation of our fans and the fans of the entire Pacific coast.

MIKE McTIGUE IS GIVEN BAD BEATING BY STRIBLING

PARKER'S STABLE TO OCCUPY LIMELIGHT AT WEEKLY SCRAP FEST

By BOB SHAND.

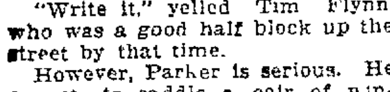

Kid Parker, the noted headgear retailer and manager and adviser of Ray Pelkey was brushing off some new spring bonnets yesterday when he broke into song.

"It's always foul weather
When two sockers get together."

Yanked from beneath an avalanche of hat boxes presented by admiring listeners the Kid explained that he was thinking about the Pelkey-Manley bout which will be presented at the Auditorium tomorrow evening under the auspices of T. Jeremiah Simpson.

"Mr. Simpson's customers," continued Dempsey's little pal, "have been clamoring for socks. They will get them tomorrow night. Pelkey is ready to step in and belt this Manley bird clear through the front door and it may be necessary to pull him from the waters of Lake Merritt. What Pelkey did to Buck Holley last week wasn't a marker to what will happen to Manley tomorrow night. I know Ray was stopped in a punch last time they met, but he won't stick out his chin this time."

The kid orated some more, but quit when he discovered he was talking to himself.

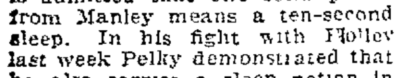

"Come back here, you guys,' he yelled. "I haven's started talking about Dynamite Murphy yet."

"Write it," yelled Tim Flynn, who was a good half block up the street by that time.

However, Parker is serious. He expects to saddle a pair of winners tomorrow in Pelkey and Murphy. The latter meets Joe Mandell, an eastern bantamweight with a good record.

If he puts them both over Parker will be entitled to a lot of credit even if he is a good cash customer. Manley hit Pelkey just once in a Los Angeles ring and the evening was over as far as Pelkey was concerned. Then Manley came to San Francisco and hit Billy Gibbs on the top of the head. Billy admits he was out on his feet for two rounds and he also admits that his head is as hard as the average colored boxer's cranium. Mr. Manley also took a decision from Bert Colima, although Bert reversed that verdict later.

If Pelkey decides to make it a free-swinging party the festivities should be over in short order. It is admitted that one solid punch from Manley means a ten-second sleep. In his fight with Holley last week Pelky demonstrated that he also carries a sleep potion in either glove.

Not much is known of Joe Mandell, who boxes Murphy, but his record is impressive. He licked a gent named Harry Foley at Hollywood and then came here. He is a brother of Sammy Mandell, a noted eastern performer.

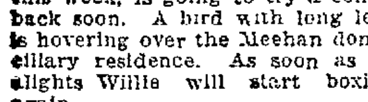

Tommy Cello has graciously consented to give Teddy O'Hara a return match and it is to be hoped that Tommy will also graciously consent to let O'Hara fight. Cello got the decision last time out but he would have received something else had he not given a clever imitation of a clinging vine.

Mickey O'Donnell, who licked Joe Lynch twice, meets Trench King, a young man who has quite a reputation in Valley pugilistic circles.

Joe Roach, from the Association club, meets Kid Callahan. Roach has been knocking 'em dead across the bay. Benny Vierra and Young Rizzo repeat, while the effervescent young Mister McLarnin will entertain Jimmy Griffith.

Willie Meehan, who is helping move scenery at a local theater this week, is going to try a come-back soon. A bird with long legs is hovering over the Meehan domicillary residence. As soon as he alights Willie will start boxing again.

Sid Barbarian defeated Harry Mason, English lightweight champion, over the ten-round route at Detroit last night, according to a telegram received from the Empire Athletic club.

Mike McTigue may not be a great champion, but he knows where to fight. After what Stribling did to him last night Mike will probably take up his residence in New Jersey, where no-decision bouts are the style this season.

Jack Dempsey Made Offer by Tex Rickard

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight boxer, was today making preparations for a busy season regardless of whether or not he fights. With the announcement yesterday of Carl Laemmle of Universal Film Corporation, that the champion had signed a contract calling for $1,000,000 salary for ten pictures to be completed within two years, Dempsey immediately started to move headquarters and training camp to the "lot" at Universal City.

Many rumors were put to rest and the champion's plans for the near future also were more definitely shaped after a conference at Tijuana, Mexico, between Jim Coffroth, Tiajuana race promoter, Dempsey and his manager Jack Kearns. Kearns believes it improbable that Dempsey will fight at Tijuana, as Coffroth does not want the fight until November or December. "Dempsey fights in September if we have to promote the fight ourselves," declared Kearns.

After a luncheon yesterday at which Laemmle announced that his company had secured the fighter's motion picture contract, Kearns fired a broadside of criticism of Tex Rickard, accusing the New York promoter of "stalling Dempsey and refusing to let him fight in New York."

"I received an offer today from Rickard for a $500,000 purse for Dempsey to meet the winner of an elimination series among Rojas, Spalla, Wills Gibbons and Firpo. I'll take it gladly, but if things shape up the way I think they will I may decide to promote a fight of my own in Mexico and have a charitable organization get every cent of the net proceeds. I can get Firpo and Dempsey for that fight and Rickard can't get either."

Last Night's fight results

COLUMBUS, O., April 1.—Young Henney of Pittsburgh won the judges' decision over "Red" McDonald of Toledo in a 12-round bout.

DETROIT, Mich., April 1.—Sid Barbarian of Detroit won from Harry Mason, English and European lightweight champion in a 10-round bout here tonight, in the opinion of newspapermen. Barbarian was credited with every round and Mason with a poor showing throughout.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 1.—Tommy Gibbons, the St Paul heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Soldier Lee of Chicago in the third round of a scheduled eight round bout here.

The Chicagoan was no match for Gibbons and he went down three times for the count of nine.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—Tommy "Kid" Murphy, son of "Kid" Murphy who lost the 105 pound title to Johnny Coulon, won a sensational ten round bout over Sammy Seiger last night, according to newspaper men.

HILLYARD, Wash., April 1.—Al Sommers, 170, was given a decision over Danny Needham in the four-round headline bout of the boxing card here last night. Al Gracio, 135, took a four round decision over Ray Morrell in the four round feature event.

BUFFALO, April 1.—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo middleweight sensation, and conqueror of Young Stribling, knocked out Fay Keiser, of Cumberland, Md., in the third round of a scheduled six round bout here.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 1.—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, recent conqueror of Paul Berlenbach, scored a technical knockout over Leo Leonard of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in the third round of a scheduled 12-round bout here. Delaney knocked his opponent down in the second round.

RICHARDS WINS MATCH.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Vincent Richards, defending titleholder, and H. L. Bowman, P. L. Kynaston, Merritt Cutler and Jerome Lang, all of New York, won their places in the round before the semi-finals of the national indoor tennis championship singles.

TRAINING CAMP ~BREVITIES~

Frank Chance will not assume active management of the Chicago White Sox when the club reaches Chattanooga, the end of this week, as should be expected, it became known today when a telegram from the "peerless leader" informed club officials that he was having trouble with his teeth, but would take charge "after the club reaches Chicago." He plans to be in Chicago after April 10.

Johnny Evers, acting manager, who had deferred action on the release of players until after he and Chance had conferred, said he was "going to run the club" until Chance took charge. He immediately sent a list of players, whose releases he recommended to President Comiskey.

Chance has completely recovered from the asthmatic condition which resulted from an attack of influenza, according to a Los Angeles report.

News of Chance's further delay in joining the club is keenly felt by Evers and club officials, but this was partly offset by word that the veteran Harry Hooper had accepted terms with the White Sox and would join the club in Atlanta.

Rogers Hornsby, St Louis star and champion batter of the National League, has remarried. Hornsby who was divorced last June, married Miss Jeannette Pennington, of St Louis, February 28, according to report.

Walter Johnson, star of the Washington pitching staff, will not have to make the barnstorming trip with the Senators. The speed-ball king, who is starting his 13th season with the club, has rounded into fine condition. The Senators finised their training at Tampa, Fla., yesterday by trimming the Brooklyn Dodgers. Johnson sharing the slab honors with Lefty Mogridge, who had an easy time winning from the National Leaguers.

A second appendicitis patient made his appearance in the camp of the Boston Nationals when Joe Batchelder, southpaw pitcher, was operated on at a St. Petersburg hospital. Two weeks ago Outfielder Gus Felix underwent a like operation.

The Boston Red Sox pulled stakes at San Antonio and started its northward journey, Hugh Duffy leading eight rookies, while the regulars will stop off at Fort Worth for two games.

Sam Braxton and George Smith, pitchers, who have been released by the Detroit Americans to Asheville, and Johnny Beun, first baseman, probably will be turned over to a Pacific Coast League club.

"Babe" Ruth was said to have smashed out the longest home run of his career yesterday, when the Yankees trimmed the Rochester Internationals. The distance from home plate to the center field fence at the Mobile diamond is 436 feet. The fence is 30 feet high, and Ruth's drive cleared it by 10 feet.

Results yesterday:
St. Louis (N.) 6, Milwaukee (A. A.) 2.
Washington 8, Brooklyn 3.
New York (A.) 8, Rochester (I.) 2.
Chicago (N.) 6, Pittsburgh (N.) 7.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1.—Bobby Harper and Pinky Mitchell will headline the next boxing card of the Portland boxing commission to be held here on the evening of Tuesday, April 8. The men are welters and will make 110 pounds for the bout, according to the announcement.

Edith Cummings Not To Enter Tournament

CHICAGO, April 1.—Miss Edith Cummings champion woman golfer of the United States, according to reports, will not compete in the British women's championship tournament at Port Rush. Other reports say there is little likelihood of either Miss Glenna Collett or Miss Marion Hollins, former national champions, taking the trip abroad.

The belief has prevailed that the three, particularly Miss Cummings, would represent the United States in the British classic. All of them spent the greater part of the winter playing golf in California and southern resorts.

BOWLING

The Clancy Jazz Tailors brought another bowling championship to Oakland when they won the title in the Class C division of the San Francisco and Suburban Bowling League.

Georgia Boy Almost Kayoes Mike McTigue

"Jersey Justice" Saves Champion From Losing His Ring Title.

By HENRY L. FARRELL,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 1.—By the grace of "Jersey Justice," which does not permit decisions on boxing contests, Mike McTigue, of County Clare and New York, still holds the world's light-heavyweight championship.

Before a crowd of [illegible] in the Newark armory last night, Young Stribling, just out of a Georgia high school, widely and convincingly outpointed McTigue in a 12-round bout. The score was 11 to 1 in favor of the young southerner.

In the tenth round Stribling tried to take the law into his hands when he smacked over a strong right hand that caught McTigue on the jaw and sent the champion to his knees.

"Ma" Stribling, his mother, dashed to his corner and shouted, in a high voice that carried over the din raised by the crowd, "finish him, boy; finish him."

McTigue came up dizzy without taking the full count and he "smarted" his way through to the finish.

McTigue at the end of the bout was a tired and used up champion. The champion blamed his showing on being short of work and it was apparent that Stribling had done the wise thing in taking eleven fights after their first affair in Georgia while McTigue remained idle.

Stribling gave McTigue many chances early in the fight to take the offense and show what he had. When he found that the champion had so little Stribling took the first away from him and carried through every round.

McTigue obviously was trying for a one-punch fight. In the second round he got one good crack at Stribling's jaw and the youngster was rocked to his ankles, but he came right back.

The champion was wild on the offense. He was short with his punches, his timing was poor and his footwork was even inferior to that of the youngster.

Paul Berlenbach staged a comeback in the semi-windup when he scored a knockout over Harry Krohn of Akron, O. A left hook to the stomach in the fourth round turned the trick. Berlenbach's long string of knockouts was recently stopped when Jack Delaney beat him.

Stribling May Be Rematched With McTigue

GOLF

Entrants in the Northern California golf tournament to be staged over the links of the Claremont club are urged to call up Piedmont 1005 today and arrange for their starting times.

By W. D. McNICOLL.

Bob MacDonald, the new professional at Sequoyah, was introduced to the members of the various committees yesterday and discussed with them methods desired to make for more efficiency in handling the ever increasing number of members who actively participate in tournaments or private matches over week ends at Sequoyah.

Clarence Graham, chairman of the green committee, now traveling in the East, is expected home about the middle of the month and will find MacDonald ready to assist him in carrying out improvements that will add considerably to the better conduct of the workshop, with increased efficiency in service.

HACKNEY ON JOB.

Bill Hackney, who succeeds Bob MacDonald at Diablo, will report for duty today. The Diablo Golf and Country Club directors must have found their previous professionals satisfactory as each of Hackney's predecessors are the product of the same school of golfers.

Jim Smith, who held the professional post previously, and Bob MacDonald were club mates of Hackney's at the Carnoustie Golf Club, Scotland, where they are retained as honorary members on an ever increasing list, which includes names famous all over the golfing world.

AN HONEST GOLFER.

Joe Novak, who was reported to have broken the Del Paso course record last Sunday when he accompanied the Berkeley golfers on their journey to the capitol city in quest of points, denies the result of his efforts to equal the record which is held by Walter Hagan when he medaled the course in 73. Novak, like Hagan, insists in holing out his putts in all his matches, and just equaled the record by insisting upon holing out a short put that Jess Childs wanted to concede him at the first hole. By a peculiar coincidence Novak duplicated shot for shot Walter Hagan's remarkable drive and approach to the home green, which measures 413 yards. Joe had driven a particularly long ball from the 18th tee and was informed that Hagan had driven a similar distance and had reached to within 12 inches of the pin with his mashie iron. Novak selected his No. 4, which is a mashie iron, hit a perfect approach that left him only a few inches from the cup and a birdie three gave him his second score of 74 in one day.

A GOOD MATCH.

Francis Brown, the Honolulu champion, accompanied by Jess Yont of the San Francisco Golf and Country Club, will visit Berkeley tomorrow (Wednesday), April 2, and compete in a best-ball match with A. V. Thompson and Joe Novak. The famous Honolulu amateur has pleasant recollections of his previous visits to Berkeley, when he shot near to par golf on his two previous matches. The match will take place at 1 p. m. over 18 holes and should furnish the gallery with thrills, as Brown is recognized as one of the longest drivers in the world.

Piedmont Tennis Team Wins Match

The University High School lost a tennis match to the net men from Piedmont by a 5 to 2 score. Grimme, diminutive Piedmont star, was the bright light of the contest by defeating Budge after the latter had won four straight games. He did the trick by winning ten consecutive games.

The scores:

Grimme (P.) defeated Budge (U.), 6-4, 6-1; Rawlings (P.) defeated Smith (U.) 6-4, 1-6, 6-2; McKee (P.) defeated Allen (U.) 6-2, 6-0; Sherwin (P.) defeated Banfield (U.), 6-2, 7-5; Fitzgerald (U.) defeated Kelley (P.) 4-6, 6-4, 6-4; Smith and Bansfield (U.) defeated Grimme and Kelley (P.) 6-4, 6-1; Rawlings and Sherwin (P.) defeated Berger and Fitzgerald (U), 6-1, 7-9.

MERGUIRE-RITCHIES WIN AGAIN.

The Merguire Ritchie Chevrolets defeated the Oakland Foresters 8 to 2. Up till the seventh inning the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the motor team. Pitcher Scurlch weakened. From then on the motor team had it easy. Van Houtte, pitching for Merguire Ritchies, was working in his best form, striking out 12 men.

The score:

Bruin Crew Leaves For North Friday to Meet Washington; Saint-Bears Clash Thursday; Track Prospects Againt Stanford Dubious.

By DOUG. MONTELL.

After a season of inactivity California will once more make a bid for athletic supremacy in three sports during the coming month. With the college term drawing to a close there has been no competition worthy of the name for the California track, baseball or crew squads and the 1924 spring sport schedule will pass into history as one of the most listless since the Golden Bears first came into a position of prominence in the athletic world.

It will occasion no surprise should the California track team go down to defeat at the hands of Stanford, possibly to Illinois as well, for without competition (for the U. S. C. meet in the mud could hardly be called a true bit of competition), the Bears have had nothing to do all season.

In an effort to provide competition the Olympic club tracksters will appear on the California oval next Saturday, after which workouts the Bears will have another two weeks of leisure, then Illinois, then Stanford, then what? Few look for California's track team to go to the IC 4A meet this year in search of honors.

Crew to Leave For North Friday.

The California crew is due to depart for the north Friday to meet the University of Washington at Seattle, April 12, in the one and only race of the year. In spite of hardships, handicaps and being a newcomer, Coach Ky Ebright appears to have developed an eight capable of giving the Huskies a row for their uppers.

The life of a crew man is no bed of roses and little has been heard of the Bruin boat, their only public work being in trial spins daily with no possible competition, no natural rival and only enthusiasm on the part of the oarsmen making a brave attempt to keep the sport alive since Stanford decided that the sport should be abandoned.

California's chances of victory in crew are not bright, the Bruins haven't an even chance of winning but Ebright knows Washington's [illegible] men for, has a workable boat that is showing more than fair ability and the Washingtonians, national champions, will have a scrapping bunch to beat on their own little Lake Washington unless dope goes amiss.

Names of the men who will row in the University of California varsity shell against the Washington Huskies in Seattle, April 12, as well as the names of the freshmen crew which will meet the Husky Babes, were announced today by "Ky" Ebright, head coach, and Russ Nagler, freshmen mentor.

The men in the varsity eight are Rogers, stroke; Donaldson, No. 7; Crammer, No. 6; Harbach, No. 5; Holland No. 4; Stewart, No. 3; Beard, No. 2; Captain Loskamp, bow; Hotle, coxswain.

Substitutes, Gibbons, starboard, and Walker, port.

In the freshmen boat Geddes will stroke; Sanders, No. 7; Hutchinson, No. 6; Burke, No. 5; Dixon, No. 4; Duckles, No. 3; Robert, No. 2; Locke, bow; Blessing, coxswain; Grover is the portside sub, while Green is the starboard.

California Nine Faces Hard Task.

In baseball the Bears have had a hectic season with the loss of Cleary and Thompson, two veterans, already taking away two stars through a violation of eligibility rules.

Defeated by Santa Clara and St. Mary's, not to mention numerous other defeats at the hands of club and semi-pro teams, the Bruins cannot be said to have a championship contender, although their chances against Stanford may be said to be good.

The Bears tackle St. Mary's on the Oakland college diamond Thursday in the second game of the series and another defeat at the hands of Coach "Slip" Madigan's men will entirely eliminate California as a contender for collegiate honors on the diamond.

Following the game with the Saints the Bears are due to meet U. S. C. in the South Saturday and Monday in a two-game series, returning home for the first game against Stanford April 12 at Berkeley.

Track Prospects Dubious at Best.

In track the Beaers should win from the Olympic club, but they must do so by a wide margin to convince even their closest supporters that they have a chance against Coach "Dink" Templeton's Stanfordites. The Stanford victories over both the Olympic club and U. S. C. by wide margins indicate that the Cardinal track and field squad is all that could be desired and aside from three of four stars of ability, Captain Neufeld, Barber, Chase, Jensen and Becker, the Californians are nearly all classed as second and third place men.

The year looked to be one of success for Stanford at the start, but the California basketball team spilled the dope after getting away to a slow start and the baseball and track teams, while on the short end of the ledger at present writing, cannot be marked down as defeated until they have been given a hearing.

Berkeley High Favorite Over Fresno Quintet

The Berkeley High basketball team is now in the finals for the state championship, and the game with Fresno Saturday night at Fresno will decide matters. The Northern section champions are strong favorites for the honors, as the Fresno team is practically crippled, due to the loss of three players for violation of the state anti-fraternity act.

Up to the time of the loss of players the Valley lads were the favorites as they had a team composed of all veteran players, but now they are not conceded much of a chance. Berkeley's defense in the last game was excellent, only one shot made by Auburn was shot very near the basket.

Sears, star forward, who was injured previous to the Placer tray, is now in shape and will probably start against the Fresno aggregation.

INFLUX OF SHIPS SWAMPS HOWARD WHARF FACILITIES

The arrival in this port of the freighter Lochgoil heralded a rush of vessels, which very nearly swamped the facilities of the Howard Terminal in the estuary. The big Royal Mail steamer put ashore a considerable amount of freight and then proceeded to load 900 tons of dried fruits, principally prunes from the Santa Clara valley.

The next craft to poke her nose in the terminal slip was the J. L. Luckenbach, which loaded 600 tons of canned goods and 100 tons of magnesite. This last item was mined in Alameda county, and forms an important factor in the mineral exports of the State.

The Lillian Luckenbach is to put ashore 680 tons of merchandise for Oakland. The Luckenbach line is now stowing cargo in the eastern ports directly for Oakland, which gives the equivalent of a direct service.

The increasing ship arrivals in Oakland has made it necessary for the Howard Terminal to extend its docking facilities. On the west side of the main pier the property has been excavated for a distance of 100 feet, and the old ore wharf has been removed. When the new structures are completed the Howard Terminal will be in position to accommodate as many as eight boats at one time instead of being limited as at present.

Quarantine Boat Christened With Choice Calif. Oil

Tanker H. C. Folger Put Into Intercoastal Oil Carrying Service.

[illegible] April 1.—An unique christening was accorded the quarantine launch S. D. Brooks here yesterday when before a gathering of more than 200 a bottle of refined oil was broken over the bow of the ship.

Entry of another tank steamer into the intercoastal trade was announced here yesterday. The vessel is the H. C. Folger, expected here within the next week from the East coast.

Five tank steamers were included in a long list of arrivals here today. One of the arrivals, the Union Oil tanker Cathwood, proceeded to dry dock on arrival for a short layup.

Battered and bearing scars of stormy seas and with a portion of her cargo of tomatoes and bananas lost at sea, the Mexican steamer Tropical reached here early today from Mexico.

Navigation on French Inland Waters Grows

The volume of inland navigation in France on the canals and rivers for the first nine months of 1923 shows an appreciable increase over the same period during 1922, as can be seen from the following official figures just received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French information service.

Tonnage loaded during the third quarter—

	1923	1922
Rivers	4,765,208	4,173,133
Canals	4,081,686	3,900,253
	8,846,894	8,073,386
First six months	16,236,126	13,803,951
Total for the 3 first quarters	25,083,020	21,877,337

This increase in traffic on the canals and rivers, which coincides with an increase in the number of car-loadings on the large French railroads, is attributed, in well-informed circles, to a development of France's commercial activity.

Alaska Drawing Cannery Crews For '24 Season

Many Vessels on Way North With Hands and Summer Supplies.

SEATTLE, March 31.—Six vessels laden with cannery supplies and carrying cannery crews as passengers have arranged sailing schedules for northern points. The Alaska Steamship Company's liner Victoria sails tomorrow.

The barge J. D. Peters of the Northwestern Fisheries Company fleet, in tow of the Lillico tug Sea Monarch, will also leave tomorrow. Others leaving this week include the Libby, McNeill & Libby Company motorship Libby Maine, the steamship Otsego and the steamships Jefferson and Cordova.

With the heaviest cargo of coal and lumber ever loaded in her holds the steamship Brookdale departed for Dutch Harbor and Unalaska, Alaska, under charter to the Alaska Commercial Company.

Fully laden with Puget Sound offerings, including lumber, flour and cattle fodder, the Matson Navigation Company's freighter Makiki will sail for the Hawaiian islands tomorrow.

In the General Steamship Corporation's Pacific Coast Australian service, the Swedish steamship Roxen arrived tonight to be overhauled.

The British steamship London Merchant, which arrived tonight, will load liberal offerings here for London and Liverpool.

Colonel E. J. M. Nash, for the last three years general agent on the Pacific Coast for the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, has resigned to engage in the shipping and chartering business on his own account. J. J. McGowan, formerly freight traffic manager of the Royal Company at New York, has been named manager of the local branch.

With a full cargo of freight and a good list of passengers the Admiral-Oriental line steamship President Grant sails for the Orient Wednesday.

Further softening of United Kingdom grain rates was reported today by chartering agents, and fixtures were few.

One agent reported rate of 35 shillings for United Kingdom grain compared with 40 shillings recently.

Timbers and planking in the ferryboat Washington, leased to the Kitsap County Transportation Company two years ago by King county, are in many cases nothing more than shells, because of the effects of "dry rot," according to a communication to the King county board of commissioners today from the company.

John L. Burnside, for more than ten years a Seattle shipping man, will assume tomorrow the duties of Puget Sound manager of the Williams Steamship Company with headquarters here.

Operating with the steamships Alaska and Northwestern, the liner Yukon, recently acquired by the Alaska Steamship Company, will sail from Seattle May 17 for Seward and way ports, it was announced today.

With Keith G. Fisken and Harold W. Burchard in charge, the new local officers of the Furness Pacific, Ltd., were officially opened in the Arctic building today.

Matson Company Makes Changes

Because of steadily increasing passenger business from San Francisco to the Hawaiian Islands, the Matson Navigation Co. has promoted E. O. Hendricson, purser of the Matsonia, for more than a year, to a position in the passenger department of the main office, in the Matson building, San Francisco. A general rearrangement of pursers has been made necessary by his promotion. Mr. Hendricson's place on the Matsonia will be taken by Archie Archibald, purser of the Manoa, for almost a year. Stepping up one grade, Jack Fischbeck goes from the Lurline to the Manoa, Arthur Baxter from the Makiki to the Lurline, and A. W. Nelson from the Mahukona to the Makiki. F. I. Throop, a new man, takes Nelson's place on the Mahukona, and Otto Theis, another new man, becomes purser of the Makaweli, succeeding L. P. Acton, who resigned recently.

WINCHESTER BAY WILL SHIP MUCH CARGO TO CALIF.

Tugboat Sampson Will Tow Large Barge Up and Down the Coast.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1.—The Winchester Bay Lumber company, operating at Reedsport, Ore., has announced that it will place the tug Samson towing the barge Washougal in service carrying lumber to California, and will make several trips to the Columbia river. Much of the lumber to be carried is to be trans-shipped in offshore trade.

The Norwegian motorship Hallfried, now en route from Astoria with a cargo of flour for the Orient, has been re-chartered for another trip from the same port with another cargo of flour, it is announced by the Astoria Flour Mills company. The same mill will furnish a cargo of flour for the steamer Commercial Scout, chartered a few days ago through the C. K. West company. She also will carry to the Orient.

Lumber shipments for the week just closed from St. Helens aggregated 2,500,000 feet, all of which went to California.

A further softening of the United Kingdom grain rates was reported at the close of the week by chartering agents, and fixtures were few. One agent reported that the rate fell to 35 shillings for United Kingdom grain. It reached a peak of 40 shillings, and a few days ago it was placed at 38 s d and then dropped to 37 s d.

INCREASE OF OF INDUSTRY OUTPUT AIM

More Standardization in Products and Better Spirit Among Employees Needed to Meet Competition

BY CONSOLIDATED PRESS.
SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, April 1.—The necessity of getting not the most but the best out of both machines and men, in order to meet strong present day competition, is turning the manufacturers and business men of America toward greater standardization and promotion of increased personal efficiency. Constant experiments along those lines are being made in nearly every line.

Experts in standardization declare that investigations have showed that those industries most thoroughly standardized are the ones now enjoying prosperity. In support of this they declare the saving by standardization in automobile manufacture will exceed $750,000,000 this year. On the other hand, many leather men blame the varieties of styles, shapes, colors and materials in shoes, especially those for women, for the lethargy which has weighed down the leather trade.

HARDWARE SAVINGS.

As an example of the saving possible in hardware, it has been shown that one firm is making 7500 varieties of bed casters and that three axe manufacturers are turning out common axes in 34 types, four grades, 35 brands, 19 sizes and 6118 varieties. Taking these facts into consideration, manufacturers not only are standardizing their own factories but aiding to standardize their industries and promote world wide acceptance of American specifications.

Special efforts are being made toward efficiency in the building construction field. The volume of building this spring bids fair to eclipse the tremendous volume of early 1923 in the leading cities. Lumbermen and makers of other building materials are cooperating in standardization to hold material costs down and working with building trades unions and contractors in establishing trade apprentice schools, [illegible] will help relieve labor shortage and stabilize individual efficiency and wages. The government has played a part also through efforts to increase construction during the so-called "off seasons."

BUILDING TECHNIC.

Over six hundred students at the Carnegie Intitute of Technology at Pittsburgh are taking courses in building construction and in connection with the lathers and international ulons, the institute is offered courses for evening study. In Chicago, the citizens committee and contractors are developing a huge building trade appentice school. The technical and commercial high schools in Omaha will provide instruction in building trades next fall. In Dallas the chamber of commerce is raising a fund of $500,000 for a school to train plasterers, plumbers and other artisans.

The office workers and white collar men are not being overlooked in the efforts for efficiency. Special attention is now being called in offices to the loss in efficiency due to eye strain, resulting from improper lighting, improper placement or ignorance of defective vision. Executives are having the eyes of their employes examined to see whether they require glasses. It has also been established by the national committee for the prevention of blindness, that highly polished furniture, especially desks and tables is extremely bad for the eyes. Such furniture in many plants is being dulled or covered.

OFFICE IMPROVEMENT.

Placing of furniture is coming in for attention and employees are being shifted to positions where they can obtain the best light while safes and furniture not constantly in use are shoved into the darker corners. The committee for the prevention of blindness is cooperating with office managers by furnishing complete information on lighting needs. The position of the clerical worker and the demand for his services are being improved in some sections by the fact that many young men and women formerly in training for "white collar" jobs are going into the manual employments, attracted by present high wages. Bricklayers now are getting $1.12½ to $1.75 an hour; carpenters from 70 cents to $1.60; structural iron workers 60 cents to $1.50 and hod carriers as high as $1.25 an hour.

Hayes Stockholders Ratify Merger

JACKSON, Mich., April 1.—Stockholders of the Hayes Wheel Company, at a meeting in Jackson, Mich., approved the acquisition of the Hayes Motor Truck Wheel Company of St. Johns, Mich., the Albion Bolt Company of Albion, Mich., and the Morrison Metal Stampings Company of Jackson, Mich., through an exchange of stock.

The combined earnings of these companies on the basis of last year's business and the present rate of operations, after all charges but before federal taxes, are estimated at $700,000, while the dividend requirements on the preferred stock to be issued in this purchase amounts to approximately $137,000.

The first quarter of 1924 will be the largest quarter in the company's history and the gross business for March will establish a new high monthly record.

TEXTILES.

FALL RIVER, Mass., April 1.—The sales of cotton goods last week totaled only 40,000 pieces, the smallest in months. Sales recently have been around 70,000 pieces and 300,000 is normal. The closing of several Rhode Island mills has intensified the textile depression felt in New England.

1923 TRADE STORY TOLD BY EARNINGS

Rate Per Share of 200 of Leading Industrial and Other Corporations for 1923 Compared With 1922

Business as a whole made notable progress and development in 1923 as the earnings of leading industrial and related corporations show. There were, of course, some exceptions. The earnings per share of some 200, more or less, of the larger representatives of industry and business of the nation generally for 1923 as compared with the preceding year tell their own story. The figures here presented are from careful tabulations just completed by the bond and investment house of William Cavalier & Co.

Cleveland Facing Street Car Strike

CLEVELAND, April 1.—The demand of the Cleveland Railway employees has brought the local traction situation to a crisis. The men ask a 40 per cent pay increase; an eight hour day with split runs eliminated; time and a half for overtime, Sundays and holidays; a day off weekly; two weeks vacation with pay and a [illegible] minute layover at the end of each run instead of four minutes.

The difference in the pay schedule, which would be raised to 85 cents an hour for men employed six months, 87 cents for those working over six months and under twelve months and 90 cents for all having a year or more service, would add $2,000,000 annually to operating expenses. The operating allowance of the company already shows a deficit and the present 6 cent fare is the maximum under the grant under which the company is permitted to operate. The workers declare their demands must be met May 1.

Retail Sales Are Equal to 1923

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—Retail sales here have been about equal to those of March, 1923. The demand for women's wearing apparel is better than [illegible]. This is attributed to pre Easter buying, it being claimed that women are more likely to provide for their requirements well in advance. Cotton goods manufacture has fallen off somewhat, although curtailment has not been so severe as in some other manufacturing sections. Prices in general have been fairly steady but there have been some revisions in favor of the buyer.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

By H. S. SCOTT.

Settlements on short interests which fell due today carried the French franc to a new high for the year at 5.64 cents. The previous high was 5.63 a week ago yesterday. The Belgian franc also touched a new high at 4.71 cents and the Italian lire joined its company in making a 1923 record at 4.46 cents.

So strong was the tendency of this exchange to go higher that certain New York banks refused to quote rates at all except for immediate sale. These in turn notified their correspondents in Oakland and San Francisco with the result that quotation here were also for immediate sale.

News of a strike of the Filipino laborers on a number of the Hawaiian sugar plantations had a tendency to make some of the sugar stocks a little uneasy in the San Francisco market. A few of the larger concerns, however, were not inclined to regard the situation with much worry, notwithstanding reports of threatened riots coming from Honolulu. The following plantations were affected: Kahuku, Waialula and Waipahu on Oahu island, and Kealia, Kola, Lihue, McBryde, Makaweli and Kekaha on Kauai island. A silent strike was ordered on Hawaii island.

Prices displayed an improved tone at the opening in New York. Gains of substantial fractions were recorded by several industrial shares, including General Electric, Studebaker, Chandler, Stewart-Warner and American Tobacco. Selling of American Woolen, however, drove that stock down a half point to a new low at 67⅞.

Particular strength was shown in the motor group with Nash Motors advancing 3⅝ points. American Can, Dupont, Phillips Petroleum, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and Soo moved up 1 to 3 points. LaClede Gas was stronger on a change of control which passed to the W. A. Harriman interests. Kelly-Springfield weakened later, declining over a point on selling inspired by uneasiness over impending action on the preferred stock. Foreign exchanges opened higher.

Relatively little attention was paid to the persistent selling of Studebaker which carried it down 2 points the list otherwise showing a tendency to improve under the leadership of the coalers. The first preferred, St. Paul preferred and Chesapeake & Ohio were in special demand. Bosch Magneto crumbled 3⅝ to 22¼, a new minimum figure.

Mixed price movements prevailed in today's early bond market as continued high money rates caused a further shifting of funds into other channels. Changes for the most part were narrow, although a brisk demand for St. Paul, French municipal and Cerro de Pasco issues [illegible]. Swiss 8s declined 1½ points on the announcement of a new $30,000,000 loan to the government which was sold today. Marland 6s also lost ground and Kelly-Springfield 8s reacted following a decline in the common stock. A large number of active issues sold ex-interest today.

Secretary Hoover told the president the steel industry was going ahead in a favorable way, and that building permits for the spring and summer were larger than at the same time a year ago, when a new high record was attained.

The president believes that an impetus will be given all business as soon as the tax bill is passed by Congress, and feels that should a measure modeled on the Mellon plan be enacted an improvement would be noted within a month or six weeks, with money piled up in the banks diverted to creative enterprise.

Wall street bankers generally state that the nation's business is fairly well balanced and that the immediate future holds prospect of continued industrial activity at a high rate. Statistics of trade and industry for the first quarter of 1924 reveal a greater volume of business than in many corresponding periods of previous years.

The United States Steel Corporation has a hidden asset totaling more than $50,000,000, it was reported today. For years the corporation's management has deducted from its inventories a reserve to guard against possible losses, which is said to constitute a tangible asset although it does not appear on the company's balance sheet. Last year's contribution to the reserve amounted to $1,759,973, bringing the total to $51,220,055. Eventually, it is believed this will be diverted into surplus. Distribution of the credit on the common stock would give each share more than $10.

Re-payment of the Bank of France of about one-third of the $100,000,000 credit established by American bankers, under the leadership of J. P. Morgan & Co., for stabilization of the franc, is now in progress, it was reported today. The recent firmness of the currency and the withdrawal of market support, according to bankers, indicates that the crisis is over and the French government is counting on natural economic developments to hold the franc steady or cause further appreciation in value.

Railroad gros searnings in February indicate a gain of approximately $32,000,000 over the same month last year, in contrast to January's decline of $34,000,000 from January, 1923. Estimates of about $70,000,000 net for February would be a gain of about $31,000,000 compared with a decrease in January net of only $10,000,000.

Views on the stock market as seen through the eyes of some of the tape analysists are at variance only with respect to the immediate future. As to the possibility of a forward movement by June, there is greater unanimity than on most other topics.

Although the General Electric annual report had been rather accurately forecast, Wall street found an optimistic note in the document. In the ensuing run-up in the shares all sight of the late disseminated bookings statements, revealing declines from previous [illegible] was lost.

A seasonal shut-down of one of its western plants is predicted for Corn Products, but this does not mean a sudden lapse in demand for the company's output.

The best price in several sessions in Wall street was reached by American Can Tuesday and this was thought to reflect the run-in of a short account which developed on dividend day.

TWO BIG OIL COMBINES IN DIABLO FIELD

General Petroleum and Pacific Corporations Reported Behind Prospecting at Clayton, Walnut Creek

MARTINEZ, April 1.—The Pacific Oil Company and the General Petroleum company, two of the state's largest oil concerns, were declared today to be the factors behind the oil exploration parties that have been busy for the last six weeks in the vicinity of Mt. Diablo. While geologists have been busying themselves with surveys other representatives of oil concerns, said now to be the Pacific Oil Company and the General Petroleum Company, have been hurriedly obtaining leases. One coterie, said to represent the Pacific Oil Company, is operating around the northern base of Diablo in the vicinity of Clayton, while a second group is engaged east of Walnut Creek.

The operations of the two groups are being carried on quietly and with no show of publicity and at times with a seeming effort to conceal the identity of the moving factors.

Preparations are being made to drill wells at Clayton and east of Walnut Creek. Men on the ground declare that rigging and equipment will be brought into both districts this week.

Recently H. L. Croson, A. T. Miller and Dr. Irving S. Ingler of San Francisco signed up leases in the Clayton district, but it was disclosed in whose interests they were operating.

APRICOT MEN RECEIVE FINAL CROP DIVIDEND

Holdover From Last Season Practically All Sold, Says Growers' Head.

SAN JOSE, April 1. — Checks totaling $285,000, covering the final payment on the 1922 crop of apricots were mailed to members of the California Prune & Apricot Growers' Association last night, according to a statement issued today by A. M. Mortensen, general manager of the association. Mortensen also stated that the holdings of apricots now in the hands of the association is now less than $2,000,000 pounds, the balance of the 24,000,000 with which the season opened having been disposed of. The balance of 'cots left on hand, according to the general manager, consists of choice and fancy grades only.

Mortensen will leave late next week for the east to make his annual visit to markets and for the purpose of gathering data on trade conditions in order that a basis for fixing the 1924 prices may be secured. The association head will also check up on advertising campaigns and results they have accomplished. This will be done, he says, with a view of determining the advertising appropriation and distributing for next season.

Apple Pool Claims Amicably Settled

YAKIMA, Wash., April 1.—A settlement was reached in the northwest valley corporation bankruptcy case in which members of a potato pool and apple pool which sold through the corporation both demanded preference in claims amounting to $20,000 each. It was decided to pay the apple pool a preferred claim of $2000 and to divide $10,000 in cash assets remaining equally between the two pools. Officers of the corporation, H. L. Hull, N. H. Massie and Ira Cleveland agreed to waive claims for sales amounting to about $3000. There are 285 apple growers to share about $6500, and 65 potato growers to split about $1500, after expenses are paid. David Rankin, referee, claims arose through the 1923 crops which were handled.

Almonds Hit by Frost in Yolo

WOODLAND, April 1.—Almonds were heavily hit by recent frosts, according to a survey of the orchards about Esparto. Losses from frost in almonds reported to County Horticultural Commissioner Harold Van Tassel include: Nels Johnson, 10 acres, complete loss; Sivert Brothers, heavy loss in almonds; Lockhardt Brothers of Brooks, 80 acres loss, with A. H. Curtis and J. ... also heavy losers. Tom Fitzgerald reports that his 35-acre apricot orchard was killed throughout.

Drake and Texas almonds generally were hit hard, while the Peerless, or soft-shelled almond escaped and promises a bumper crop.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 1.—Futures were slightly irregular at the opening of the cotton market today, being from 7 points higher to 5 points lower. Steady Liverpool cables had a stimulating effect on the near months, but the distant positions were under light pressure.

State Rice Industry Worth 6 Millions

Figures compiled by the California Development Association show that California's 1923 rice crop, cultivated on 106,000 acres of land, yielding 5,470,000 bushels, was worth $6,125,000. Though new, the industry in California now ranks second in the United States.

Principal purchasers of the rice crop were the Japanese people, who bought a quantity valued at $3,566,111, or more than half of the total value of the crop during the past year. Since 1921 the Japanese have purchased approximately $10,000,000 of California rice. In 1921 Japan paid California growers $1,790,263 and in 1922 they paid $4,569,711.

Manteca to Become Cucumber Center

MANTECA, April 1.—Already 85 acres have been signed up for cucumbers and 100 are expected within the next few days. The acreage is being signed by the California Preserving company of Hayward, which sees in the Manteca section great possibilities for this crop. It is an experiment with local farmers, however, but experts have been promised to advise them in cultivating the crop. Should it prove successful several hundred acres will be planted next year.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 1.—Building materials are very active. Cement sales have been especially heavy for the last week. Deliveries have been speedy.

COAL.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 1.—Beehive coke is exceedingly dull except for two big furnaces which are negotiating for partial requirements of 4000 and 5000 tons monthly. One or two furnace operators are indefinitely postponing their buying, in hope of securing a $3.75 price. The market at present is holding around $4.

February Shows Record Adverse Trade in Japan

Imports Almost Three Times Exports; Much Building Material Going In.

During February Japan experienced the largest adverse trade balance ever recorded. Preliminary returns indicate exports totaling 105,000,000 yen and imports amounting to 291,300,000 yen. The excess of imports reached 186,500,000 yen compared with 39,979,000 in January and 53,361,000 in February, 1923. Exports during February showed a decline of 5,358,000 yen compared with January, and of 18,125,000 yen compared with the same period last year. February imports gained 81,163,000 yen over the January total and were 135,011,000 yen higher than in the same month last year. The abnormally high import figure, and the consequent heavy import excess, are, to a large extent due to the desire of importers to anticipate their needs in order to take advantage of the special duty exemptions which terminate March 31. Heavy imports of reconstruction materials also contributed to the result. An analysis of the import trade shows that raw cotton, wheat, iron and steel, and lumber accounted for 80 per cent of the February increase over the previous month. Since all of these items represent essential materials to be used in industry or reconstruction they are to a large extent investments which will contribute to the economic upbuild of the country. The increase in raw cotton, which represents more than 5 per cent of the total, is especially favorable since it represents deliveries of purchases made at considerably less than present prices.

Exports of cotton yarns and textiles were maintained at satisfactory levels during February, both of these items having shown increases compared with the previous month. On the other hand, there was a decline of more than 12,000,000 yen in raw silk exports. Shipments of silk textiles also declined slightly.

1923 Production Of French Mint

The production of the French mint which, during the years between 1912 and 1913 averaged 113,000,000 coins annually, totalled 509,611,382 coins last year out of which 440,053,620 were destined for France and 69,077,078 for the colonies. This increase in activity is due very largely to the increasing out-put of the small bronze-aluminum coins to be used to replace the paper-notes of Frs. 2, Fr. 1 and 50 centimes which were issued during the war.

The Bankers Trust Company of New York is advised by its French Information Service that practically the total amount of the above output has already been handed over to the Bank of France and put into circulation. During the present year these coins will continue to be produced at the rate of approximately 22,000,000 francs worth per month.

$403,890 Dividends Paid Employees

Dividends amounting to $403,890 were paid by the Proctor & Gamble Company last year to employees participating in their profit sharing plan, according to an announcement made today by the company.

The total number of shares of the company's common stock subscribed for by employees is 42,214. The market value of this stock is at the present time $5,487,820. During the year 1923 the participants in the profit sharing plan received dividends amounting to $403,890. The total amount of money paid by the employees against their stock purchases for the year 1923 was $279,736.

The Proctor & Gamble Company have about 5500 employees that are eligible to the profit sharing plan, of these approximately 65 per cent are members of the plan.

Ohio Public Service Gains 20 Per Cent

The report of the Ohio Public Service company, one of the principal utility subsidiaries of Cities Service company, for 1923 shows that gross income increased from $2,482,426 in 1922 to $2,996,376 last year, or more than 20 per cent. The gross revenue for the year ending December 31, 1923, was $7,753,246.

The extent of the additions and betterments made by the company in 1923 is reflected in the plant and investment account item of $26,518,906, shown in the balance sheet, as compared with $22,... 135 in 1922.

After payment of all fixed charges and interest, balance available for dividends and reserves totaled $2,024,063, as compared with $1,510,761 at the close of the preceding year. This was more than 6.40 times the dividend requirements on the company's 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, series "A," of which there was $4,500,000 outstanding. In the preceding year there was available for dividends a balance of $1,510,761, which was 4.79 times the dividend requirements.

COTTON FACING OUTLOOK WITHOUT LIKE IN HISTORY

Advancing Cost of Production Raising Very Difficult Economic Problems.

Today the cotton textile industry of the world faces a situation in the market for raw cotton without parallel in its recent history. Despite the decline in prices which has taken place since January, cotton now is relatively high when measured in terms of the general level of commodity prices, and it is also high in relation to the prices of most competing fibers. In addition the price is subject to such wide fluctuations that an abnormal hazard has been introduced into those businesses dependent wholly or partly upon cotton as a raw material, according to J. Howard Ardrey, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, writing in the April issue of Commerce Monthly says:

"The depredations of the weevil have brought about two main changes in the production of cotton in the United States. First of these is the development of methods of weevil control. Crop rotation, heavy fertilization, seed selection, early planting, thorough cultivation and the use of calcium arsenate have thus far proved the most effective ways of dealing with the pest. However, in what was once the main part of the cotton belt, in a very real sense the growing cotton plant is now subjected to a double weather hazard. There is to be reckoned with not only the direct effect of weather conditions upon growth and productivity but also the indirect effect because the extent of weevil damage is dependent to a high degree on weather conditions which may be such as well-nigh to nullify attempts at weevil control by best known methods.

CHANGES IN OUTLOOK.

"The second change is the tendency to push cotton west and north. Thus last year 14,081,000 acres were planted to cotton in Texas and 1,678,000 acres in North Carolina. These two states which in 1914 produced 34 per cent of the crop of the United States in 1923 produced 53 per cent. In 1924 the acreage under cotton in Virginia, Missouri and Kentucky probably will expand and cotton growing will be attempted on a small scale in southern Illinois. Experience thus far shows that climatic conditions in these northerly and arid westerly areas afford at least partial protection against weevil damage.

... fested areas and cotton growing outside of them should prove to be an effective measure for a material expansion of the American cotton crop it does not follow that such expansion will mean low-priced cotton. If the effort is to secure large yields despite weevil infestation should result in crops large enough to depress the price, the area under cotton in weevil territory would be reduced quickly. Costs of production under weevil conditions would make such reduction imperative.

OLD SOUTH IS GONE.

"There is no cotton-growing area of the world which promises to duplicate the conditions of the old South, namely, production of cheap cotton by means of extensive agriculture carried on on low-priced and fertile lands by means of abundant supplies of cheap and relatively efficient labor. In the United States and elsewhere the situation might be altered radically and suddenly by mechanical inventions which would lessen the labor costs of cotton growing just as the invention of the cotton gin revolutionized the industry in 1793. If supplies of cheap cotton are not assured an adjustment eventually will be made between supply and demand at higher price levels. In such countries as India and China where the purchasing power of the masses is very low, it seems not improbable that the result of such an adjustment would be a lessened use of clothing. In richer countries, the comparative position of cotton textiles would be determined only after a new struggle between cotton its chief competitors, flax, wool and silk."

CHICAGO, April 1.—Corn showed more activity than wheat today but neither sellers nor buyers took an aggressive stand and price changes kept within a narrow range during the early trading. The market responded nervously to any transient increase of offerings or of demand. The opening which ranged from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, May 76⅞ to 77c, was followed by a slight general sag and then by little rallies and setbacks in succession.

In the wheat market trade was of a scattered character, with May showing some weakness and later months firmer. After opening at ⅜c off to an equal gain, May $1.02 to $1.02¼ and July $1.03⅛ to $1.03⅜, wheat prices dropped all around to a limited extent and then steadied at about the same as yesterday's finish.

Oats averaged a trifle higher as a result of talk about seeding delay. Initial prices were a shade to ⅛c up, May 45⅞ to 46c, with no important fluctuations later.

Provisions were upheld by firmness of hog values.

Diabetes Decamps
Mr. J. B. Morrison, a well-known Oakland machinist, testifies:
Oakland, Oct. 23, 1922.
During the five years from 1916 to 1921 I suffered with diabetes. In June, 1921, I began to lose weight and by October I had fallen from 270 to 135 pounds. Becoming greatly alarmed, I consulted the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST in October. I took eight weeks of his herbs, cooking them myself. I am still well today and my weight is 190 pounds.
My friends through Oakland [illegible] that 135 pounds in four months many of them did not recognize me, but passed me by on the street like a stranger. It goes without saying that I am deeply grateful for having thus been restored to normal health, strength and weight.

PLANTED FIG GARDENS
NO PAYMENT DOWN
I, J. C. Forkner, president of the J. C. Forkner Fig Gardens, Inc., hereby offer 100 families a most remarkable proposition.
I have planted and sold 10,000 acres of fig gardens; I have spent $6,000,000 during the last ten years developing these fig gardens; there are 100 happy families living on these home acres now; I want 100 more families.
I have decided to sell 1000 acres of planted fig gardens, just coming into bearing, on the following conditions:
You move upon five or ten acres of my fig gardens, just coming into bearing, adjoining the city of Fresno, and build a home and farm the land, I will give you ten years in which to pay.
The Crops Will Pay for the Land
Roads, ditches, highways, electric lines are built; townsite on land being developed, best water right in state; canning factory already built, church, schools and $5,000,000 lumber mill employing 1000 men on tract; only 15 minutes from center of Fresno.
I live on the land and have developed these fig gardens myself; any man who moves upon these fig gardens cannot fail, for I will help him to success.
For details see my personal representative, MR. FRED W. GREGORY, suite 706 Hearst bldg., San Francisco; phone Sutter 1311

BANDIT GETS PRISON TERM

One year to life imprisonment was the sentence given Melford Wilhelm, alias Melford Wright who pleaded guilty before Superior Judge Lincoln S Church to first degree burglary

Wilhelm was captured at Twenty-second and Franklin streets February 16 last after a chase following the robbery of a store on Broadway He entered the place according to the police build up Robert Touch with a gun and took $300 from the cash register

According to the statement of Assistant District Attorney Frank Shay in connection with the plea of guilty, Wilhelm is in need of mental attention and arrangements have been made for him to take a special course of treatment at San Quentin under Dr L L Stanley

Wilhelm told Shay that he committed the robbery to secure funds for this treatment and that it was a case of "robbery or suicide" the prosecutor

The fact that a loaded gun was used in the robbery precluded the possibility of probation under the new law and Wilhelm's plea of guilty automatically sent him to prison.

Piedmont Voting on $180,000 Bond Issue

PIEDMONT April 1—What is considered the most important election in Piedmont's history was ushered in with the opening of the polls at an early hour today A bond issue totaling $180,000 and covering improvements in all departments is one of the outstanding features of the election There are three ballots one for the $180,000 bond issue one for the city council candidates board of education candidates and charter amendments and one for the proposition of whether or not Piedmont shall join the Fire Relief Utility District

The bond issues include $85,000 for civic center improvements $85,000 for completing a new junior high school building by buying the present school site for $45,000 for enlarging the city hall and $5,000 for the purchase of the Guilford place

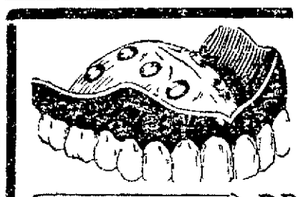

Of the $85,000 for improvements in the civic center $15,500 is to be used to move the old Piedmont park pavilion as shelter quarters for Battery D back into the park, and reconstruct it in conformation with the civic center plans It is to be used as an armory, community hall and general meeting place The remaining $12,500 is to be used for the completion of the first unit of the civic center plans which were drawn up by the Piedmont Civic Association and voted at the election last year

Two charter elections are being voted on One seeks to levy a special tax covering a period of two years for purchasing a $15,000 fire apparatus The other seeks to amend the charter to make it possible for the city council to levy a tax for the upkeep and maintenance of the city's schools in case of an emergency A third amendment providing for a change of the date of city elections from April 1 to April 14

The candidates being voted on today are A C Hubbard, city councilman, incumbent, L G Wolfe city councilman incumbent, L D McGregor, candidate for councilman, F. Bert Fernhoff, candidate for councilman, Walter S Brann, candidate for re-election to the board of education, and E J A Wells, also a candidate for re-election to that body
